RENO, Nev. (AP) — A man apparently armed with a bomb hijacked a Northwest Airlines jetliner Wednesday night for $200,000 but was not found aboard the plane when it landed here for refueling, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

The hijacker was given four parachutes by airline officials when the plane left Seattle.

Officials said he may have parachuted from the Boeing 727 while it was in flight or jumped out as it taxied up to the airport terminal with its cabin lights out.

As the plane was taxiing toward the terminal, it stopped long enough for the man to escape safely through an emergency exit, the FAA said.

Sheriff's deputies with dogs began a search for him among houses surrounding the airport.

The crew of three men and one stewardess were hustled off the plane into waiting cars 35 minutes after the craft landed. Authorities said the delay in taking the crew off the craft was due to the possibility that a bomb had been placed in the rear of the plane.

Jack Kiehler, district sales manager for Northwest in Seattle, said the hijacker locked all four of the plane's crew members in the cockpit during the flight from Seattle to Reno. The hijacker stayed by himself in the rear of the airplane and did not acknowledge the crew's attempts to communicate with him before the plane touched down in Reno, Kiehler said.

The hijacker ordered the Boeing 727 to fly with its rear stairwell open. It was not known if the man intended to bail out of the plane, but a Federal Aviation Administration officer said the hijacker was in the right position aboard to do this.

The hijacker took over the plane shortly before it was to land in Seattle on a flight from Washington, D.C. On the ground, in Seattle he allowed all 36 passengers and two stewardesses to leave.

An airline employee took the four parachutes and the $200,000 to the plane. Four crew member re-

Judges order draft halt

Associated Press

Military induction of all draftees in seven California counties was halted by two federal judges in Los Angeles Wednesday, pending a judicial review of the new Selective Service Act.

The action, which lawyers called potentially precedent-setting, stemmed from a class-action suit filed by the Southern California chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Alan Saltzman, an ACLU attorney, estimated the judges' order would affect at least 1,500 draftees scheduled for induction next month in the central judicial district of California.

Saltzman said the ACLU lawsuit contends that the Selective Service Act signed by President Nixon on Sept. 28 does not become effective for 90 days, and that consequently anybody drafted between that date and Dec. 28 is inducted illegally.

"If we win, it will be a precedent for nationwide use," Saltzman said, and added: "Everybody who has been drafted since Sept. 28 probably can get out of the Army if our position is upheld."

The attorney said disposition of the case in ACLU's favor could affect the 10,000 youths scheduled for induction nationwide during December.

The bill signed by Nixon extends the draft until June 30, 1973. It passed Congress on Sept. 12 after a five-month battle and, among other things, gave the President authority to end undergraduate deferments and extended procedural rights for draftees before their local boards.

The order, signed by Walter Ely and Shirley M. Hufstader, judges of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, prohibits inductions for 10 days "or until disposition of the motion by a regular motions' panel of this court."

Saltzman said if the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco rules against the ACLU, he would immediately take the case to the Supreme Court.

California counties in the central judicial district are Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Riverside, Ventura, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo.

Thick fog expected to hang around

Early morning fog which caused two freighters to collide in Long Beach's outer harbor Wednesday will continue until the weekend, the U.S. Weather Bureau reports.

Fog and patchy clouds will become hazy sunshine by midmorning today and Friday with a high temperature of 68 degrees expected both days. Early morning temperatures will drop to 48 degrees, according to the Weather Bureau.

The freighter Japan Elm, moving from its anchorage in the fog-shrouded outer harbor at Long Beach to Los Angeles harbor, scraped that side of the Singapore Pride at 6:30 a.m.

The Marine Exchange said neither vessel suffered extensive damage and the Japan Elm went on to Berth 55 in Los Angeles harbor with a cargo of steel products.

Angela fight for rights — Sunday

Angela Davis says she is fighting for the rights of black people to live decent lives in the United States.

"We should never fail to realize that this country would never be what it is today had it not been for slavery, first of all, and then for the very intense kind of exploitation that the black people have been subjected to for years and years.

"We have the right, really, to live in this country and to live decent lives in this country."

Her feelings are expressed in an interview with prize-winning reporter Mary Neiswender. Miss Davis is charged with murder, kidnap and conspiracy.

The interview will be published Sunday in your Independent, Press-Telegram.

U.S. role mystery in Pakistan attack

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department Wednesday confirmed that Indian forces have moved against Pakistan but declined to say whether the United States was obliged to come to Pakistan's assistance through any secret or public agreements.

Spokesman Charles W. Bray announced that Secretary of State William P. Rogers summoned Indian and Pakistani officials to separate meetings Wednesday to urge a "mutual withdrawal" of troops.

Bray said Rogers told Pakistan Ambassador Gen. Mohammad Raza and Indian Charge d'Affaires M. Rasgotra "that in the view of the United States government the most immediate consideration was a military disengagement and mutual withdrawal to keep the situation from escalating."

Meanwhile, Pakistan claimed Wednesday that Indian forces with air support opened a new front in the north Bengal border area of East Pakistan and gained some ground. It said Pakistani forces blunted two attacks, killing 100 Indians and damaging two tanks.

India said its army has the go-ahead to cross the Pakistani border in self-defense, but denied earlier Wednesday that any of its troops were fighting across the frontier. It insisted the attacking forces in East Pakistan were independent fighters trying to free the province from the central Pakistani government.

3% hike by Chrysler; new price-plea jam

Combined News Services

DETROIT — Chrysler Corp. Wednesday announced a 3 per cent across-the-board increase on its suggested retail prices for 1972 cars, trucks and optional equipment. It had received Price Commission permission to raise rates 4.5 per cent.

The company explained it was raising prices only a portion of the authorized 4.5 per cent at this time because of the competitive situation.

The 4.5 per cent increase was approved earlier in the day by the Price Commission in Washington. Chrysler originally had sought a 5.3 per cent hike for its 1972 models, but the commission said calculations based on Chrysler's projected sales and productivity for 1972 led it to roll back the requested increase.

EARLIER in the week, the commission approved an American Motors increase of 2.5 per cent. It has since received application from General Motors for a 3 per cent hike and from Ford Motor Co. for 4.4 per cent.

The Chrysler action came as new price increase requests from some of the nation's business giants showered down on the commission, and as President Nixon and Treasury Secretary John Connally conferred at the White House on an undisclosed subject.

Applications to raise prices came in from steel companies, coal-mining companies, natural-gas suppliers, railroads and utilities. At the end of business Wednesday, the commission said, 106 firms with annual sales of $100 million a year or more had applied for price hikes.

THE fifth application approved since the commission opened shop Nov. 14 was from Field Enterprises Inc., which got permission to raise newspaper advertising rates 3.8 per cent. The boost, according to the commission, will increase Field's overall revenues only 1.3 per cent.

New applications came in from U.S. Steel Corp., Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. and Kaiser Steel Co.; Penn Central and Seaboard Coast Line railroads; Coca-Cola; the Peabody Coal Co.; Commonwealth Edison of Chicago; Michigan Bell Telephone; Southern Natural Gas Co., and 29 other large firms in all fields of business from candy to trousers manufacturing.

Says car curbs 'unworkable'

Reagan vetoes smog bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan vetoed a bill Wednesday that would have given California the toughest auto antismog standards in the nation, calling it nothing but part of an unproductive "numbers game."

In his veto message, Reagan said the bill by Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, is not realistic, "ill-conceived and simply will not work."

The Petris bill would go beyond the 1975 federal standards for maximum allowable vehicle emissions, cutting that limit in half again by 1980 models.

"This administration has made the fight against smog a top priority," the Republican governor said. "The realistic approach we have taken in waging this battle and our strong commitment to the enactment of tough air-pollution laws have made California nationally recognized leader in the fight."

"We have always taken the position that any legislation in this area must be workable and practical if it is to be effective," Reagan added.

Petris has said the purpose of his bill was to set goals, adding that the auto industry has met previous antismog goals it first said were unattainable, but not until it was forced.

Reagan said Dr. A. J. Haagen-Smit, chairman of the State Air Resources Board, urged him to veto the Petris bill because, Reagan said, Haagen-Smit told him California's interests in fighting vehicle smog "are being forcefully advanced" by a study group of the National Academy of Sciences commissioned by the federal government.

"If this bill became law, it would engage us in a numbers game with the federal government, with no real benefit to our citizens," Reagan said.

"Without substantive answers to the serious questions this bill raises as to technical feasibility, and in view of the fact that the academy is now studying this very problem, the enactment of the Petris bill would be clearly premature and unwise," Reagan concluded.

The Petris measure started out this year as a version of his highly publicized "ban-the-auto" legislation, but it was amended at midyear into a smog-standards measure when Petris said he saw a chance for passage of such legislation.

Soviets rap Sino-U.S. 'duel'

Russ, China fight in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Soviet Union clashed head-on with China Wednesday and charged that there is a "Sino-American duel of negativism" against a Kremlin proposal for a world disarmament conference.

Soviet Ambassador Yakov A. Malik spoke in harsh terms usually reserved for the United States in denouncing Chinese opposition to the proposal as expressed by Chiao Kuan-hua, Peking's vice foreign minister.

Chiao, whose own government previously had proposed a similar conference, asked formally that the Soviet proposal "not be put to a vote at this session of the General Assembly."

Malik said opposition such as Chiao's had been heard previously only from Secretary of State William Rogers during an earlier speech to the General Assembly in October.

"Mr. Rogers threw out a smokescreen of skepticism and now has been added a fog of negativism," Malik said.

"There is a Sino-American duel of negativism in regard to the Soviet proposal."

The geniality exuded by Chiao and Peking's ambassador, Huang Hua, at China's first U.N. party

Tuesday night was gone as the Mao-jacketed minister denounced the Soviet proposal.

"The actual state of affairs at present is that imperialism, colonialism and neo-colonialism are continuing to pursue their policies of aggression and war and that many Asian, African and Latin American countries and some other medium and small countries are being subjected to threats and aggressions," Chiao said.

"The two superpowers are still stationing ground, naval and air forces — well over a million — and have established thousands of military bases abroad," he said.

"It is these superpowers which have obstinately rejected the prohibition and destruction of nuclear weapons, feverishly developing nuclear weapons and contending with each other for nuclear superiority, and they are doing this in order to press forward with their policies of blackmail, expansion, aggression and war," Chiao said.

"The threat to world peace and the security of the people of all countries originates precisely from these two superpowers," he said.

Chiao said the concept of "superpowers" to stockpile their own arms.

"Their main idea is: Only I can have nuclear weapons; you are not allowed to have nuclear weapons," he said. "This is, of course, unreasonable."

He said China was compelled to develop nuclear arms for its own defense but pledged that it would "never be a superpower, pursuing the policies of nuclear monopoly, nuclear threats and nuclear blackmail."

"We will not attack unless we are attacked," Chiao said. "If we are attacked, we will certainly counterattack."

He said China had "a few" nuclear weapons, but "she will never join the so-called club of nuclear powers."

Ziegler fails to plug (China) leak in tyke

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — A 10-year-old boy with a friend in high places told reporters Wednesday that President Nixon's trip to Peking is scheduled for next March.

Shocked-looking White House officials, with no woodshed handy, sent him to the back of the presidential plane instead.

The statement came from David Kissinger, son of key presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, aboard the presidential plane as the Nixon party flew to the Western White House to spend the Thanksgiving weekend.

A newswoman had asked Kissinger whether the White House, which has never revealed the date of the presidential trip to Communist China, was ready to announce the date.

"He's going in March," piped up David, who was with his father.

Presidential press secretary Ron Ziegler rolled his eyes back and shook his head in amazement. Kissinger chided his son and sent him scurrying to a back compartment, with Ziegler following.

Moments later David reappeared and told reporters:

"Mr. Ziegler told me to say I heard that the President was going in March on the radio."

Reporters who witnessed the scene said the White House aides "looked ready to faint."

Weather's bad for Thanksgiving

Combined News Services

NEW YORK — An ice and snowstorm moved across the upper Ohio Valley and Central Appalachians to the Northeast Wednesday, making driving hazardous in many areas on Thanksgiving eve. (See picture on this page and A-16.) Three persons were killed when their car skidded on a snow-slicked bridge near Covington, Ind., and plunged through a guard rail into the Wabash River. Two youths were killed when their small car hit a semi head on near Casey, Ill., on an icy road.

The first snow of the season fell on the nation's capital, and two to four inches was expected. Freezing rain fell in Atlanta and the ice buildup snapped power lines, knocking out electricity in much of the city. The Blue Ridge Parkway in Virginia was closed due to snow.

The National Weather Service put out heavy snow warnings for parts of West Virginia, Maryland, and Virginia. A heavy snow watch was up for Eastern Pennsylvania, Northwest New Jersey, Northern Connecticut, Southeast and East Central New York and Southern Vermont.

Birmingham smog findings

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — A survey of Birmingham residents indicates that many persons experienced increased symptoms of certain health problems during the recent air pollution crisis, a health specialist said Wednesday. The Department of Health and Epidemiology at the University of Alabama School of Medicine contacted 800 families in the survey and said there were increased complaints of coughs, throat and chest discomforts, and shortness of breath. Dr. Peter Peacock, chairman of the department, said, however, that many of the families contacted probably were influenced in reporting increased discomforts because they were aware of the pollution problem.

Rhodesia accord

LONDON — The agreement between Britain and Rhodesia was greeted with relief in London Wednesday by those who saw an end to a decade-long diplomatic headache. But there was also wide skepticism over the terms Britain was able to extract in exchange for granting legal independence to the Ian Smith white minority government. The terms are to be made public today in London and Salisbury.

Opposition Labor Party members expressed fears that the terms would not provide adequately for the aspirations of Rhodesia's black majority. The terms were reported to sanction Rhodesia's independence as a republic and concede political and economic advantages to the country's five million blacks. There was speculation the agreement also would contain some pledge for movement toward majority rule while continuing for the time being the system run by Rhodesia's 250,000 whites.

S. Viets expand drive

SAIGON, Thursday — South Vietnamese troops rapidly expanding their largely unopposed drive into Cambodia are planning to occupy the Mekong River city of Kampong Cham, 50 miles north-east of Phnom Penh and to probe west of the river. The U.S. Command announced another air strike into North Vietnam today, the 13th in 16 days and the 83rd of 1971. The strike by a U.S. Navy A-1 intruder pushed the recent record level of raids on the North a notch higher in both categories. The previous high for strikes in a short space of time was 11 in 16 days last May. The previous yearly high since the end of the air war in the north in 1968 was 75 strikes in 1969.

Economic helmsman

Combined News Services

President Nixon has picked to head his Council of Economic Advisers one who claims to be the most experienced man in government on the subject of controls.

Ironically, Herbert Stein is considered an economic moderate opposed to federal intervention in free markets. At the same time he has been involved in the subject most of his professional life.

"Without any fear of contradiction," Stein has said, "I think I can say I have had more experience than anyone else in government on the question."

The designation by Nixon Wednesday of Stein to succeed the resigning Paul W. McCracken as chairman signals some indication of the President's new commitment to controls as the best way out of the nation's economic troubles.

It was Stein, 55, who headed the task group which put together Phase 2, the post-freeze system of controls over wages, prices, profits and interest aimed at stabilizing the economy.

Stein began his government service three years out of college — he has a

Old ballplayers' tale?

While listening to the World Series, I heard the announcer say that the baseballs are rubbed down by the umpires before each game with New Jersey mud. Is this true? C.R., Seal Beach.

We are told it is. The American League officially has used the special mud from Palmyra, N.J. since 1933 and the National League since 1955. The mud, which always has been gathered from the same spot along a creek near the Delaware River, has no odor, doesn't discolor the balls and takes the shine off the cover enabling the pitcher to get a better grip. An umpire rubs down the balls before each game. The late Russell Blackburne, a Palmyra resident and long-time baseball player and manager, is said to have discovered the mud hole in 1914 and used it to rub down the balls for his team. He later formed a company and began shipping cans of mud at $15 each to other teams. When he died six years ago, his friend, John Haas took over the business. Haas, 78, still gathers the mud. Since only the mud that washes up on the shore is used, Haas can collect only a half-inch-thick layer at a time. He ships 36-3/4-pound cans a year to each league. Only a very small amount of mud is needed to rub down each ball. Haas said that he hasn't been able to find any other mud that works as well, and baseball players seem to agree. Like all businessmen, however, Haas has his worries — "If we ever get an oil slick in the Delaware River, I'll be wiped out."

What a doll

My 3-year-old daughter has a hand-me-down rag clown doll that she has worn out, but dearly loves. I got the doll about eight years ago for my older daughter with S and H Green Stamps. I just can't repair it again for the three year-old. I've already sewn on three new set of feet. Can ACTION LINE help me get another one? The doll was made by Gundy. Mrs. F. A., Huntington Beach.

Although ACTION LINE was unable to find a new clown for your daughter, an employee of the S and H Green Stamp district office in Los Angeles said her son has the same clown doll and would give his to your daughter. She told ACTION LINE that "ours still is in good shape. My son is 10 now and really never played with the clown much." ACTION LINE first had contacted the Gundy Manufacturing Co. in Brooklyn, N.Y., but was told by a spokesman that their toy styles are changed every other year and that it would be impossible to locate a new clown doll like the old one.

I am interested in learning the motorcycle mechanics trade, partly because I have always liked working on my own machine, and because my present trade, marine electrician, is rapidly disappearing with each new ship that is launched. The Los Angeles Trade-Technical College at 400 W. Washington Blvd. in Los Angeles, 715-0800, has a two-year motorcycle mechanics course. However, there is a long waiting list and it might be as much as two years before you could be enrolled. The Business and Technology Campus of Long Beach City College, 1305 E. Is there anywhere I can purchase electric plug adapters to convert European style plugs to fit American wall sockets? The prongs on all my appliances are round and won't fit the flat slots. The appliances already have been changed to the correct voltages. W. K., La Palma.

Andy Anderson of Dary's told ACTION LINE that if you will ask for him in the electrical supplies department, he will help you find the style adapter you need. Spokesmen for several other electrical supply companies contacted by ACTION LINE suggested that it would be just as simple to cut off the European plugs and wire new, flat-pronged plugs onto your appliance cords.

For the last six years, our Los Cerritos Rancho docents have strung what seems like miles of popcorn for the old-fashioned Christmas tree at the museum. Our handy hints: let the popped corn sit several days before you string it. This toughens it so it won't break so readily. If the weather turns damp and foggy, you're in luck; this speeds the toughening. We use linen thread or twine. String through the largest part of the popped corn. T. H., Long Beach.

Don't use shortening when popping the corn. This makes it a little tougher. Use strong, black thread, preferably doubled. By using the dark thread, you won't notice those areas where the popcorn inevitably falls off while you're hanging it on the tree. We carefully pack the strands of corn in plastic bags for reuse year after year. H. B., Westminster.

partment has revealed its plan to keep the base as a training facility.

The council stressed that additional military housing and other activities would strain municipal facilities.

However, the city pledged continued support of military operations "as long as they are needed," but questioned whether the station's role as a reserve training field is actually required.

It lauded the Navy announcement in February, 1970, that the base would be closed and flight activities transferred elsewhere, but opposed a suggestion that most of the 1,550 acres would be devoted to military housing. At that time the plans called for 2,500 living units.

The Defense Department announcement Tuesday that Reserve training would be a major mission at the air station came as a surprise to Los Alamitos officials who said they still oppose air activity and extensive housing development.

They protested that the 300 new housing units planned this year — which Defense Secretary Melvin Laird disclosed Wednesday — would overtax the city's ability to provide police, rubbish collection and sewer services.

Council opposition to continued flight operations appears linked to its concern that commercial jet plane service might somehow be shoehorned onto the field.

The council also protested that the city was "not consulted" about the new Defense Department plan for the base.

Teamster strike in third day

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

A Teamsters' strike against Southern California's multibillion-dollar construction industry moved into its third day Wednesday with little hope of a settlement.

Management and union representatives met for their sixth bargaining session since the strike began midnight Sunday, but a spokesman for the Associated General Contractors reported no progress other than that another meeting had been scheduled for Monday.

ALTHOUGH the Teamsters are seeking higher wages in the dispute, the negotiations have yet to touch on the matter of money. The stumbling block continues to be the moot status of truck operators who own their equipment and hire themselves out to contractors on a private basis.

The teamsters are trying to cement their jurisdiction over the owner-operators, but the contractors are strongly resisting the effort.

According to a Teamster spokesman, about 4,500 Teamster members, most of them truck drivers, walked off their jobs Monday and Tuesday. (Management sources have put the number around 10,000.)

There's no count of the number of job sites that have been shut down, but they run into the hundreds.

'Failed to face reality' Demo blames Reagan for long '71 session

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti Wednesday accused Gov. Reagan of failing "to face reality" until a crisis develops.

Moretti said this Reagan fault has contributed to the length of the 1971 session, which the governor said earlier this week was "disgracefully" wasting taxpayers' money.

"We have accomplished a great deal almost in spite of Ronald Reagan," the speaker told a news conference in defense of the Legislature.

He charged Reagan often ignores the separation of powers between the three branches of government and unduly tries to influence Republican lawmakers.

Moretti said the long session has come about because the governor is "unwilling to face reality before a crisis results."

"It's for this reason that we still don't have a payroll withholding system for state income taxes and it's for this reason that the state today is broke and operating on money borrowed from outside our own resources," the Van Nuys legislator added.

Despite the setbacks, Moretti recited a list of bills he considered important legislation passed this year.

The list included a $250 million bond issue to buy parks and beaches, a disposal system plan for solid waste, Medi-Cal and welfare reform, a sales tax on gasoline to pay for rapid transit and a bill to license auto repair shops to protect car owners from unscrupulous businessmen.

Moretti also accused Reagan of being a "dogmatic and absolutist type of individual" who has vetoed other bills beneficial to California.

"There are several ways to get this done," he said. "One's with a hammer and the other's with a velvet glove and I don't think Ronald Reagan has a velvet glove in his wardrobe."

Legislature withholding-tax OK predicted within week

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's first income tax withholding system will be adopted by the legislature next week, Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti predicted Wednesday.

But Moretti said he will push for more property tax relief for senior citizens as part of the new act. Senate Democrats and the Republican sponsors of withholding replied they will oppose the move.

Withholding, designed to take effect Jan. 1, is the key feature of a bill increasing taxes by $550 million to balance the state budget and construct buildings.

THE Assembly, on a 7-51 vote with no debate, Wednesday declined to concur in major Senate amendments to the bill. The measure passed the Senate Tuesday night.

The bill was referred to a two-house conference committee for final negotiation. But withholding was not an issue.

"I expect withholding will be adopted within the next week," Moretti told a news conference.

The statement virtually assured that withholding will be passed by the Legislature and sent to Gov. Reagan, who has said he will sign it.

MORETTI said the Legislature, which recessed Wednesday for a four-day Thanksgiving weekend, will attempt to adjourn its longest session in history next Thursday.

The Van Nuys lawmaker also said he and Assembly Democrats will press the conference committee to boost property-tax relief for senior citizens.

Under the bill, the maximum amount of annual income a senior citizen could have and still qualify for special property-tax breaks would be increased next July from $3,350 to $5,000. This would cost the state $16 million.

Moretti, strongly backed by Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee Chairman Joe A. Gonsalves, D-La Mirada, said the maximum income limitation should be raised to $10,000. This would cost the state $42 million.

Shipper tax break now law

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Reagan signed Wednesday a bill giving ship owners a tax break by exempting most docking privileges from property taxation. The measure by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, exempts from property taxation a shipper's "non-exclusive right" to any pier or harbor facility.

A "non-exclusive right" means that a ship can dock at a specific wharf each time it ties up, but other vessels share the same facility intermittently. Ships currently pay property taxes on their docking rights.

Hazardous toy sales-ban bill sent to Reagan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill allowing the State Department of Public Health to ban the sale of hazardous toys was voted final legislative passage Wednesday by the Assembly.

The lower house concurred 52-0 in Senate amendments to the measure by Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, and sent it to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The proposal would conform California regulation of possible hazardous materials, including toys, to federal law.

It sets standards for determining which materials are hazardous and would require warning notices on some hazardous products.

If signed by Reagan, Burton's bill would become law July 1, 1972.

State to pay for Angela trial

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Legislature voted final approval Wednesday to a special bill requiring state taxpayers to pay the costs of the Angela Davis and Ruchell McGee murder and conspiracy trials.

The action occurred when the Assembly concurred in a joint Assembly-Senate conference committee bill authored by Assemblyman William T. Bagley. The vote was 46-2.

Bagley said he was assured that Reagan "will sign this bill in this form."

Cost of the Davis trial, transferred from Marin to Santa Clara County, has been estimated to run from $600,000 to $1 million. McGee will be tried separately in Marin County.

They were charged with murder, escape and conspiracy in the slaying in August 1970 of a Superior Court judge and three others during an attempt to flee the Marin County Civic Center by San Quentin convicts. Bagley said $350,000 already has been spent during a full year of preliminary motions and the trial hasn't even started.

The two "no" votes were cast by Democratic Assemblymen Kenneth Cory of Garden Grove and Charles Warren of Los Angeles, chairman of the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Cory said he considered it "bad policy" for the state to pay the trial costs. Bagley said the bill includes conspiracy to escape from prison in the category of trials which the state will help pay for.

The bill also will pay for the hiring of additional security guards for the trials but will not finance such security measures as building construction, installation of protective screens and the like.

$4.5-million channel oil spill settlement; law fees at issue

A tentative settlement of $4.5 million has been reached between four oil companies and owners of beachfront property damaged in the 1969 oil spill in the Santa Barbara Channel.

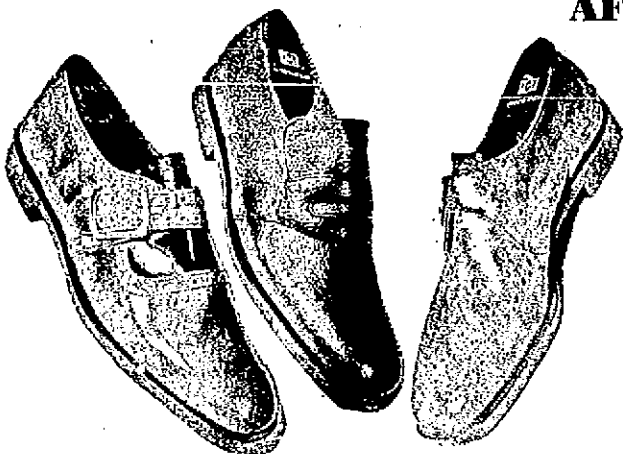

An oil industry spokesman said Wednesday the only remaining objection to the settlement comes from attorneys who handled the class-action case for the property owners.

Three court-appointed "special masters" recommended that the attorneys' fees be reduced from 33.3 per cent of the settlement to 27.5 per cent.

U.S. Dist. Judge Ray McNichols of Boise, Idaho, will consider the attorneys' objections in a hearing here Tuesday. If Judge McNichols approves the report, and if there are no appeals, it will become binding 30 days later, the spokesman said.

The oil spill resulted Jan. 28, 1969, when a Union Oil Co. off-shore well blew out, spilling more than 250,000 gallons of oil and creating a slick that fouled more than 30 miles of coastline.

Besides Union Oil, involved in the settlement are Gulf Oil Co., Mobil Oil Corp. and Texaco Inc. The four companies shared the lease on the federal tide-lands.

GOP paper cites '72

'Mitchell will quit Cabinet'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An official Republican publication said Wednesday that Atty. Gen. John W. Mitchell will leave the Cabinet to join President Nixon's reelection campaign, and suggested Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans might also leave to become the GOP's chief fund-raiser.

In its weekly newsletter, the Republican Congressional Committee said that Mitchell's successor is likely to come from outside the Justice Department, possibly White House congressional liaison chief Clark MacGregor.

MacGregor is a former Minnesota Republican congressman who was defeated in 1970 in a race against Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

"Should Stans also leave, to become the party's 1972 fund-raising chief, a possible replacement is Louie B. Nunn, outgoing GOP governor of Kentucky," the publication said in its "Political Peer-o-Scope" column.

The publication was more definite about Mitchell's future status. "When Attorney General John W. Mitchell leaves his post to join the President's campaign organization, it will leave only five of the original Nixon Cabinet still left on the job," the newsletter reported.

The only hold-overs would be Stans, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, Housing Secretary George Romney and Transportation Secretary John Volpe.

THE NEWSLETTER column also said that a "sweeping administration program will be announced next year to shift research and development priorities from wartime to peacetime use."

William T. Magruder, who headed the unsuccessful congressional fight for the supersonic transport airplane will head the program, the newsletter said.

The new program will focus on improving U.S. technology on improving industrial ability to compete with foreign markets and also on domestic needs, such as pollution control, housing and health services, the unsigned column said.

Peace units study election strategy

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Political activists and peace groups from throughout the nation met Wednesday to decide whether they should challenge Republicans and Democrats in next year's presidential election.

The self-described Coalition, which calls itself a populist-oriented fourth political party, may also name its candidates for president and vice president, write a platform and name a shadow cabinet during the four-day convention.

"There are two schools of thought on whether we should nominate candidates at this time," explained C. T. Weber, co-chairman of the California Peace and Freedom party, one of 12 such groups attending the convention.

ONE FACTION wants to wait and see what happens at the Democratic National Convention next summer, he said; the other favors picking a candidate quickly so as to get him on the ballot in 26 states. The issue will be decided Saturday.

Possible candidates mentioned include former Sen. Wayne Morse, U.S. Reps. John Conyers of Michigan, Ronald Dellums of California, and Shirley Chisholm of New York, and consumer advocate Ralph Nader. They are not believed to have been sounded out yet on whether they would serve.

Registration of delegates began Wednesday and the turnout appeared to number a few hundred — far short of the 2,000 or so originally expected.

Weber claimed that some members of minority groups were "afraid" to come to Texas. Delegates who did show up were given a kit containing political manifestos and a flyer reading: "Welcome to Texas. Let me remind you that Texas... is hung up on dope. The Dallas police, and there are probably many infiltrators here to night, are very vigilant in their narcotics business. Let's be sensible—no drugs in Dallas."

There also was an accommodation problem. Original plans called for nearly 500 of the delegates to sleep in dormitories provided for cattlemen at the State Fair Park, where the convention is being held. The charge would have been $1 a night.

But this fell through when the authorities were unable to guarantee heat and water and the delegates were unable to pay for security guards.

SOME WERE directed to private homes and others to a vacant dormitory at Southern Methodist University. Some reportedly started spreading sleeping bags in the convention hall, but were warned that they could not stay because of a city ordinance prohibiting sleeping in parks.

"Some came without money and can't afford to pay for a motel room," said Weber, "but we hope to get everyone settled some place."

Dr. Benjamin Spock, the pediatrician, and author Gore Vidal are co-chairman of the Coalition.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, who read the then secret Pentagon Papers at a congressional hearing, will speak Friday night.

Rehnquist hearing may delay Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., raised the possibility Wednesday that debate on the Supreme Court nomination of William H. Rehnquist might delay adjournment of Congress past a Dec. 4 target date.

In a brief Senate exchange with Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Bayh denied any intention of staging a filibuster against Rehnquist's confirmation.

But he quickly added he felt a "responsibility to bring to this body certain information, at hand on Rehnquist."

MANSFIELD, discussing the Senate program for the remainder of the session, noted that the major work yet to be done included action on President Nixon's Phase 2 economic bills, the confirmation of Earl L. Butz as Secretary of Agriculture, and the Supreme Court nominations of Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell Jr.

BAYH SAID he knew that senators were anxious to wind up the session and get home for Christmas. But, he added, they should "be willing to take the time to hear sufficient argument (on Rehnquist)."

Nixon stands firm on Butz nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the AFL-CIO and Sen. Henry M. Jackson joining the opposition, the White House said Wednesday President Nixon had no intention on withdrawing his nomination of Earl L. Butz to be secretary of agriculture.

At the same time, Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., charged that Butz, while serving as assistant agriculture secretary in 1951-57, stifled a suit against a food store chain "that the law clearly required."

"Mr. Butz is highly qualified and the President has great confidence in him," said White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler. "We think he'll make a fine Secretary of Agriculture. We have no intention of withdrawing his nomination."

But Jackson, an announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, and the AFL-CIO joined those who claim Butz is too allied with big agribusiness corporations to adequately look out for the welfare of the small farmer.

Andrew J. Biemiller, legislative director for the AFL-CIO, wrote every member of the Senate urging that they vote against confirmation.

"Dr. Butz already views farming as big business and considers the corporate farm superior to the family farmer—a concept we do not share," said Biemiller. "The farm workers of this nation have suffered much at the hands of the corporate farms and certainly their lot would not be improved if Dr. Butz was confirmed."

Metcalf inserted into the Congressional Record testimony before the Senate Monopoly Subcommittee in which Butz, then assistant agriculture secretary, took full responsibility for not filing suit against Safeway Stores and said that he "would do the same thing again."

Metcalf said that Butz, as assistant secretary for marketing and foreign agriculture, was responsible for implementing the Packers and Stockyards Act, but Butz, according to Metcalf, "overruled the recommendation of his department that a suit be filed against Safeway Stores for the use of newly acquired feedlot operations to depress prices on the West Coast."

"This is a man who saw nothing wrong in failing to execute the law as intended by Congress, and said he would do the same thing again," Metcalf said. "I believe the Senate has

'Shoot me,' bad loser dares victor

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Defeated Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack Gremlion stood on the steps of the state capitol at high noon Wednesday and challenged Gov. John McKeithen to shoot him. The governor didn't show up.

"Here I am Big John. Come on and shoot me," Gremlion shouted, throwing open his coat to show he was unarmed.

When McKeithen didn't appear, Gremlion accused him of cowardice.

"This isn't the first time he's run from a fight and it won't be the last," Gremlion said. The attorney general in a telegram, challenged McKeithen to shoot him.

In a speech to the Louisiana Teachers Association meeting in Shreveport Tuesday, McKeithen said he was "awfully embarrassed by our attorney general," adding he didn't know anything else to do with him but shoot him.

McKeithen apologized for the remark, but Gremlion said that wasn't good enough.

Gremlion, who was defeated in the primary, has been convicted for lying to a federal grand jury about his financial involvement with the bankrupt Louisiana Loan and Thrift Co.

culture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson for three years during the Eisenhower administration, is a dean of agriculture at Purdue University and is a former director of the National Poultry Corp.

Because of his agribusiness background, Jackson questioned Butz's ability to gain the confidence of farmers.

"Without broad support in the farm belt, Mr. Butz cannot hope to obtain a consensus for progressive farm policies," Jackson said in a statement.

"Under these circumstances, and particularly in light of Monday's vote in the Senate Agriculture Committee, the President should withdraw this nomination," said Jackson.

Meanwhile, administration supporters were reported working to counter-attack the increasing efforts to defeat the nomination.

One Senate GOP source complained privately that the administration "hasn't done a thing" to help push McGovern called on Butz in the past year and a spokesman for Butz said he would comply.

Ethnic groups assail abuse by politicians

N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Representatives of Italian, Polish, Hungarian and other urban ethnic communities spoke out Wednesday against "political manipulation" of American ethnic groups.

At a news conference here, they assailed Republicans for ignoring "the real ethnic issues" and Democrats for taking ethnic support for granted.

They sought also to dissociate themselves from several ethnic organizations that won attention after a Republican ethnic conference here last week.

Speakers Wednesday described these organizations as anti-black, anti-Semitic, and wholly unrepresentative of the concerns of most Americans of ethnic origins.

"Their fixation with old world politics is clearly out of step," said Msgr. Gene C. Baroni, director of the National Center for Urban Ethnic Affairs, which called Wednesday's news conference.

It included spokesmen of the National Urban Coalition and the American Jewish Committee, and representatives of national-ity groups from several cities.

None of the speakers identified by name the organizations of which they were critical. But later, Baroni said, "it's especially people like Paul Deac and his pseudo-ethnic organization which have given the ethnic movement a bad name."

"They reflect views that are anti-American in terms of being anti-Semitic and anti-black," he said.

Deac, 63, a Rumanian-born resident of Bethesda, Md., is the founder of a national conference of American ethnic groups.

In an interview Wednesday, he said: "We do not tolerate anti-Semitism or anti-Negro attitudes among us." He said he deplores name-calling, and described Baroni as "too far to the left. We think clergymen should not mix in politics and civil rights."

Participants in the news conference said the Republican Party's nationalities committee has ignored the real ethnic issues, like adequate income, changing neighborhoods, and decent schools.

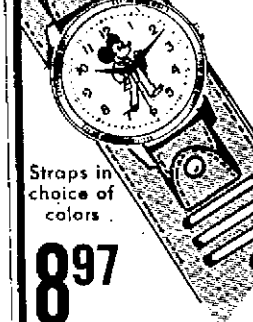

"But if the Republicans commit a sin, the Democrats commit an error" by taking the ethnic vote for granted, in the view of Osanad Tolh of Washington, a Hungarian-American representative.

He and others criticized "political manipulation of ethnicities" by both parties.

quotas and depreciated dollars.

MOSCOW — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin pledged Wednesday the Soviet Union to surpass in four years the current economic might of the United States, a nation he described as the sick man of the capitalist world.

"The industrial and agricultural output of the Soviet Union will exceed the present level of the United States by the end of 1975," Kosygin said in a report on the current five-year plan.

He made the report before the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) of the Soviet Union at a session attended by Maurice H. Stans, the U.S. Commerce secretary who is on a trade tour of the U.S.S.R.

Perhaps for Stans' benefit, Kosygin dwelt at surprising length on the United States. He said America was in a state of economic crisis, burdening its capitalist partners with import most powerful of the capitalist countries.

"Up to now these relations have been insignificantly developed and by no means correspond to the possibilities of the two countries," Kosygin said.

"It should be frankly stated that this situation is caused first of all by the survival of a number of artificial barriers in trade with the Soviet Union."

One reason the Soviet Union is interested in increased exchange with the West is for development of its economy. It would like to import Western technology to help extract its vast natural resources. Also, its mineral wealth could be bartered for consumer goods, chronically lacking in the Soviet economy.

Kosygin and Soviet Finance Minister Vasily N. Garbuzov predicted extensive growth in all areas — but in keeping with the Soviet Union's current "peace offensive" they played down defense.

Garbuzov's budget included a defense appropriation of 17.9 billion rubles ($19.8 billion) exactly the same as last year. That represented a percentage decrease since this year's national budget totalled 173.5 billion rubles ($192.5 billion) compared with 160.6 billion rubles ($178.2 billion) last year.

Demo governors' caucus postponed

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The National Democratic Governors Caucus, which was to have been held next month in Newport, has been postponed until April, Gov. Frank Licht said.

He said Gov. Marvin Mendel of Maryland, chairman of the caucus, ordered the postponement after a survey of the 30 Democratic governors showed they would be unable to make the conference next month.

Western military experts put little stock in the Soviet defense figures, however, because many military outlays are hidden in appropriations for science, industry and education.

Kosygin made a special point of discussing the United States, both in the context of trade relations and of the "crisis of capitalism."

Propounding the standard Marxist doctrine that capitalism is dying from internal sickness, Kosygin said America is the sickest of all.

"Since 1969, the economy of the United States has been in a stage of crisis development," Kosygin said, and other capitalist countries suffer because of it.

America "at first compelled other capitalist countries to finance it by flooding the currency markets with depreciated dollars and then forced these countries to make room on the American market by imposing an import surcharge," he said.

"This seems inequitable to many," he added.

Dollars unloaded; gold price soars

New York Times Service

PARIS — American dollars were unloaded in the major European centers Wednesday and the price of gold rose to its highest level in nearly four years as speculation on a dollar devaluation intensified before next week's crucial monetary meeting of 10 leading non-Communist governments in Rome.

Corporations, banks and large investors were seeking to reduce their dollar holdings to minimum quantities and were buying the robust Western European currencies such as the German mark, the British pound, the Dutch guilder, and the Swiss, Belgian and French francs as well as the Japanese yen.

Since most governments have decided in the three-month-old crisis to prevent excessive appreciation of their currencies, central banks intervened in the exchange markets to buy the unwanted dollars.

Fears of a trade war and spreading recession are behind the moves to check the rise of the strong currencies. Governments see their export competitiveness, industrial output and employment conditions hit by the upward currency moves.

Missiles instead of bombers?

Administration considering sending Lance to Israel

By WILLIAM BEECHER

WASHINGTON — Senior Pentagon officials have disclosed that the administration was considering providing Israel with the Lance missile rather than Phantom fighter-bombers if future Soviet shipments of modern weapons should threaten to tip the balance of power in the Mideast in favor of Egypt.

The Lance, some officials point out, may be unusually well suited to deterring Egypt from resuming hostilities across the canal without adding appreciably to Israel's capability to do damage deep inside Egypt.

They note that the Lance, now undergoing advanced testing within the United States, has a range of 50 to 70 miles and would be ideal for knocking out surface-to-air missile SAM sites along the west bank of the Suez Canal.

If Cairo were to consider resuming artillery barrages across the canal or attempting a large-scale invasion, it would rely on the SAMs to protect either move against heavy Israeli air attack.

A few months ago, the sources said, the administration turned down Israel's request for the Lance missile. But within recent days, they add, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has directed his staff to take another careful look at the weapons system and its availability, should a decision be made to supply it to Israel.

The renewed interest in Lance, they noted, emanates from the White House as well as the Pentagon.

The reconsideration of the Lance request comes shortly in advance of the visit here on Dec. 2 of Gold Meir, the Israeli premier, for talks with the President and the secretary of state.

Officials declined to say whether they expect Mrs. Meir at those meetings to reassert Israel's desire for the Lance, in addition to her anticipated call for a resumption of sales of Phantom jets.

Only Tuesday the Senate attempted to increase the pressure on the administration to resume shipments by voting overwhelmingly for $500 million in credits for the purchase of jets and other weapons for Israel.

"If a decision should be made to provide Israel the Lance," one official said, "it would not preclude the supply of additional aircraft sometime in the future. But Lance provides a possible alternative that would be a dramatic evidence of continuing American interest in preserving the balance, without slamming the door finally on an interim agreement on reopening the canal."

Administration officials concede privately that they have made clear to Israel that the U.S. would be willing to sell it substantial numbers of additional F-4 Phantoms and A-4 Skyhawks once Israel agreed on a formula by which its troops would withdraw from the east bank of the Suez and allow Egypt to reopen and operate the waterway.

The administration has refused to make an aircraft commitment prior to such an agreement, in large part for fear this would cause Egypt to refuse further discussions on an interim settlement.

Publicly, the administration has declined to supply more aircraft to Israel at this time because it believes that despite the continuing, but lately diminished, shipment by the Soviet Union of new aircraft and weapons to Egypt, the balance of power in the area has not tilted against Israel.

Privately, they say this balance could be upset either by the supply of large number of new weapons by Russia to Egypt, or by Israel's agreement to move to less defensible positions to the east of the canal as part of an interim settlement.

War still imminent in Mideast

The Associated Press

Egypt's chief of staff reviewed the Mideast situation Wednesday for military leaders of 12 Arab nations and declared: "With the failure of the political solution nothing is left before us but military might."

An Israeli cabinet minister charged that Egypt "apparently has decided on war" and predicted that fighting may break out soon.

The military conference in Cairo was called to lay the groundwork for a meeting of the Arab Joint Defense Council this weekend. It was the first Arab gathering since President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said Saturday that war with Israel was the only Middle East solution left.

"We would show the world that our next battle with Israel is one of existence," Gen. Assad el Shazly, Egypt's chief of staff, said. "To be or not to be."

IN TEL AVIV, the Israeli minister of transportation and communication, Shimon Peres, told a group of technology students that Sadat's comments indicated Egypt is set for battle but said it would "pay dearly" for renewing hostilities.

A leading member of Premier Golda Meir's Labor party blamed the American embargo on Phantom warplanes for Israel as a factor in "speeding up Arab aggression."

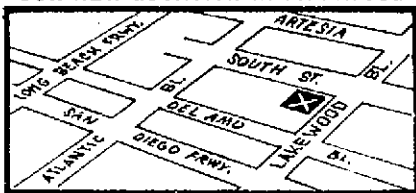

The embargo has promoted conflict rather than peace, said Aviad Yaffe in the party newspaper, and "a fateful responsibility hangs on the present U.S. policy."

In other developments: Gaza military authorities said a grenade thrown at an Israeli army patrol in a Palestinian refugee camp killed one Arab boy and wounded five other Arab children. They said a male suspect was wounded and captured.

An African peace mission arrived in Jerusalem after stopping off in Tel Aviv and presented Israel with what a Nigerian source said was a proposed Mideast settlement.

Informants said the mission gave Premier Meir a memorandum on ways to renew Israeli-Egyptian negotiations under U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring, whose efforts ended in deadlock in February.

Industry lie detector use as 'truth-teller' spreading

By BEN A. FRANKLIN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The lie detector, a device known to millions of readers of Dick Tracy as an implacable breaker of hardened criminals, is quietly coming into far wider use as a "truth-telling" informant in the world of ordinary sinners.

In a decade of rising crime, corporate and insurance company losses from embezzlement, pilfering and outright theft by employees in retail sales, warehousing and delivery services have soared steadily to $10 million a day, more than $3 billion a year, according to the Insurance Information Institute. "The losses are greater than those from conventional robbery and burglary together."

More and more, employers have been striking back, trying to weed out dishonest workers by forcing employees to take — and pass — lie detector tests, either as a consideration of continued employment or as part of a pre-employment screening process.

ABOUT 200,000 persons in private employment — not counting thousands of others in federal, state and local government — will be subjected to lie detector, or polygraph, examinations this year, according to one informed estimate. Many will fail, although how many will probably never be known. "Discretion" — a self-imposed rule of secrecy — veils much of the polygraph industry's impact.

But the spread of commercial lie detector testing, polygraphists call it a "detection of deception" system that gives employees "a moral vaccination" against dishonesty, has begun to generate substantial opposition as an invasion of privacy and a violation of the constitutional guarantee against self-incrimination.

In recent years 12 states and three cities, acting under pressure from labor unions, have restricted or outlawed lie detection in routine corporate personnel screening. The tests, never acceptable in court, have been repudiated by the FBI and a measure to prohibit their use nationally is pending in Congress.

NONETHELESS, the lie detector industry remains confident that many more profitable years lie ahead — the examinations bring in $50 an hour — and that the demand for its services will continue to grow faster than the opposition.

The Insurance Information Institute estimates, for example, that the annual cost of employee stealing and cheating will double to $8 billion in the next decade, reason enough, perhaps, for the polygraph say, for their business to double too.

Many polygraph practitioners — there are 4,000 to 5,000 in the industry — believe their technique is a bastion of honesty amid a decaying morality. "There comes a time," says J. Kirk Barefoot, a leading polygraphist and former president of the American Polygraph Association, "when your privacy and mine has to be weighed against a company being stolen blind and put out of business."

Their opponents feel, however, that the polygraphists are only adding to the confusion. They point to technical studies asserting that the lie detector technique is scientifically flawed. And they trace its acceptance to a self-perpetuating circle: belief in the machines' efficacy induces confessions; a high rate of confessions induces belief in the machine's efficacy.

THE SUCCESS of the polygraph industry in obtaining employee confessions is its chief selling point among pragmatic businessmen who regard the outpouring of guilt as confirmation that the system works. According to John E. Reid, the head of a leading Chicago polygraph company, "We get better results than a priest does."

How the process operates, and what its impact on an ordinary individual can be, is shown by the case of Stanley Brundage, a composite person put together for this profile to protect the privacy of the four real people from whose real polygraph histories he is drawn. Company names in the episode are fictional.

Brundage is a 25-year-old vending machine service man whose brush with the polygraph came this year when he applied for a job with U-Vent-It, a competitor of Automatics, Inc., for which he had been working as a route man for the last seven months.

The new job would have brought him $10 a week more than the $82 a week he had been earning at Automatics. At U-Vent-It he was asked routinely to sign a job applicant's waiver saying:

"I AGREE that the U-Vent-It company may require me to take a pre-employment polygraph (lie detector) examination and to take such examinations periodically, as the company may require. I understand that my refusal of failure to take such a test when requested may be grounds for dismissal."

The employment questionnaire asked: "Have you ever been tested on the polygraph before?" and, "If so, give dates, places and reasons for the test." Brundage wrote, "none."

Another question asked, "have you ever been convicted by any police department for any reason?" Brundage now says that this question made him uneasy. He knew that the police do not convict, but he had no police record. He answered, "no."

But less than 24 hours later, after 90 minutes of interrogation while connected by wires and tubes to a polygraph instrument at U-Vent-It's private applicant screening firm, Confidential Personnel Services, Inc., Stanley Brundage had not only been barred from the new job, he had also been dismissed from his old one. And he was unlikely to find another in the vending service trade without moving from his native Midwestern city.

For confronted by the lie detector, Brundage had confessed taking cigarettes from his employer's stock for his own use and "borrowing" small amounts of money for short terms, $62 to get his car out of a repair shop was the largest, from his route man's "bank."

change-making kitty given him every Monday. He had turned it back in — always perfectly accounted for, with the impromptu "loans" repaid — every Friday.

But to the polygraph examiner, an understanding former policeman, Brundage had also confessed much more, a homosexual encounter at the age of 13, a teen-age shoplifting spree, a near court-martial that was quashed by his commanding officer and appeared nowhere in his "honorable" Army record, and a marital infidelity of more recent vintage.

His confession began when the examiner informed him that he had shown "sensitivity" on the polygraph chart, a suppression and recovery of respiration, an increase in blood pressure and pulse, and an increase in galvanic skin response, a measure of a minute electrical current at the fingertips that rises with increased perspiration, to the question: "Have you ever taken money, merchandise or property from any employer?"

Across the country this year, similar episodes are shaping the lives of countless persons in commercial employment.

SOME idea of the scope of nongovernmental, non-police polygraph activity can be gained by comparing it with current estimates that the lie detector tests given by federal agencies number about one-tenth of those conducted for businesses by private practitioners.

Industry lie detector use as 'truth-teller' spreads

eral figures, but a detailed study seven years ago by the House Government Operations Committee disclosed that, in 1963, 20 federal agencies gave 24,000 lie detector tests, not counting the classified and unreported tests required by the CIA, known to be a heavy polygraph user.

Except at the CIA and the National Security Agency, a secret federal cryptographic and intelligence-gathering office, most experts think the use of the lie detector has declined since then in government here. A 1965 guidance issued by the U.S. Civil Service Commission is supposed to limit polygraph testing to serious national security cases.

The International Conference Police Association has had a standing resolution since 1964 that declares that although a policeman properly relinquishes many rights to avoid questioning when he puts on a badge, this "does not include compulsory subjugation to interrogation under an apparatus of questionable accuracy, the reliability of which has never been demonstrated to the courts."

BARFOOT, the polygraphist, is 44 years old, a former policeman and a graduate of the polygraph course — "Police science and administration" — at Washington State University, and a former two-term president and board chairman of the American Polygraph Association. This year he is leading the APA's lobbying fight against the polygraph prohibition bill of Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C.

"Most people have a compulsion to confess," Barfoot said. "They hesitate, of course, as long as they feel there is uncertainty as to their guilt. They may be uncertain about it within themselves. But once you remove that uncertainty — the thing the polygraph does best — they confess. Often they go so far that the examiner has to shut them up."

Whether the lie detector way to honest dealing is compatible with a free-society is the question raised by Ervin, the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on constitutional rights and one of the leading students here of the Bill of Rights.

CALLING the polygraph "a tool to compel a man to speak against his will" and "an instrument of 20th century witchcraft, more appropriate to a police state," Ervin introduced a bill that would virtually ban the lie detector. The bill is to be the subject of hearings before his subcommittee next year.

The pro-polygraph rationale, according to Lee M. Burkey, a Chicago labor lawyer who has successfully reversed through arbitration hearing procedures of union contracts a dozen lie detector dismissals is "at its root a deeply ideological thing by people who desperately long for law and order."

"I see employer after employer depending on the lie detector," Burkey said. "They are only perpetuating the lack of order in America by going through this magic ritual with all its terrible injustices. The real criminals don't care about the lie detector. It isn't admissible as evidence in court."

Polygraph defenders like Barfoot and Reid, head of Joen E. Reid & Associates, a lie detector firm in Chicago, have devoted most of their energies to the long dispute over the accuracy and the scientific basis of their instrument and to efforts to police their own craft.

"If you want to write that there are a lot of rotten people in this business," Reid said, "there are. What our critics should do is help us get better examiner licensing laws, such as we have here in Illinois, let us throw the rascals out and let us do our work. We have the best investigative thing in the world going and they want to put us out of business."

REID dismissed the invasion of privacy argument by saying, "no one who comes here has to take the test. They sign a voluntary statement." But he acknowledged that competition for jobs had given polygraph a significant boost.

He brushed aside the Fifth Amendment objections, too, as "a protection in criminal law."

Reid called subjects who try to manipulate the polygraph by taking drugs, coughing, sneezing, and give "sensitivity" responses to control questions such as "did you eat breakfast this morning?" The "biggest suckers for us because if they do that they give themselves away completely."

The standard text book on the lie detector, "Truth and Deception," was written by Reid and Prof. Fred E. Inbau of the Northwestern University law school. It suggests that "the recorded observations of a secretary or a receptionist as to the subject's general conduct or behavior while in the waiting room will be very helpful to the examiner" in assessing guilt or innocence.

In the following 10 pages of the Reid-Inbau book, the authors warn that such factors as lethargy, nervousness, muscular tension, apprehension over "accusation or interrogation," and the sensitivity of menstruating female subjects to the respiration-measuring tube around their breasts or to the tube's pressure on "falsetts" may cause erroneous "deception" responses.

The procedure admonishments include this:

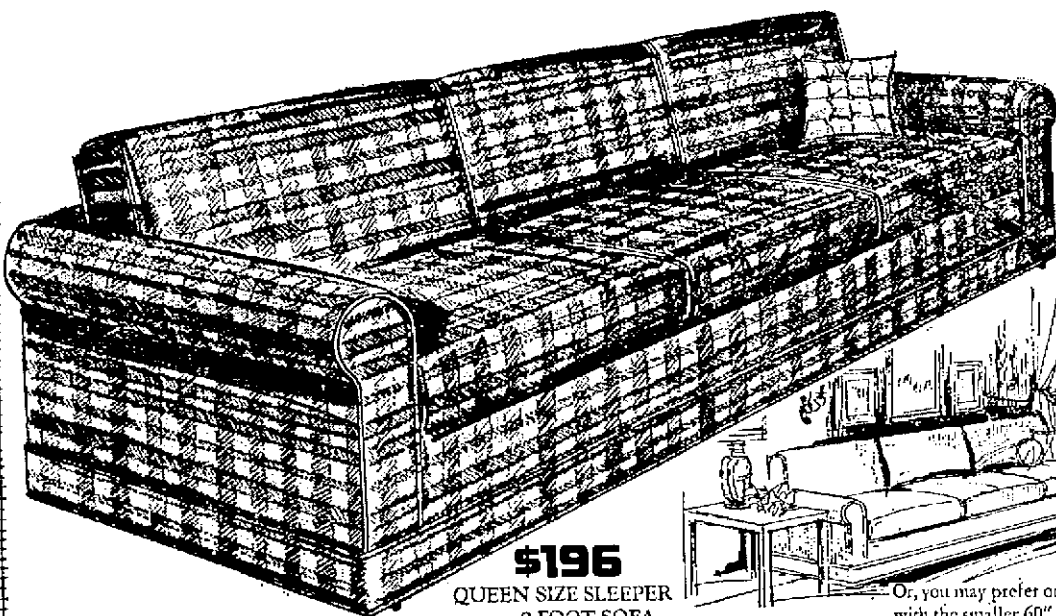

"In instances where the subject insists that he has never stolen anything at any time in his life, the examiner should then ask:

Use of lie detectors by business growing

"Did you ever try to steal anything?" If he says, "no", he should then be asked: "Did you ever think of stealing anything?" If the answer is "no" this question will serve as a control."

A FOOTNOTE adds, however, that "a subject who denies ever having stolen anything in his whole life (after being asked about this as above described) is usually established by the test itself as being a liar regarding the main offense under investigation."

Doubts about the accuracy of the polygraph and the interpretations of its practitioners have received wide attention during the last decade in scientific and academic circles. A number of tests at independent laboratories — some of them commissioned by federal military and security agencies under government contract — have challenged the lie detector industry's claim to "99 per cent accuracy."

In 1961, Prof. Jerome H. Shitnikof of the Yale law school concluded in the Yale Law Journal that polygraph lie detection depended "on the myth of infallibility" for its psychological impact in inducing confessions.

Other studies have shown the polygraph to be 70 to 75 per cent accurate.

Many new uses of polygraph equipment, often to the embarrassment of commercial lie detector examiners, are being tested nowadays. One of the instrument's standard physiological tests of truthfulness, the galvanic skin response device, which electrically measures increases in perspiration at the fingertips as a sign of lying, has become the basis of a frankly experimental, California-based religious denomination, the founding Church of Scientology.

THAT the APA is sensitive to such experimental uses of its polygraph instrumentation is indicated by its attitude toward Cleve Backster, a New York City polygraphist and former adviser to the CIA who has been conducting for six years serious experiments with the galvanic response of philodendron plants.

Backster, the lie detector examiner of such leading criminal lawyers as F. Lee Bailey and Henry Rothblatt, has appeared on network television to demonstrate that a plant, hooked to the galvanic skin reflex portion of the polygraph, responds with human-like tracings of anxiety when it is threatened with burning by a match or is spoken to harshly. Now, because he cooperated in the preparation of an article in the current issue of National Wildlife magazine describing the "strenuous" galvanic response reaction not only of plants but also of chicken eggs, APA officials say Backster is threatened with expulsion from the association.

Revamped shelter plan urged

WASHINGTON — A government auditing agency says millions more American lives could be saved in a nuclear attack by revising the nation's fallout shelter program and gearing it to the most likely U.S. target areas.

The General Accounting Office also says in a report that the Office of Civil Defense should stock more shelters — and stock the best available shelters where needed even if they don't meet federal protection standards.

The Pentagon estimates the present shelter program would save 18 million to 30 million lives when completed in 1975, the report said, but it said the program as now planned would leave nearly half the U.S. population without shelter protection.

It said the Office of Civil Defense has studied a range of alternatives including a $4.7-billion program to provide shelters for the entire population but the trend in both the White House and Congress since 1962 has been to spend less for civil defense, not more.

Noting President Nixon has ordered restudy of the civil defense program, the GAO report recommended an overhaul starting with concentration of new fallout shelters in the most likely target areas.

The first nuclear strikes would be against U.S. retaliatory missile fields, military and government command centers, cities and industrial centers, the GAO auditors said.

They called OCD's policy of treating all areas of the country equally vulnerable "not a realistic approach" and recommended the highest risk areas be given priority for new shelters.

The report also said that while shelter space for 195 million people has been identified — much of it in building basements — only about half of it has been marked and stocked for shelter use. It recommended a study to determine how much of the space could be turned into stocked shelters.

Work on more A-plants OKd

WASHINGTON — The Atomic Energy Commission Wednesday authorized four additional atomic power plants to continue construction — for the time being at least — pending completion of the broadened environmental-impact review required under recently revised AEC regulations.

The four plants are the Calvert Cliffs Nuclear Power Plant in Calvert County, Md. on the Chesapeake Bay; the Oconee Nuclear Power Station in Oconee County, South Carolina; the Maine-Yankee Nuclear Plant in Lincoln County, Maine; and the Fitzpatrick Nuclear Power Plant in Oswego County, N.Y.

Good eats and deeds mark Thanksgiving

Americans will observe Thanksgiving Day with family gatherings, football, parades and the traditional turkey and trimmings. And in many places it will also be a day of good deeds.
Organizations and individuals across the nation will open their doors to the orphaned, elderly and needy who might otherwise have no place to go.
In some places, the sharing will be a bit offbeat: a people's picnic in a Dallas park; pumpkin pie for passing truck drivers at a Chicago Skyway toll booth on the Illinois-Indiana lines.

Couple gets $42,000 for wrong pills

A drug chain which erroneously filled a prescription for birth control pills with sleeping pills was ordered by a superior court jury in Los Angeles Wednesday to pay a La Habra couple $42,000.
Mrs. Maxine Pearson, 46, the woman who consumed the wrong prescription — containing phenobarbital — later became pregnant and had a child, David, now 6.
Mrs. Pearson and her husband, Albert, a 47-year-old plastering contractor, were awarded the decision on a $3 vote by the jury in the courtroom of Superior Judge Richard C. Fildev.
The verdict was against a Sav-On Drug, Inc., store in East Whittier.

The pilot said he would fly the 500 miles to Reno, Nev., for a refueling stop, and then make another stop at Yuma, Ariz., but the FAA in Seattle said the Yuma stop might not be necessary. The pilot, identified by the FBI as William Scott, said he was told at one point by the hijacker: "Get the show on the road."
An FBI spokesman in Seattle said a man identified as Michael Cooper — "among others" — was being investigated in connection with the hijack.
In Missoula, Mont., Leonard Kraut of the U.S. Forest Service smokejumper training center said he had been contacted by the FBI about whether a Michael Cooper had trained there. He said he told officials no man by that name had "jumped from this base."
A passenger list made available by the airline at the airport at Seattle listed Michael Cooper as among those getting off the plane. In Portland, Ore., police listed a Dan Cooper among those they believed had boarded the plane there before it went on to Seattle, but that name was not on the airline's list of those who got off in Seattle.
In Oakland, Calif., FAA Supervisor Art Wibom said he had monitored the plane's radio and had learned the hijacker was staying near the back of the aircraft.

Nixon convenes board to force dock work in East

WASHINGTON — President Nixon Wednesday moved toward quick use of a back-to-work court order following the breakdown of talks in the Atlantic-Gulf Coast dock strike.
Because of what the White House called a "dim possibility of timely settlement," Nixon reconvened the same special board that last month recommended the order that sent striking West Coast dock workers back for a 90-day cooling-off period under the Taft-Hartley Act.
The President will decide whether to seek similar order in the Atlantic-Gulf strike after receiving the board's report, probably today.
A SPOKESMAN for the mediation service said the board met through the afternoon and evening and by 10 p.m. was working on the final report. It was to be delivered to the White House this morning, he said.
J. Curtis Counts, the federal government's chief labor mediator, said Tuesday the Atlantic-Gulf talks in Miami, Fla. were deadlocked over money, and that Taft-Hartley action by Nixon was likely.
The strike has idled 45,000 longshoremen and 30,000 members of other unions in ports from Maine to Texas.
A federal judge in New Orleans Wednesday ruled that the strike by 6,000 longshoremen there was an illegal secondary boycott. U.S. District Court Judge Jack Gordon ordered the men to return to work immediately but agreed to stay his order to give the union time to appeal.
THE NEW Orleans dock workers walked out Oct. 1 when their contract expired but were ordered back to work Oct. 27 by Gordon. The men struck again on Nov. 14, claiming Gordon's injunction expired with the end of the wage-price freeze.
In ruling that the current strike was still a secondary boycott in support of strikes elsewhere, Gordon told the New Orleans Steamship Association he expected it to negotiate in the "utmost of good faith" with the ILA. No date has been set for further talks, and it is not known what the New Orleans local is demanding or what the shippers are offering.
Thomas Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, has said dock workers would obey a back-to-work order for a cooling-off period. ILA Vice President Ronald Ziegler said the four-man board of inquiry, headed by Stanford University Law Dean J. Keith Mann, planned to meet in Washington later in the day to prepare its report.
Other board members are Washington labor arbitrators Rolf Valtin and Jacob Seidenberg, and attorney Paul D. Hanlon of Portland, Ore.
NIXON convened the same board Oct. 4 in the then three-month-old West Coast strike. But at that time the Eastern dock strike was only a few days old and the President decided to try federal mediation there instead of invoking emergency powers as he did in the West Coast strike.
Counts, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said the talks came very close to producing agreement but that economic differences could not be resolved.
Shippers reportedly offered a $1.20 hourly wage increase and 76.5 cents an hour in fringe benefits over a three-year period. The ILA was said to seek a flat $2.90 increase.
Base pay for ILA members is $4.60 an hour, so even management's reported offer would greatly exceed the federal Pay Board's guideline permitting raises of no more than 5.5 per cent a year except in special circumstances. The Eastern strike began Oct. 1.
MEANWHILE in Chicago the Brotherhood of Railway Signalmen Wednesday announced its members have ratified a contract providing a 46 per cent wage hike over a 42-month period.
Union President Charles J. Chamberlain said 75 of the union's general chairmen met in Chicago last Saturday and later approved by an "overwhelming majority" a contract agreement reached Nov. 16 with the nation's railroads. He said the contract is now before the Pay Board.
He said the pay hike, averaging 13 per cent a year as compared to the government's 5.5 per cent a year guideline, was "in line with others already negotiated throughout the industry and already in existence."
The pact gives signalmen a raise from $3.78 to $5.52 an hour.

U.S. sends latest data on Mars to Soviet scientist

Associated Press
A second message outlining additional scientific data obtained about Mars by Mariner 9 was sent Wednesday to the Soviet Union over a special teletype "hotline" between Pasadena and Moscow.
Officials at the Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena said the message was signed by project director Dan Schneiderman. It was addressed to Dr. I.A. Zhulin in Moscow and reported on findings scientists discussed with newsmen last Friday during a briefing at JPL, where the Mariner 9 spacecraft is being controlled.
The message said the haze over Mars, believed to be a dust storm, seemed to be clearing, especially over the south pole; that water vapor in the atmosphere over the pole had been detected, and that radio tracking of Mariner 9 indicated Mars is oval-shaped at the equator rather than round.
The Soviets were told that determination of the Martian atmosphere's pressure on the surface at one point was 4.2 millibars, slightly lower than indicated by earlier Mariner flights that didn't orbit the planet. Earth's atmospheric pressure at sea level is usually 1,000 millibars.
NASA and the Soviet Academy of Sciences agreed last month to exchange data from Mariner 9 and the Soviet Union's Mars 2 and 3. The Russian probes are not believed to have reached Mars yet.
The first message was sent to the Soviets Nov. 16, reporting orbit had been achieved and that an apparent dust storm obscured the planet.
The Russians replied Nov. 21, congratulating JPL for its achievements.

Douglas Aircraft pact $2.2 million

Douglas Aircraft Co. has received a $2.2-million Air Force contract to perform a design study for an advanced aircraft ejection seat, Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, reported Wednesday.
The initial allotment under the contract is $500,000. The balance is to be paid during the life of the contract, running through 1973. No hardware is involved.
A Douglas spokesman in Long Beach said the contract is the result of an earlier proposal by the company for a design study of an advanced concept escape system.
Previous escape systems developed by Douglas at the Long Beach plant for high-performance military aircraft include rocket-propelled ejection seats and ballistic-deployed parachute systems for safe recovery of pilots in emergencies down to zero altitude and from speeds of zero to 600 miles an hour.

White House Conference on Aging to open

By ED ZUCKERMAN
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — After a full year of planning, the White House Conference on Aging opens here Sunday night with 3,500 mostly elderly delegates on hand to discuss their most pressing problems.

The five-day meeting is the second national assembly in history sponsored by the government and expressly devoted to problems of the aged. The inaugural meeting was held in 1961 during the Eisenhower administration.

Highlights of the assembly will include an expected appearance by President Nixon and an open-ended forum discussion which will have 80-year-old former Chief Justice Earl Warren as its presiding officer.

CONGRESS appropriated $1.9 million for the White House-sponsored meeting. The funds will pay for the year of planning, the convention itself and a full year of post-convention work.

Most of the assembly's accomplishments will be measured through activities to be undertaken in 1972, according to Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, its presidentially-appointed chairman.

"My hope is that the post-conference year will be one of significant action in the area of aging. I think there's a mood in this country for action in this area," Flemming said at an introductory briefing for newsmen who will be covering the event.

Of the 3,500 delegates, half of whom were selected to participate by their homestate governors, about one-third are over 65 years old and another third (who were middle-aged when the first conference was held) are between the ages of 55 and 65.

THE DEAN of the conference will be 95-year-old Justice Stevens of Salt Lake City, who was selected a delegate by the National Farmers Union. Stevens, who has outlived three wives and told White House planners he is actively looking for a fourth, still works three days each week in a Green Thumb project.

The project is jointly sponsored by the U.S. Department of Labor and the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity for retired, low income farm people.

The conference's "first lady" is Earline M.M. White, a 95-year-old resident of Jacksonville, Fla. The thirteenth daughter of a slave, she has been involved in 70 years of civic work in the Florida city. According to conference officials, her work has led to the establishment in Jacksonville of a 120-bed nursing home; two boarding homes for ambulatory, ill, aged and handicapped; two child care centers; a lodging home for alcoholics; a poor mission; and a community center.

THE GOVERNMENT is paying all expenses for about 2,400 delegates to assure that the meeting "won't be confined to the standard conference goer," Fleming said.

Flemming, who traveled around the country recently to meet with delegates, accentuated five general conclusions about the elderly.

"The old recognize that our society puts them into an inferior position," he said. "They recognize that society has made promises to them which it has not kept. The old want the opportunity of making their own decisions relative to their own lives. They want to continue their involvement in life—not be put on the back shelf. And, they want to receive dignified treatment."

The weeklong meeting will be divided into 14 major topics of consideration. Each section will be further divided into subsections of no more than 35 or 40 delegates assigned to each one. It means that 95 meetings will be simultaneously held each day.

NINE OF the discussion topics are oriented towards "needs." They are education, employment and retirement, health, income, nutrition, retirement roles and activities, spiritual well-being and transportation.

The issue of transportation, Fleming said, was not on the 1961 meeting agenda but it has become important because "a great many old people feel ostracized and isolated from life and they realize it is because there is no adequate transportation."

The other five discussion areas focus on meeting the needs of elder Americans — facilities, programs and service; government and non-government organization; planning; research and demonstration; and, training.

Of the discussion topics, Fleming said that income and the delivery of health services "are at the top of the list."

In addition, the conference will spend one morning examining "specialized" concerns. They relate aging to such topics as blindness, black Americans, Asian-Americans, Indians, Chicanos, consumerism, long-term care, legal aid, rural Americans, the religious community, the poor and vocational rehabilitation.

N.Y. work-relief OK'd; suit looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration Wednesday approved two contested New York welfare experiments, combining the nation's first federal work-relief with a key element of welfare reform.

The National Welfare Rights Organization said it will take its case to court, and enlist labor and political leaders in the fight.

"THIS IS going to become a major battle in the welfare-reform struggle," said Mrs. Buelah Sanders of New York City, chairman of NWRO.

"If Nixon gets away with this in New York," she said, "it will mean legalization of slavery again in this country."

The work-relief project requires thousands of welfare mothers to "work off" their grants by taking public-service jobs.

Secretary of Welfare Elliot L. Richardson said his approval is "subject to a requirement that the state provides additional data on their financing and administration."

HE ALSO approved a scaled-down companion program requiring some youths over the age of 15 to take jobs, and employable adults in welfare families to accept counseling, training and available public service jobs.

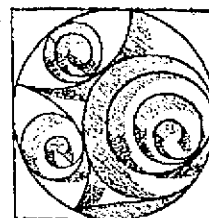

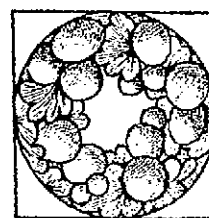

As a part of the second project, mothers receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children would be required to accept counseling if their children habitually fail to attend school. If they refused, the federal grant would be administered through a third party.

The experimental projects have been described by critics as the first attempt at widespread implementation of welfare reform legislation pending in Congress.

Controversy jars movement to freeze bodies for revival

New York Times Service

MIDDLE ISLAND, N.Y. — Gillian Cummings was so upset at her father's sudden death last year and revolted at the thought of burial that she kept him preserved above ground, sheathed in plastic wrap and frozen in liquid nitrogen.

She thus has joined the Cryonics Movement, which is devoted to the hope that future scientists will discover how to restore life.

There are at least 14 bodies in the world now frozen for this purpose, according to proponents of the movement, which has been viewed widely with skepticism.

Miss Cummings says she already is running low on money to pay the $140-a-month cost of maintaining the rigid bath and paying the rent on an industrial storage bay where an eight-foot-tall thermos-like capsule is kept containing the body of her father, Herman, who died at 42 of a heart attack.

A SECOND frozen body and two placentas are also being preserved in the capsule for a separate future rejuvenation experiment.

Miss Cummings shares her distress over what is to come with other proponents of the movement, which is becoming increasingly controversial and burdensome in the view of local officials.

Officials of Brookhaven Town, where this Long Island village is situated, recently refused permission for the Cryo-Crypt Corp. to open a capsule storage room here under a century-old church. The town's action came one day after a torchlight march of protest against the crypt on Halloween night, and in time for Election Day.

"It was a perfect tie-in," said the Conservative Party leader, Donald W. Leo, who challenged in the demonstration Cryo-Crypt's title to the Methodist Episcopal Church and also inveighed against "skeletons" in the GOP closet.

BROOKHAVEN Supervisor Charles W. Barraud, a Republican, says he is trying to find out where the frozen bodies fit into any existing zoning category. He also wonders how maintenance costs of $1,000 a year will be paid in a few years, never mind a century from now.

Privately, some town officials are concerned that with capsules tucked away privately, such as in an industrial park, they might become forsaken like love letters or old photographs for future generations to happen upon.

"We don't have the answers," Barraud said, noting he is still awaiting word from his planning and health advisers.

Edward W. Kuhrt, the 39-year-old president of Cryo-Crypt, who says he first got interested in cryonics while doing animal dissection in a college biology course, had hopes of opening the crypt a short way from the church's small old cemetery.

The headstones there, standing crooked under a patch of pine trees, carry such faded memorials as "Ella Gertrude Dayton, our little pet, died Feb. 5, 1868, 4 years, 2 months, 25 days."

"A MAN who lives too short," Kuhrt said, describing the cryonics experiment as a worthwhile gamble. "even if some bodies do suffer damage to the brain and other vital organs before they are frozen completely down to 360 degrees below zero Fahrenheit." He is hoping to be established legally soon.

He insists that a $20,000 life insurance policy, invested for its interest, is enough to cover the cost of topping off the liquid nitrogen as it boils away. The capsule and initial preparation costs an additional $8,000, he said.

Miss Cummings blames Kuhrt for bringing the crypt plan and discrediting the movement. And she prefers to keep her father in an industrial park in Farmingdale. The sharing of the capsule with a second body complicates the problem.

Kuhrt counters that Miss Cummings is mainly interested in making films about her father and his capsule. She has made one film, she said, during a month-long period in which she lived in a car at the industrial park.

U.S. medic tells new cure for mental illness

HONG KONG (UPI) —

An American doctor Wednesday described a new method for treating mental illness which he said has been successful in the U.S.

Dr. Pang L. Man, of Northville, Mich., introduced the method called SHIFT (short hospitalization, crisis intervention, with family therapy) at the 24th annual meeting of the World Federation for Mental Health.

He said the problems of the present (government) mental hospitals are long hospitalization, dehumani-zation and inadequate aftercare.

"It is a fact that the patient would respond to treatment more quickly if he or she knows that the hospitalization will be short, which would certainly prevent institutional dependency," he said.

"This project assumes that dehumanization would be minimal and that the emphasis on aftercare and family therapy would eliminate the long hospitalization. Finally, it is obvious that bed space and personnel time saved could be used for other patients."

Seattle starts paramedics to reduce coronary deaths

By ELDON BARRETT

SEATTLE (UPI) — Approximately 70 per cent of the more than 600,000 persons who die of coronary heart disease in the United States never reach the hospital. In Seattle something is being done to alleviate that situation. It is called Medic 1.

Medic 1 is a rapid response mobile intensive coronary care system, coupled with a public awareness of the importance of directly contacting help without delay in the event of a heart attack.

THE PREHOSPITAL coronary care system was initiated in Seattle in June, 1969, by Dr. Leonard A. Cobb, a cardiologist, and Fire Chief Gordon F. Vickery. The concept was first introduced in the Soviet Union about 10 years ago.

Funds from the Washington-Alaska regional medical program, the Washington State Heart Association and the State Department of Health help finance the Medic 1 program.

The Seattle fire department with 10 first aid cars was used as a base and supplemented with paramedical training of firemen adding a hospital-based intensive coronary care unit.

Records for the first year of Medic 1 show that 44 lives were saved. Ventricular fibrillation — the uncoordinated fluttering of individual muscle fibers in the heart, resulting in the loss of an effective heartbeat — was found in 225 patients. Seventy-six of those were resuscitated with 31 of them subsequently being discharged from hospitals, none with evidence of severe brain damage.

ALL OF THE 14 Seattle hospital coronary care units participate in the Medic 1 program and have cooperated in eliminating two other areas of major delay: the emergency room and the admitting office. Resuscitated patients are admitted directly to the hospital's coronary care unit upon arrival. The availability of a bed is confirmed in advance. However, the main delay usually is at the start.

"Immediate and proper resuscitative measures can mean the difference between life and death, but studies have shown that the major delay in receiving proper emergency care is between the time the patient developed symptoms and when he decided to do something about it," said Dr. Werner Samson, Seattle cardiologist.

"The first few minutes are critical and while our aid cars are so located as to reach a patient within two to five minutes after dispatch, it is absolutely essential that there be a minimum of delay in calling for emergency care whether by the patient, a physician or another person.

SAMSON said that studies show that nearly 30 per cent of those who die from coronary heart disease had seen their physician within one week prior to death, and, consequently, probably were aware that something was wrong.

The firemen who run the aid cars undergo an intensive training course after which they are expected to recognize an acute cardiac emergency and make a reasonable diagnosis.

"The fireman is expected to perform critical examinations as related to the cardiovascular, respiratory and central nervous systems and should be able to begin resuscitation, if appropriate, using accepted techniques," Samson said.

Requests for emergency aid directed to the fire department by dialing 911 on the telephone. When that occurs two vehicles are dispatched. The strategic location of the aid cars enables the nearest one to reach the scene within five minutes. The intensive coronary care unit usually arrives a few minutes later.

"It is the strategic location of the cars that is considered to make Medic 1 so effective," Samson pointed out. "It has allowed us to have the highest rate of successful resuscitations of any community with an operating mobile coronary unit."

DURING THE first 10 months of Medic 1's operation, a doctor accompanied the unit on each run. But since then physicians have relied upon radio or telephone communications when their assistance is needed.

Because of the great success of Medic 1, a new program called Medic 2 has been initiated. Under this new program, as many persons as possible will be trained to recognize symptoms and initiate proper emergency care to heart attack victims until a coronary care unit arrives on the scene.

More than 3,000 already have been trained and classes are booked up through February, by which time the list of trained persons will number more than 5,000.

Rabies cure compounded from accepted techniques

ATLANTA (UPI) — The invariably fatal disease of rabies, scourge of mankind for thousands of years, can now be cured.

A scientific paper outlining the step-by-step conquest of rabies has been written by Dr. Michael Hattwick, an expert on the disease at the National Center for Disease Control and a specialist in internal medicine.

The rabies cure, marking a new milestone in medicine, has been wrought by the skillful application of well-known medical techniques, not through the discovery of any new miracle drug, said Hattwick.

Around-the-clock supportive care, utilizing the latest medical means and the sophisticated medical apparatus found in the intensive care units of most hospitals, can conquer rabies, the 30-year-old physician said.

"In the absence of any specific antiviral agent effective once rabies symptoms have developed, the treatment of clinical rabies must rely on aggressive supportive care," Hattwick said. "We now know such care can cure."

Hattwick played a major role in saving the life of Matthew Winkler, 6, of Lima, Ohio, the world's only known survivor of rabies, who was bitten by a rabid bat Oct. 10, 1970. Despite a series of rabies vaccine shots, the youngster developed the dread disease several weeks later.

In a talk with the boy's parents and two pediatricians treating him at Lima, Hattwick convinced them his technique, applied unsuccessfully in the past to two California victims of rabies, could work, if applied in time.

Hattwick wrote that he and the pediatricians inserted a tube in young Winkler's throat to keep him from suffocating, drained off cranial fluid to keep pressure from building up in the brain, monitored his heart to forestall cardiac arrhythmia, and administered drugs to prevent convulsions and infection.

He said the method was "a collection of medically recognized techniques, no single one of which was terribly unusual. But we applied them together to a disease which no one had had the opportunity or inclination to do."

Hattwick's study, titled "Recovery from Rabies: A Case Report," will appear soon in a medical journal distributed to physicians throughout the country.

Doctors throughout the world, Hattwick believes, must now be educated to the fact that rabies can be treated successfully.

"There is no disease, other than rabies, where physicians simply give up," he said. "Three thousand years after the Psalmist's prayer for deliverance from the power of the dog, physicians still offer the victim of rabies no hope."

"This is the attitude that must be changed."

Paraplegic, tangled in rules, may lose legs

PORTLAND, Ore. (U) — Douglas Austin, a 28-year-old paraplegic has no job and no money. And he may lose his legs because he needs surgery and can't afford an operation.

Austin, who lives in Hood River, east of here, hobbled on crutches and braces to a bus depot last week and headed for Portland to seek help at the outpatient clinic of the University of Oregon Medical School.

"I don't have any money," he said, so he spent the night sitting on a bench in a Portland bus depot waiting for the outpatient clinic to open.

"MY HOOD River physician couldn't do much more," he said, "and I had already used up the three weeks in the hospital." Oregon welfare rules provide persons such as Austin with 21 days of hospitalization.

Austin has been paralyzed in both legs since 10 years ago, when a rifle bullet went side into his spine. He has painful ulcers on his thighs and Dr. Gerald M. Baur, who examined him at the outpatient clinic, said Austin needs surgery to open and drain the ulcers. If not, the infection may spread to the bone and his legs might have to be amputated, the doctor said.

BUT OREGON has no medical indigency clause, the medical school doesn't consider him a "teaching case" and hospitals in Multnomah County cannot perform the operation because county commissioners have refused to accept nonpaying patients from outside communities.

So Dr. Baur sent him to a nursing home in Portland.

All he needs is proper care, some minor surgery, careful drainage and perhaps four to six weeks of hospitalization, said a welfare case worker, Mrs. Shirley Keville.

'Corpse' revives in the mortuary

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Mrs. Belle Cordray, 54, was reported in critical condition Wednesday in Timken Mercy Hospital, four days after she had been declared officially dead and her body sent to a funeral home.

Mrs. Cordray was taken to the hospital by ambulance last Saturday after a member of her family found her unconscious in a bedroom of her home. In the hospital emergency room she was declared officially dead and her body removed to a funeral home.

As attendants prepared to embalm Mrs. Cordray's body, they detected faint signs of life. She was immediately taken back to the hospital.

William Manse, an ambulance attendant, recalled:

"We gave her oxygen and first aid and took her to the hospital. We did not wait around to watch, but when I saw the doctor he said she was dead on arrival."

Hospital officials declined to discuss the case. Kay Kern, hospital public relations director, said:

"What I will say is that patient arrived at the emergency room with no signs of life. All ordinary emergency room procedures, including artificial respiration, oxygen and external compression (heart massage) were applied without the patient responding."

Inmates tear down prison wall—sell it

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Prisoners are tearing down the walls at the Missouri State Prison and selling the pieces to souvenir hunters at 50 cents a chunk.

All the walls may not come down, but a portion of them is being sold by members of the Jefferson Jaycees, an inmate organization whose members are serving terms of 15-27 years.

Warden Harold R. Swenson said sales are brisk.

Hunks of the brown stone used to build the 10-foot high and four-foot thick walls are being broken into four-by-five inch pieces and sold as paperweights.

Cost to convert the stones to paperweights is about 2 cents. The prison novelty store charges the organization 10 cents apiece for handling them. The remaining 38 cents goes to the Jaycee fund for its projects.

Warden Swenson said the Jaycees might use some of the money to buy soda pop for inmates at Christmas.

"Since the wall is falling down, we might just as well sell it," said the Jaycee slogan promoting the project.

City employe payday but no money is available

WOBURN, Mass. (U) — It was payday for city employes Wednesday and everybody got their checks except the city clerk, auditor, treasurer, tax collector and their dozen office secretaries.

The salary accounts for these departments have run dry and so has the reserve fund. The city clerk, who hasn't been paid for two weeks now, has gone to court with his office staff to charge Mayor Edward F. Gill with failure to pay wages.

Gill refused last year to budget for pay raises voted municipal employes by the city council. In addition, a $117,000 supplement-tal budget passed by the council was declared illegal by the mayor and the tax rate not adjusted to provide for it.

It had been expected various salary accounts would begin to run out about this time. Officials say the accounts of other departments, including civil defense, the public library and maybe the fire department, will be exhausted soon.

'Tragic waste' of youth seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Office of Education has said that inattention to the special educational needs of 2 million gifted and talented children, many of them black and poor, is a "tragic waste of human potential."

"Many of these versatile and complex young people are performing far below their aptitude and are among the most neglected of persons with special needs, particularly if they come from minority or disadvantaged groups," the agency said in a report to Congress.

Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland Jr. sent copies of the report to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., saying "We welcome your advice and assistance in improving the education of one of our most neglected and potentially productive groups of students."

The report said: "Gifted and talented children are, in fact, deprived and can suffer psychological damage and permanent impairment of their abilities to function well."

Their education has "a very low priority" at federal, state and local levels, the report said.

Marland said his agency will begin activities this year under existing laws to improve federal services for gifted children, but he did not suggest new legislation, as recommended in the report by consultants Arthur D. Little, Inc.

Gifted children were identified as those who show special achievement or potential in general intellectual ability, specific academic aptitude, creative or productive thinking, leadership ability, visual and performing arts or muscular control.

Despite the difficulties of identifying such children (57 per cent of school principals surveyed said they had no gifted pupils) the government estimates there are between 1.5 and 2.5 million in elementary and secondary schools.

"The gifted child is not necessarily a prodigy or a loner, despite the fact that he develops special interests early," the report said.

"Typically, half of the gifted have taught themselves to read before school entry. Some of them learn to read as early as two years and appreciable numbers are reading at four."

Marland said such children "cannot survive educational neglect and apathy."

Conservatives fear children care plan

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservatives in Congress and across the country are mobilizing to try to kill a proposed child day-care center plan that they fear will lead to "collectivized child raising" reminiscent of the Nazi youth movement.

"Conservatives are uniting on this as never before," said Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio. "School busing didn't get this much action."

The objective of a nationwide letter-writing campaign urging a presidential veto is a provision in the $5 billion authorization bill for the office of economic opportunity that would finance day-care center offering health, educational and nutritional services free for needy children and at a fee for youngsters from more affluent families.

The compromise bill, approved by House-Senate negotiators, authorizes $100 million in spending for the voluntary child care program this year and up to $2 billion in the 1972-73 fiscal year.

IF THE measure clears Congress, it faces a possible veto by President Nixon, not on the basis of the conservatives' arguments but because the child care plan might undo his welfare reform proposal to provide help for working mothers. The OEO provision would provide free day care services for non-working mothers as well as those with jobs.

Sen. James Buckley, the Republican - Conservative from New York, said it "may prove to be one of the most deeply radical steps ever taken by Congress" and won approval of amendments stating that no child could be enrolled without parental consent.

One amendment says nothing in the bill "shall be construed or applied in such a manner as to infringe upon or usurp the moral and legal rights and responsibilities of parents or guardians with respect to the moral, mental, emotional or physical development of their children."

Another specifies that "no child shall be subject to any research or experimentation under this act, other than routine testing and normal program evaluation."

THE conservative publication, "Human Events," has begun an editorial campaign against the bill. The American conservative union has urged citizens to flood Congress and the White House with letters of protest. Chapters of a new "Emergency Committee For Children" have sprung up in many states.

Ashbrook said the child care plan is "a giant step down the road toward a totalitarian state."

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., said: "I think it is anti-American in concept and tradition. It is a question of collectivized child raising."

"This is certainly reminiscent of the Nazi youth movement; in fact it goes far beyond Hitler's wildest dreams of the most outlandish of the Communist plans," said Rep. John Rarick, D-La.

BUT THE chief sponsor of the House plan, Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., stressed the day-care centers would be strictly voluntary. "Nobody wants to command mothers and fathers to have their children participate in these programs," he said.

A liberal spokesman who helped draft the Senate measure and asked not to be identified, said, "the conservatives have a fear that we're giving up our children to the state and that the kids will be guinea pigs. It's a kooky fear. It's like fluoridation."

Glackens' work to National Gallery of Art

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Metropolitan Museum wanted William Glackens' most important painting — it was painted on Fifth Avenue and we're on Fifth Avenue, they said in effect — but his son decided to give it instead to the National Gallery of Art.

The formal presentation was made Tuesday by Ira Glackens and his wife. The painting, "Family Group," is the largest and perhaps the best done by William Glackens, one of the group called The Eight who brought realism into American art.

Ira Glackens and his wife, who have lived in Washington for 14 years, were motivated in part by the proximity of the gallery. "Here, we'll be able to see it," Mrs. Glackens told a reporter.

Whites fear crime wave

N.Y. housing project stirs uproar

NEW YORK — Forest Hills, an otherwise quiet white middle-class neighborhood, has been in an uproar for the last week with angry protests against a planned $30-million low-income housing project that some residents say will doom the community.

While the residents argue that the project will bring crime to their peaceful tree-lined streets and jam already crowded public services, proponents say the opposition is racially motivated.

"It isn't a black and white issue at all," said a 43-year-old housewife.

"There may be bigots around, but there is legitimate dismay at what is going on," she said. "The middle class isn't going to be put upon any more." She asked not to be identified.

Besides the protesting residents in the Forest Hills section of Queens, Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney, Mayor John V. Lindsay and Sen. James L. Buckley, R-Con-N.Y., have all become involved in the controversy.

A RALLY last Thursday set the stage for a torch-tossing, stone-throwing demonstration at the 8.5-acre construction site near the Long Island Expressway. It was followed by fiery exchanges of charges.

Residents of the area, a largely Jewish section of this city, contend that the project's prospective occupants will not only increase the crime rate, but also glut the schools in the community, which is already jammed with apartment houses.

"For three years, I was in a Nazi concentration camp," said Eugene Admon, a resident. "How against anyone? But I and could I possibly have hate others are afraid for our lives."

The project, proposed in 1966, will be made up of three 24-story air-conditioned apartment buildings to house 840 families.

Donald H. Elliott, chairman of the City Planning Commission, says that 40 per cent of the units will go to the elderly and that fewer than 450 children from the project will attend local schools.

FIRST proposed as part of a "scatter site" program to place such projects away from dense urban centers, the project has survived two court tests.

It has been approved by the Planning Commission and the Board of Estimate, which controls the city's money. The Department of Housing and Urban Development also gave approval, necessary because the federal government will pay the principal and interest on city bonds.

For the many Forest Hills residents who fled from other parts of the city that have become dangerous slums, the prospect of becoming neighbors to low-income families is fearful.

"This is a peaceful neighborhood, and we'd like to keep it that way," said Ida Warren, 65. She left the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, now one of the city's most crime-ridden areas, 21 years ago.

John Kent, 61, a retired businessman who has lived in Forest Hills for 12 years, cited newspaper accounts of muggings in a public housing project. "So you're afraid," he said.

The unidentified housewife, whose husband is an assistant sales manager of ladies' accessories, said the couple and their two children left the Bronx two years ago when their neighborhood "started to deteriorate."

Referring to crime in housing projects, especially the murder of an elderly woman in a Manhattan project recently, she asked, "What are we supposed to do when we see that. How are people supposed to feel?"

She added, "I've lived in the Bronx, and I saw it happen there. You're going to see them moving out like you've never seen before — all at once. Forest Hills will become a place where no young couple with children will want to go."

Although site clearance began Monday, Jerry Birbach, 42, a realtor who is president of the Forest Hills Residents Association, vowed, "This project can and will be stopped."

HE WENT on, "We've got legal action that will knock this city for a loop." He declined to specify the action.

Buckley, who opposed the project, got Romney to review the plans, but the secretary ruled in Washington on Monday that he could not reverse contract commitments to build the complex.

After last Thursday's rally and rock-hurling demonstration, Lindsay said he "absolutely" would not reconsider the project.

"The disturbance put this city to the test of whether we have the power of our convictions; whether we shall obey the law or whether we shall defy it; whether, finally, we will guide ourselves by rationality and truth, or whether we shall permit ourselves to be misled by misunderstanding and fear," Lindsay declared at City Hall.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., urged New Yorkers "to respond affirmatively and to respect the decision" made by Romney.

Since last Thursday's protest by 500 residents, there has been picketing daily at the site, but a court restraining order has prohibited the mostly middle-age and elderly demonstrators from interfering with the earth-moving machines.

Reiterating the group's hope to impeach Lindsay and at least damage the mayor's political career, Birbach said, "It's an out and out lie when they call us racists."

JOINING some of the protests were two assemblymen and two city councilmen.

"I'm fearful that this neighborhood will go the way of neighborhoods in Brooklyn and the Bronx, where low-income housing was built," said City Councilman Arthur Katzman, a Democrat.

Elliott said the project would help ease the city's "serious housing shortage" and would "make available freedom of choice housing."

Buckley, contending that the residents were denied "an effective voice in the decision-making process," said he would take the matter to President Nixon.

"WHY WORRY ABOUT RUNNING OUT OF SHOPPING DAYS? WE'RE ALREADY OUT OF MONEY!"

The area, located in New York City's Borough of Queens, is known internationally as the site of Forest Hills Stadium, where Davis Cup matches and professional tennis championships are held.

By CORNELIUS HURLEY

LINCOLN, Mass. (AP) — Sumner Smith is mad at the U.S. government for giving away the Swan Islands, a tiny Caribbean group that Smith says he owns and Washington says he doesn't.

Smith, 81, who lives on a 300-acre farm here that he's operated all his life, calls the three-square-mile property some 100 miles off the coast of Honduras "my islands." He says the government gave them away out from under him.

"WE'D BEEN leasing land to them for years," he said Tuesday in an interview. "Then they come along and kicked us the hell out. We leased land to the CAA (Civil Aeronautics Administration) for a weather station and for communications, and now they tell us we don't own it, and they might go after the rent they paid us.

"That's the trouble with the big bureaucracy — one fellow doesn't know what the other one is doing."

The government did give the islands away. Robert H. Finch, on a special mission for President Nixon, signed the islands — Greater Swan, Lesser Swan and a reef — over to the government of Honduras on Monday.

Honduras has been claiming ownership for half a century, basing the claim on the fact they first were reported by Christopher Columbus.

The islands first were claimed by the United States by Capt. Alonzo Adams, who sailed out of Mobile, Ala., in 1893 and who took advantage of a federal law which gave title to anyone who would use the islands to mine guano — bird droppings piled up for centuries and a source of fertilizer.

IT WAS from Adams that a Boston group headed by a Dr. Brooks obtained title, setting up the Swan Island Commercial Co., to exploit the island.

"They put a lot of money into it, clearing the jungle and planting cocoanut trees, and after a while most of them got sick of putting money into it and just backed out," said Smith. "My father was one of them."

"Back in 1950, I took possession for the note they owed. I gave all I could find a chance to make claims, but they didn't."

Smith said the government apparently recognized his ownership during World War II when agents came to him to lease the land for an airport on the island.

"They took me down there with engineers. We went on a PBY seaplane from Miami to Honduras, and by a fishing boat to the islands . . .

"Later they cleared land for an air strip. They won't let big planes in there, just small ones."

THEN CAME the notice that the United States was taking title to the land. And on Monday, Finch signed a treaty — which must still be approved by the U. S. Senate — ceding the islands to Honduras.

Smith said he tried going to court with suit against the government.

"All we did was pass interrogatories back and forth, and now they've given the islands away."

He said he doesn't know now what he can do to get payment from the government, or whether it is possible.

Smith said he planned to turn it over to his two sons and two daughters to continue the family ownership.

How to trim a holiday gift list

It is an indisputable fact that a gift that includes part of the giver... her time, her creativity, her handiwork... is more cherished than one which is merely purchased. Those legions of aunts, grandmothers and friends who keep their knitting, crocheting and needlepoint skills (among others) up to date, can be sure of the warmest welcome for the products of their clever hands.

But what of the vast majority of us who lack the extensive free time and/or the professionalism that comes from a lifetime of needlework? Are we to be cut off from the thrill of dispensing largesse from our workbaskets?

"Not so," says Joan Gorczyk, fashion counselor. "There are beautiful hand-crafted gifts that can be made for every member of the family that do not require either great skill or oodles of time." The secret, according to Miss Gorczyk, is to utilize trims from the notions departments that already contain decorative elements that look hand-made.

There are trims to purchase by the yard that look like fine crewel embroidery, like needlepoint, like tapestry, like crocheting or like many other time-consuming crafts. With these trims it is possible in short order to create handsome gifts that will gain new respect for you from people who never thought you could thread a needle.

Women's vest

Tapestry-like tie

How about a tapestry-like tie for the man in your life? It really isn't difficult and the result looks like an extremely costly item from some exclusive haberdashery shop.

MATERIALS:

4 1/2 yards embroidered trim 1 3/4 inches wide
Simplicity pattern 9192
3/4 yards lining fabric

HOW TO:

Cut trim in diagonal strip to cover the lining. Top-stitch the trim to the lining. Following pattern instructions, fold to form tie. Turn unfinished edge under about 1/4" and slip stitch. If you choose your trim carefully you will have produced a "one-of-a-kind" tie your guy will flip over.

Thanksgiving is a time for giving of themselves

By ALMA KIRKLAND

Some people say thanks by giving.

The Fort MacArthur Teen Club singing group will say it with music to the aged. The enlisted wives of Navy Wives Club of America No. One will say it by working to collect money for a little girl with a rare heart defect.

Here are the thoughts behind the gifts.

It was no giddy gaggle of teen-agers who gathered in the home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Foster Taft to rehearse songs they will sing for patients of the Sea Crest Convalescent Hospital in San Pedro on Saturday.

Breaking after a medley of religious songs which ended with the "Jesus Loves Me," pretty 14-year-old Marie Taft said, "We love to sing and play our guitars, that's why we want to go — to share our joy in playing with others."

Nodding in agreement, Kathy Kaiser underlined the serious intent of the group — "Older people often think teen-agers don't care about religion or people. That's why this will be more than just going and singing. It will be talking and sharing and reading Scripture with them."

EYES SHINING and without embarrassment Marie said, "These people are so alone. We want them to feel loved. I guess you can say that's what the group is all about — sharing and love."

The co-educational Teen Club, which meets each Monday night at Chapel Center on the Post is open to teens of all military families as well as civilians who work at Fort MacArthur.

All members are engaged in civic projects of one type or another — holding bake sales, car washes and food drives for the Olympic Fund and Salvation Army.

Two other spokesmen for the group, Mark and Sharon Smith, told why. "It makes us feel we're helping the community, not just sitting back in our little fort doing nothing," said Sharon.

Speaking of another purpose of the Teen Club was Mark, "When you move a lot, it can be hard to get acquainted. Here, everybody is military — we're united in that.

"But being united doesn't make us want to be separate."

WHILE TEENS WORK to bridge the community gap in San Pedro, the hearts of enlisted wives in NWCA No. One have gone out to a little girl in South Gate.

Jo Avalos heard of the plight of tiny, four-year-old Deena Moye, who was born with four rare heart defects which Jo explained in layman's language to fellow members.

"These defects equal two holes in her heart, a tight heart valve and pulmonary veins which are not hooked up right."

"Since Deena was born she has had two heart catheterizations and then underwent open heart surgery in 1970. She now needs to undergo open heart pump repair surgery."

As wives looked at a picture of the frail tot, they learned other important facts. The surgery, to be done at the Mayo Clinic, will cost between 10 and 20 thousand dollars.

The South Gate Junior Woman's Club has undertaken the monumental task of raising the medical costs.

THEIR HEARTS were touched and the Navy wives wanted to help — but how?

Joyce Smith, the club president, put it this way, "So much money is needed and we are not a wealthy club. We decided to begin by giving of ourselves."

The decision was made to have a Deena Moye night at the Long Beach Commissary with the Navy wives bagging groceries.

Said Joyce with a mischievous twinkle, "The best time to do this is the day after pay day. What sailor, wife or mother could possibly resist giving a generous tip when it might help give a little girl a chance to live?"

If others wish to say thanks by giving, they may send donations to the Deena Moye Heart Fund, P.O. Box 1811, South Gate, Calif., 90280.

IF MUSIC BRINGS you joy, then you should share it, believe Fort MacArthur teens who plan to sing for aged. Playing guitars are Kathy Kaiser (left), Amy Kaiser, Marie Taft, Mary Myers. Singing are Helena Hammond and Therese Fitzgerald.

Dr. Richard Fairchild favors separate boards of education with separate membership.

Dr. Wiley Garner prefers the status quo of a governing board for the college and unified districts with the same members.

LWV hears pros, cons of two boards

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

Will Long Beach City College's faculty and student community be better served with a completely separate governing board?

That was the issue Tuesday morning when Dr. Richard Fairchild of the LBCC Academic Senate and Dr. Wiley D. Garner, LBCC president, presented opposing viewpoints on the question to Long Beach League of Women Voters at a meeting in El Dorado Park Nature Center.

Speaking against two boards with separate memberships was Dr. Garner, who has been at LBCC for 25 years and its president since 1961.

He said there already are two separate boards, but with a common membership. The state mandated separate financing and salaries for unified and college districts in 1968.

Under the mandate, it was left up to the current boards to decide if they wanted to create a separate board for the college district or continue to serve both.

The Long Beach Board of Education has determined to remain the sole board for both districts, but still has the option to change its mind.

HOPING TO PERSUADE it to do just that is the faculty at LBCC, according to Dr. Fairchild, who favors totally separate boards.

"It's only a matter of time. Entirely separate boards are inevitable," he said. "There are only five districts left in the state which have not gone to completely separate boards."

He sees the state developing a system of financing for all higher education, including community colleges, possibly through adoption of a statewide property tax. "Then there will have to be two different boards."

Long Beach City College is the largest community college in the country, he pointed out. "We need a board totally committed to our problems, not focusing on grades K-12, with a college population in Long Beach of 28,000 students and a district student enrollment of 70,000, no five-member board can do justice to the needs of both."

"The board meets four times a month as a unified district board and only twice a month as a college board. They get paid for the four meetings, but not for the other two. They're busy and tired people and cannot devote their full time to both boards."

HE CLAIMS the current board is not genuinely interested in the business and technology campus and that morale among both faculty and students is low. "We do not have enough time to present our problems to the board at two meetings."

Dr. Garner, however, sees it as an entirely new ballgame with a new board. The current board members would have the choice of which board they wanted to serve on, with the remaining members elected.

He fears a situation such as developed in Los Angeles, where the new community college board became a political arena and stepping stone for higher office seekers. He's afraid a new board might reverse the progress already made under the old board.

Presently W. Odie Wright serves as superintendent for both districts. With a completely separate board, a new superintendent would be named for just the college district, who would probably also serve as president of LBCC.

RECENTLY the State Senate passed a bill which mandates the voters of Long Beach to cast their ballots for or against two separate governing boards.

"Why is an election necessary when the present board represents the people and has decided not to separate?" asked Dr. Garner.

And, to further complicate the issue, under the 1968 bill requiring separation of districts financially, if the voters turned down two boards, the present board could still elect to divide into entirely separate bodies.

Dr. Fairchild added that the cost factor — would two boards mean more or less money? — hasn't been determined. At the moment, the college district pays $500,000 to the unified district for services rendered, including room rental in high schools, use of data processing for payrolls and maintenance of school grounds.

Suburbanite's plight: home is IF you find it

By ERMA BOMBECK

The United States Census Bureau has announced a "cooling off" in the flight to the suburbs. I wondered why. For the answer, I attended a meeting of the Suburban Planners' Club and Harp Society, who meet on a regular basis for group therapy.

The group concurred unanimously that the reason people have halted their march to the suburbs is because they are sick and tired of trying to find their own homes each evening in a ghetto of "look-alike" structures.

"It used to be a challenge," said one man. "I'd stand at the end of the street, close my eyes and say, 'My mother told me to pick the very best one and y-o-u are not it, etc.,' but that got sorta corny," he said.

"I could tell my house by counting three down from the fella with the white petunia bed by his porch," confided another. "Then, when his lousy petunias died, I just seemed to drift."

"I NEVER MINDED it," whined a small blond. "Lotsa times I'd get kissed on the back of the neck by a neighbor who got into the wrong house by mistake. In fact, Fred who lives two doors down, gets confused a lot of times. We just sorta laugh about it, and I always say, 'To err is human . . . to forgive divine.'"

"There's no doubt about it," said a voice from the back row, "we were tricked. When we viewed the model, it looked like Washington's house at Mt. Vernon. Three weeks later . . . whammo! The ranch bricks had a population explosion."

"Don't be too harsh on the developers," said another voice. "Each house had some distinctive feature. Let's see, I had the front door that was hung backwards."

"Yeah, and I had the only above-ground septic tank in the 500 block," volunteered another. "Melvin, didn't you get that piece of unusual shrubbery in your yard?"

"Right," said Melvin. "It bloomed once a year between 4 and 5 a.m. on March 16. In between that time, it just attracted flies. At least it was a clue."

"THIS SOUNDS like a serious problem," I interrupted. "Have you any plans to correct the situation?"

"Oh yes," said the leader of the group. "We have a few ideas we've been kicking around for spring. Burt here is going to dig a trench in his front yard. Claude is going to change milk companies and get a different milk box on his porch. And I understand Fred's wife is erecting a neon arrow that lights up his house number in three colors. We've got a list you can check things on. Right now, group, we'd better adjourn. It's beginning to turn dark and we all know what that means!"

... Also of service

IT WAS a clear day and you could see, if not forever, blue skies extending out over the ocean, down the coast and inland for miles.

The view was enjoyed by all who attended an informal luncheon at Peggy Bergin's home in Whites Point, San Pedro.

Almost as spectacular was the bouillabaisse with sherry and topped with Parmesan cheese agreed suppers, Mmes. Vera Le-Broton, Amy Betzer and Peggy (Scoop) Wilson.

But, it was the chocolate-melt - in - your - mouth - mint mousse that had Mmes. Jo Graham, Mary Fay and Carmen Gallagher loosening their belts a notch.

Carmen, Amy and Peg Bergin will probably be attending a very exclusive viewing of the Army-Navy game on Saturday. Each year the local alumni of Annapolis, Class of '42, of which their husbands are members in good standing, pool TVs and snacks while they cheer, "Go Navy!"

AT THE HELM in Fleet Officers' Wives' Club are a new slate of officers headed by Mrs. Penny Evans.

Her board includes Mmes. Pauline Hurd, Beth Betsch, Pat Krumm, Bonnie Steinbrink, Arilla St. Laurant, Mary Waddell, Kathy Mills, Eileen Gatliffe, Joyce Simmons, Lilien Park, Barbara Livingston, Roberta Black, Ann Hoffman, Judy Morris.

THE FAITHFUL of Long Beach Navy Relief Society will be honored on Dec. 1 at 10:30 a.m. It is the semi-annual Winter Awards coffee and all volunteers are invited.

The Aces on bridge

TEAM CAPTAIN

The two most-talked-about teams of the decade will meet in a $15,000 stakes match next month. The unforgettable Italian Blue Team has been coaxed out of a two-year retirement to play against The Aces. The match will total 140 deals, to be held at the Las Vegas Hilton, Dec. 7-11. The latest exhibition techniques developed for spectator appeal by The Aces will be used to bring the play-by-play action to the public.

Today's hands were played against members of the Blue Team during the 1970 Omar Sharif Bridge Circus tour. Study and compare the results as a preview to the "Match of the Century."

Joyce Dye to be installed as Jobie queen

Bethel 109, Job's Daughters of Artesia, will hold its 80th installation of officers next Saturday, Dec. 4, at 7:30 p.m. in Palos Verdes Masonic Temple, 5155 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

Assuming the duties of honored queen is Joyce Dye.

In the match Ace Bobby Goldman chose three no trump and went down after Pietro Forquet led the spade jack. The queen was covered by Benito Garozzo, who was allowed to hold the trick, and the spades were cleared. When Goldman led clubs to dummy, Forquet played the king and the club suit was removed from the picture. At the other table, North (Omar Sharif) opened four clubs and was raised to game. A 450-point swing to the Circus.

Question No. 2. You are South, no vulnerability, and hold:

At the table, Pietro Forquet doubled four spades but failed to find the clairvoyant lead of a diamond to beat the hand. At the other table Aces Bob Hamman and Mike Lawrence found the excellent sacrifice (they wouldn't have found a diamond lead either) of five hearts, down only 100. The Aces gained a swing of 490 points on the deal.

DEAR ABBY

Abby gives thanks to readers

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR READERS: Today is the day to reflect and give special thanks for our blessings. My personal blessings are many. May I share with you a few letters for which I am extremely thankful? Happy Thanksgiving!

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I don't think you realize the impact your column on V.D. had throughout the nation.

Your advice to minors to telephone their public health department if they suspected they had V.D. brought a flood of calls. So many youngsters did not realize that in some states a doctor is able to treat a minor for V.D. without informing his parents. You deserve a medal.

AN M.D. IN L.A.

You had in your column saying, "Tell your parents at once. They are your best friends and no matter what they have said, I promise you they will help you."

You were right. Our daughter came home.

GRATEFUL IN EL PASO

DEAR ABBY: Just a line to say a heartfelt thanks for the advice you gave me. I was so upset until I read your letter telling me the harm I was doing myself because I wasn't willing to forgive my husband. You pointed out that I was really punishing myself by trying to punish him. You were so right, Abby. Thanks for making me see the light.

PASADENA

DEAR ABBY: I'm an old lady who lives alone, and sometimes the brightest spot in my day is the pleasure I get from reading your column. You tickle me so much I often laugh right out loud. Don't ever lose your sense of humor, Abby.

Friends of Free Clinic seek funds, members

"The steady stream of people of all ages who use the facility is testimony enough of the need for a free clinic. Where else would they go for medical service?"

Speaking was Mrs. Samuel B. Leider, who recently was elected president of the Friends of Long Beach Free Clinic.

The Friends, who boast nearly 100 members, was organized February 1970 with a two-fold purpose: to raise funds for the operations of the clinic and to recruit voluntary professional staff. "The latter is much easier than the former," commented Mrs. Leider.

Compounding the fund-raising woes is the desire to purchase the building at 1228 Pine Ave., which houses the clinic. "We have to raise money for a down payment without cutting into the crucial funds needed just to operate the clinic."

OTHER NEW board members helping Mrs. Leider grapple with these problems are Mmes. Ben Aronson, Russell Cocks and Abe Westil.

Among Mrs. Leider's goals for the year is establishment of quarterly meetings for the members. The first fund-raising event is planned for February.

Board puts life in body they killed

By GIL BAILEY
Contributing Editor

The Los Angeles County Environmental Quality Control Committee, which died a week ago at the bang of an unheard gavel, has been resurrected by the County Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors, after receiving a strong air pollution control report from the committee last Tuesday, expressed their thanks to the committee, recessed for a picture-taking session with its members, and then voted to "disband" the group at the suggestion of board chairman Warren Dorn of Pasadena.

The committee left the board chambers without knowing it had just been disbanded.

THIS TUESDAY the board passed a motion which read: "Amend previous action of the board to reflect the environmental quality control committee was deactivated and not disbanded. Reactivate the committee to study environmental matters referred to it by the board."

However, the reactivated committee may have a different membership than the five-member panel which brought in the air pollution control recommendations.

"If there are some appointees to be changed this is the time to do it," said Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

Dorn proposed the group be given "guidelines," while Supervisor Frank Bonelli also mentioned the possibility of changing "one or two members."

SPECULATION centered over the possible replacement of Mrs. Ellen Stern Harris, an outspoken conservationist and main architect of the controversial air pollution study.

The committee was officially reactivated on the motion of Supervisor Burton Chace of Long Beach. Chace was absent because of illness last week, although it was his motion which was amended to kill the committee.

"We have a lot of environmental problems on the Palos Verdes Peninsula and in Malibu that we need guidance on," Chace said. "I hadn't realized you wanted to abandon the entire committee."

THE COMMITTEE'S death did not come to light until the amendment was penciled in on the motion. A later check of the tape recording of the session showed that the action came after the photographic recess.

"We have a recommendation of a motion here in thinking and disbanding this outstanding group of citizens who have made this great contribution," said Dorn. Chace's written motion said nothing about disbanding the group.

Supervisor Eugene Debs then made the motion which passed without objection from the four members of the board present.

Dorn contended his suggestion was standard procedure when a citizens' group has completed a special assignment. The committee was formed more than 18 months ago by the board to study environmental matters. Last fall it was given the specific task of investigating air pollution as a result of a series of stories in the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram.

THE COMMITTEE produced a report with 16 recommendations, 12 of which came under the direct jurisdiction of the board, including strong and specific actions which the board might take.

Dorn in his comments Tuesday was critical of "terrible" stories which have appeared in the Independent, Press-Telegram concerning air pollution.

Chace when he presented his motion Tuesday included a request that county departments be required to report back on the air pollution control recommendations within 90 days. The original motion, including the amendment, did not specify that the county departments should so report.

Board members contended that they did expect reports back as soon as possible, but they failed to act on that section of Chace's motion.

HOWEVER, Supervisors Chace, Hahn and Bonelli all said they felt the committee had a great deal of work left to do.

Bonelli said it was "assigned" to disband the committee.

The motion did not specify whether the committee was to continue with its present membership, or whether new members will be appointed. Chace said later he was satisfied with his committee member, Jerry Hilby, an attorney, and planned no change.

The committee was instructed to hold monthly meetings and to report quarterly to the board.

Dorn in his comments said the report of the committee had praised Robert Chace, county air pollution control officer.

DORN IN relating the history of the committee said, "Then after some time had gone by this reporter from the Long Beach paper had this terrible story in there about the fact that Mr. Chace (county air pollution control officer) and his department were not doing the proper job in various areas. And there was just a fine study on the motion by Mr. Chace and I thought the report was an excellent one, and, incidentally, the report was very complementary to Mr. Chace and his staff. Most of the things they suggested, we do, we're already doing ..."

Alabama city hit by air crisis

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Looking north from Red Mountain, the iron ore-seamed ridge around which this city's steel industry is built, Jones Valley and the heart of Birmingham sprawl for miles, usually under a thick pall of smoke and gray haze.

Workers in Birmingham are used to air pollution, but last week the concentration of particular matter, solid matter suspended in the air, reached near-crisis levels. The federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) took the unprecedented step of obtaining a federal court order which required 23 industries to curb the operations which produced air pollution. An estimated 5,000 workers were sent home and the court action raised more questions than it answered.

FOR TWO consecutive days, particulate counts in the heavily industrialized North Birmingham section exceeded 750 micrograms per cubic meter, more than twice the federal alert level.

Some residents, cynical about their filthy air, wondered why federal officials stepped in before the pollution index reached 1,000 micrograms, considered the emergency level.

"One thousand micrograms should never be met," said John C. White, regional director in Atlanta of enforcement for the EPA. "This is the critical level."

"After 48 hours over 750 micrograms, we determined that it was the equivalent to 1,000 micrograms for 24 hours."

WHITE said the decision was made to go into court to seek the restraining orders because of the difficulty of precisely predicting the weather and because "I think industry may be more cooperative in the future when asked to clean up the air."

"I think it has gotten their attention. I does set a precedent," he added. "We can count on a possibly favorable action by the district judges in the future."

The effect of the federal action will be hard to accurately assess until the next time a pollution crisis threatens. But local health officials expressed dismay about the lack of voluntary cooperation from some industries.

Local and state authorities were confused over what further legal action they could take beyond asking for voluntary cut-backs in emissions.

THE NEW state Air Pollution Control Commission, created by the legislature to replace an earlier, ineffectual agency, had only been in office for two days.

"If the industries don't comply with our requests, I don't know which way we're going to turn," a spokesman at the Jefferson County Health Department said.

"Nobody is really sure how far we can go under the new state law. Right now we're working under the emergency provisions of the act, but we will probably have to go to the EPA if voluntary compliance doesn't come."

Federal authorities cleared up most doubts they will take action where they feel pollution is a danger to health, but there are still divisions about the effect antipollution moves will have.

SOME factory workers, not unlike those in many cities, see smoke-filled skies as a sign of prosperity. Layoffs are common in the steel mills and industries centered around them.

Alabama city finds air crisis

abatement equipment may be a factor in causing some plants to move out, a rumor often circulated — but denied by company officials — about the U.S. Steel facilities, which employ more than 14,000 in the area.

Other workers, some of them young men who see industry as trying to dodge its responsibility, want the air cleaned up now. Some older workers, their retirement assured, simply don't care about the operation of the mills; they want clean skies.

O. M. Duggan, a U.S. Steel employee at the Ensley works for 32 years, said the pollution problem has been facing members of the United Steel Workers union for "quite a while."

"ONE member raised the question recently that he didn't know whether it was better to die of starvation or emphysema," Duggan said.

"I don't think it's reached the epidemic stage. I don't know how alarmed we should be."

"We certainly hope we can lower the count and at the same time maintain the jobs of our people."

"The situation is building up tension," he said. "They (the company) haven't moved quickly enough. They have been aware of the problem for several years, but it keeps building every day," Duggan said.

There are still those in the industry and business establishment who say proposed antipollution requirements are unreasonable. But others say they recognize they must take steps to protect the environment, including some in the steel industry.

U.S. STEEL, easily the most visible air polluter, earlier this year announced plans to clean up most of its open-hearth furnace discharges within two years, the time required to engineer and install the equipment.

It said only the nine open hearths of the Ensley works would not be equipped and those were excluded because the plant is considered only a marginal operation with a maximum of four furnaces operating during peak steel-demand periods of recent years.

"We are concerned with any threat to public health," a U.S. Steel spokesman said.

AN EPA spokesman said, however, that the intransigence of U.S. Steel was largely responsible for the unprecedented action of seeking a restraining order.

"U.S. Steel did nothing, although they have the major plants involved and contribute 35 per cent of the particulate emissions" that cause Birmingham's air pollution problem, the official said.

A spokesman for the firm denied the charge and said "we felt we complied" with requests for voluntary emission cutbacks. County Health Officer Dr. George Hardy listed U.S. Steel as one of the five firms he said refused to cooperate.

Cameron McDonald, leader of an activist group with the acronym GASP (Greater Birmingham Alliance to Stop Pollution), said she felt county health authorities had done all they could before the EPA moved.

"ALL THE county can do now is ask voluntary action," Miss McDonald said. "They weren't doing it voluntarily, the bigger polluters whose stockholders and boards of directors do not live in the state of Alabama."

"They (the big polluters) have not been particularly responsible citizens of Birmingham."

"The suit marks the first time the EPA has really gotten into the air pollution fight," she said.

Senate votes sea dump curb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Warned that the world can no longer consider the oceans the "universal sewer of mankind," the Senate Wednesday voted 73 to 0 to curb the dumping of waste materials in waters beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.

The House has passed similar legislation and the differences will have to be reconciled in a Senate.

Tahoe planners study controls

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Three of four key ordinances to be used in enforcing the proposed Tahoe regional plan were presented Wednesday to the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency.

Included was a land-use ordinance which establishes regional districts and population density controls as well as land coverage limitations.

Also presented were ordinances covering construction on the shore of Lake Tahoe and establishing minimum standards and regulations for grading.

To be completed shortly is a subdivision ordinance, the last of the major ordinances needed to complete the plan before its scheduled adoption date of Dec. 22.

House conference committee. The bill bans under all circumstances the dumping of radiological, chemical, or biological warfare agents, and high level radioactive wastes.

The dumping of all other wastes would be banned without a permit by the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

The legislation would authorize $5.5 million for fiscal 1972 and $3.6 million for fiscal 1973 to carry out provision of the bill.

The bill applies only to waters outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States. Waters within the jurisdictional limits are protected by other legislation.

In its report, the Senate Commerce Committee said, "we have treated to oceans as enormous and indestructible... the universal sewer of mankind."

"Previously, we thought that the legendary immensity of the ocean was such that man could do nothing against such a gigantic force," the report added.

"But the real volume of the ocean is very small when compared to the volume of the earth and to the volume of toxic wastes that man can produce with his technological capability," the report said.

The bill also provides for a comprehensive program of research on the effects of ocean dumping and sets a five-year goal for finding an alternate method for disposing of waste material.

Trade curbs studied in fight to protect salmon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration told Congress Wednesday it would consider using its authority to block imports from nations whose fishing ravages such species as the North Atlantic salmon.

"The United States is faced with an ever increasing number of fishery conservation problems," Donald L. McKernan, special assistant for Fisheries and Wildlife at the State Department, told the Senate subcommittee on oceans and atmosphere.

"Conservation would need to be given to taking trade measures as necessary to support these conservation programs," McKernan said.

Several bills before the Senate, including one already approved by the House, would give the administration authority to embargo imports of fish products of nations considered offenders.

The principal aim of the bill would be to protect the North Atlantic salmon, though it could include other species, which are largely reared in New England streams but are largely taken in international waters.

Fish illness soars, Congress told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious fish disease in mountain streams and fish hatcheries has reached "a point of no return," a federal wildlife official told Congress Wednesday.

Dr. Joseph Linduska, associate director for the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, urged approval of a bill to provide tax breaks for fish industry losses caused by disease.

Linduska said channel catfish virus has spread through nine states since 1968 and four commercial farms and now threatens the catfish industry which had 1971 sales of $31 million.

"Several serious fish diseases hang over two major salmonid programs like the proverbial 'sword of Damocles,'" Linduska also told the Senate subcommittee on oceans and atmosphere. "Whirling" disease, he said has been detected in watersheds of the Columbia River Basin and in a tributary to Lake Michigan.

Linduska urged the subcommittee to approve legislation which would give authority to the Secretary of Interior to launch disease control programs and allow for tax-free indemnification of industry losses to disease.

Police believe TV show gave killer idea

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A police department spokesman has suggested that a quiet Army veteran who killed five of his fellow employees in a paint brush factory in a 20-minute shooting spree got the idea from a television show.

Dennis Hill, the spokesman, said: "There are a lot of similarities between this case and an episode of Hawaii-Five-O."

Prison's chess player in sly move—out door

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Warden Joseph Brierley Wednesday disclosed a second prisoner has failed to return to Western Penitentiary from a chess tournament at Carnegie-Mellon University.

The prison chess team, "The Wall Knights," lost its second member Sunday when Verla G. Conard, 40, serving 3 to 10 years for armed robbery, moved unobserved to an exit at the university's Skibo Hall after playing a match Sunday, the warden said.

The previous week, prisoner David Moran, 39, serving 2 to 4 years for receiving stolen goods, made a similar move after a tournament at Carnegie-Mellon and is still at large.

"I'm afraid we won't be invited back to the university if this keeps up," Brierley said.

THE KILLER, Raymond D. Ferrell-el, 30, a quiet Army veteran who was liked by the workers and supervisors at the PPG factory, recuperated from police gunshot wounds today.

Hill said that the Oct. 19 episode of Hawaii-Five-O involved a deranged Army veteran, who munched chocolate candy while blazing away at passersby, at random, with a rifle.

When Ferrell-el showed up at the plant Monday, he carried two rifles and he had a package of chocolate candy in his pocket.

He wore camouflaged army fatigues and in his 20-minute walk through the two plant buildings, he appeared to be shooting at random.

ONE EMPLOYEE at the PPG plant remembered Ferrell-el talked about television shows: "He didn't talk much and when he did, it was mostly about television."

Ferrell-el had served in the Army from 1962-1965. A three-month hitch in West Germany was his only overseas assignment. Since leaving the service, he worked in a city greenhouse and as a lab assistant, a teachers' aide and a lithography apprentice.

He added the "el" to his name after leaving the service. Nobody knows why he did so.

Returned GI junkies face new jungle

By JOSEPH LELYVELD
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Those Vietnam veterans who return to New York City's streets with a craving for drugs have nurtured it on opiates so pure they were to the usual junkie's fare what a magnum of champagne is to a pint of cheap wine. Basically two kinds of stories are told about what happens to them in their new jungle setting.

In the first story, the veteran is cast as a green-born. "They don't have the animalistic qualities required to survive out there," said an ex-addict now working at a treatment center. "They haven't been to jail. They haven't lived in cellars. They're not what you'd call real thieves."

In the second story, the veteran has double the survival potential as well as double the habit of the typical junkie on the corner. "I relied on my escape and evasion training from Fort Bragg," said

Francisco Rivera, a war hero who claimed a Silver Star, three Bronze Stars, four Purple Hearts and 50 successful burglaries in the Bronx.

According to Richie Linder, it was the reconnaissance training he received at Bragg that saved him from the junkie's desperate scramble when he returned from 10 months with a special forces intelligence unit in Vietnam, where he, too, came away with a Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and a habit. His specialties, he says, were banks and the apartments of pushers.

By his own account, his training paid off best with an $18,000 haul from a New York bank, which went in a matter of days for sharp clothes, a new burnt-red Buick Riviera and a large nest egg of heroin. A few months later he had to sell the car to raise cash for fresh connections.

What he remembers most strongly now is the constant hustle and the loneliness, all the walking in the streets till 4 in the morning to flee from himself, followed by the rush to get out to the streets again by 9 a.m. to buy more drugs.

"People ask, 'What do you have left to do?'" said the veteran, now 26. "They don't know what that life is like. It was disgusting."

It's only by comparison to the debasement of most addicts that these might be construed as success stories. A junkie who was a war hero is still a junkie.

"They don't like to be identified with the addict in the streets because they go high fighting for their country," said another Vietnam veteran, who just came out of Phoenix House, the therapeutic community for addicts. "But they're dope fiends like anyone else."

NOT ALL veterans who are addicts got their habit in Vietnam or during their

period of service. No one knows for sure, but it is estimated that there are at least 10,000 — maybe twice as many — veterans with drug problems in the city.

Of the 3,500 veterans who are now enrolled in various treatment programs here, roughly half claim that their addiction started in the service. Fewer than 200 of those in treatment can be found in federal programs initiated by the Veterans Administration after President Nixon declared in June that drug abuse had "assumed the dimensions of a national emergency."

There is not one coordinated program for the treatment of all the veterans who are addicts that has an existence that is more than paper and ink.

For veterans who are certified as rehabilitated addicts, there are no employment programs, even on paper. The city's Veterans' Affairs Division has yet to place a single ex-addict in a job. "Nobody wants to hire them, no one at all," said an official. "They don't care what medals they won. They don't want anything to do with them."

Thanksgiving gift
CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Skyway will give every truck driver who passes through its toll booth between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. today a slice of pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving.

Bank-theft convict thankful for Thanksgiving furlough

ENFIELD, Conn. (U) — A little freedom isn't such a dangerous thing, says a convicted bank robber who, along with 194 other state prisoners, will be spending Thanksgiving at home.

"It's a big incentive," said Tom, a slender 31-year-old inmate who said goodbye to freedom six years ago, when he was sentenced to 17-to-34 years for bank robbery.

"I'll be looking forward to my next furlough, and because if I don't I can only look forward to one to 10 years," Tom said, referring to the penalty for escape.

"It's a milestone experiment — the first time this many have been let out," said Tony. "It's not just for yourself. Other men are hoping to get a furlough next time."

THE MEN asked only their first names be used.

In September, the two-year-old furlough program was expanded, and all "minimum risk" inmates became eligible for trips to the outside that previously went only to men within 60 days of release. The sole overriding qualification is that they are deemed unlikely to escape.

Parents will get the blame

DETROIT (UPI) — Before the end of the year, Detroit parents will become responsible for the criminal acts committed by their children despite objections the ordinance under which they would be prosecuted is unconstitutional.

Mayor Roman S. Gribbs indicated he will sign the ordinance passed Monday by the City Council on a 5-3 vote with the dissenters claiming it is unconstitutional.

The ordinance lists six specific instances in which a parent could be hauled into court. The listing of specifics is in contrast to similar but nonspecific measures in effect in seven Detroit suburbs and Lapeer, Mich.

law in Detroit constitutional," said Kenneth H. Smith, a Lapeer attorney who has represented the only two persons in Michigan convicted of violating a parental responsibility law.

"In our city, our law is very vague. It doesn't give any idea what being delinquent would be," he said. "You have to have something in the law that spells out the offenses. Here, just being the father of a child makes you guilty."

Smith said a motion was filed for a new trial for Mrs. Janet Castle who was fined $100 and court costs and ordered to pay for windows broken by her son and another boy during a shooting spree with air rifles in April.

UNDER the Detroit ordinance, the parent or guardian of a juvenile under 17 could be charged with a misdemeanor for failure to "exercise reasonable parental control" by permitting the minor to violate a curfew law, keep stolen property, associate with known juvenile delinquents, play hooky from school, possess illegal drugs or be without proper supervision while the parents are away.

Conviction could bring a $500 fine and 90 days in jail. Present state law makes parents liable up to $1,500 only for acts of vandalism.

"Putting in those specific offenses could make the

THE SIX specific offenses were inserted into the Detroit ordinance by Councilman Anthony Wierzbicki to meet the criticisms that the law would be "unconstitutionally vague."

An opponent of the measure, Councilman Carl Levin, said passing "an illegal ordinance will breed further disrespect for the law."

In suburban Madison Heights, which nearly two years ago became the first Michigan community to enact a parental responsibility law, officials have praised the ordinance for holding down juvenile crime. Only one person has ever been arrested in Madison Heights under the ordinance.

Conscientious objector status

New draft form draws wave of protests

By JERRY T. BAULCH

WASHINGTON — A proposed new form for young men to apply for conscientious objector draft status has brought an avalanche of angry mail that has astounded Selective Service officials.

Most writers object to the length — 30 questions compared to four in the current form — and the complexity.

Many of the more than 400 letters received in the past nine days are similar in what draft officials say is an organized campaign. They complain of "trick questions are 'insulting'" questions are "insulting" and "unfair."

But there is praise too. One Midwest draft counselor, while objecting to one section, said: "I believe the more personal approach and the expanded opportunity to express belief should be a very desirable feature."

Byron Pepitone, deputy draft director, said, "I'm surprised" at the reaction because the proposed new form was thought to be more fair.

Pepitone said much of the furor is caused by misunderstanding and unawareness that the C.O. document circulated was a draft for discussion.

Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr met Nov. 8 with eight representatives of major church groups to discuss the proposed form and he asked for comments by last Thursday.

Pepitone said an instruction sheet being prepared for the draft boards explains that "there are no right or wrong answers. They are to be used for a point of discussion between the board and the registrant."

The form notes a man is not required to answer all the questions but says he should consider each one. Pepitone said the objections will be studied and he hopes the final form can be made effective "sometime this year."

Selective Service officials said the letter writing is being prompted by the Selective Service Law Reporter, the Philadelphia-based Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors and the National Interreligious Service Board for Conscientious Objectors based here.

MOST of the letters are coming from lawyers, Pepitone said, some from college and church draft counselors.

The Selective Service Law Reporter said many of the questions "are phrased so as to suggest, in the face of contrary judicial rulings, that a particular answer is necessary to preserve eligibility."

Also, it said, the form as a whole "imports, an untenable narrow reading" of the Supreme Court decision of 1970 that a formal religious membership is not necessary to qualify for a C.O. and that a man may have only "deeply held moral and ethical beliefs." The form, the Law Reporter said, "places a burden on the registrant to produce objective evidence of sincerity."

THE Law Reporter paid special attention to:

—Separate questions for traditional and nontraditional claimants.

—Questions as to "training, membership, disagreement with teachings of one's church, etc."

—Demonstrate to the board that your beliefs are more than a personal moral code. Are they held by others?"

—"Explain how you can be reasonably certain that personal fear of death, injury or military discipline is not the most influential factor in your claim of conscientious objection."

Tough Texas woman fights Army over son's belongings

By RENA M. PEDERSON

TYLER, Tex. (UPI) — Mrs. Frieda Boyd, 50, a sturdy blue-eyed brunette who says she is "just as mean as the Viet Cong and I'll last as long," is waging her own war with the U.S. Army.

"It seems I fought with them forever to keep my boy Randy from going to Vietnam," she said. "Now he's dead and I'm having to fight them tooth and nail to get his personal belongings back."

"I've been in touch with the judge advocate's office in Ft. Hood (Tex.) and I communicate with the Summary Court in Saigon. The Summary Court said I should sue the pants off the U.S. Army."

"THEY don't send you a thing. I'd give anything for some of those treasured pictures," she said of her son's belongings.

The Texas housewife even has taken her complaints to the commander-in-chief.

"I called the President. The day he married his daughter off, I buried my son," she said quietly. "I told them I have just lost my only child in Vietnam and I feel like I have given up a lot more than he has for this war and I want to speak to him."

"They switched me to one of his aides, Merkel. I got to talk to Merkel. He said, 'Why don't you send a telegram?' Everything is all business with them. No personal feelings."

After her son's death this year, Mrs. Boyd and her husband, R.J., began a new campaign, this time to get their 23-year-old nephew Rusty out of Vietnam. The boys were like brothers and tried to serve together in the Army. Randy, 20, re-enlisted and asked to be sent to Vietnam to be with Rusty.

"RUSTY is all we have left for our family," Mrs. Boyd said. "Randy was our only child. We adopted him as a baby after we'd been married 12 years and we loved him. When he was killed we looked up and we were middle-aged with no children, no grandchildren."

"We were just an old couple on the corner."

So the battle to save Rusty began. Mrs. Boyd called the Pentagon. "The commander was on vacation and everybody I talked to sounded like they were, too."

She made an appeal to a Military Review Board to transfer Rusty to safety as the only person to carry on the family name. She explained that he had 11 more months to serve in Vietnam and "by that time he will be dead or on dope." The Military Review Board read her letters and was not impressed.

Then on one of her calls she got through to one of the aides of Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., "who had a lot of heart."

"Within a few weeks, those officers ran out in the field after Rusty at Long Binh and said, 'Boy, you're getting out of here.'"

RUSTY now is stationed in Hawaii until he gets out of the Army in March, 1972.

"It was our happiest day since Randy got killed," Mrs. Boyd said. "He's not home, but at least he's safe, thank God for that."

When Randy re-enlisted Mrs. Boyd put a hand-lettered sign that was almost as big as a billboard in her front yard. "Randy re-enlisted," it said. "We are proud he is still well enough, man enough, cares enough to serve his country."

After he was killed, Mrs. Boyd made some changes in the sign. She crossed out the "is" and wrote "was" above it. She let-

"killed in action" and tacked it on.

Hundreds of sympathizers came by to see the sign and many more called.

"EVERY day we become more aware of having better reason to be prouder of our son than the government he gave his life for," his mother said.

She shook her head and said she isn't normally a bitter person but the struggle with the Army has had its effect on her.

"They say war is inhuman. I say the Army is inhuman. I've written letters to chaplains for information and never heard a word from them. I've got ten letters from Randy's buddies and they told me guys in the unit stole Randy's belongings when he was killed."

She said she never understood the sadness of war until her son was sent to Vietnam. "Now it is in my heart all the time," she said.

North Viet out to win, chief says

TOKYO — North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong says his people are determined to win their war, largely because Communist China's support and assistance "have played and are playing a fine role on the battlefield."

"We are clearly aware that our entire course of fighting and every victory we have won are inseparable from the immense and valuable support given by the Chinese people," Dong said.

HE SPOKE Wednesday at a mass rally in Peking, held to welcome a North Vietnamese party and government delegation led by Dong.

Dong made the declaration after Premier Chou En-lai told the North Vietnamese at the rally: "The Chinese people are determined to help you to the end, until you win complete victory."

'Not the truth,' says Henderson

FT. MEAD, Md. (AP) — The prosecution used prior statements by Col. Oran K. Henderson in an attempt Wednesday to discredit his current testimony that he had not been aware of a massacre at My Lai.

Stepping up the pace of cross-examination, Maj. Carroll Tichenor, the prosecutor, read to the seven-officer jury excerpts of statements Henderson gave to official Army investigators.

COL. O. HENDERSON Talks With Newsmen — AP Wirephoto

Henderson denied some of these earlier remarks, and at one point shook his finger at the prosecutor and said:

"Maj. Tichenor, you know that is not the truth."

Most of the statements deal with what Henderson, who is accused of covering up the massacre, said he learned about May Lai from a young helicopter pilot, then WO Hugh Thompson.

HENDERSON said in defense questioning Tuesday that Thompson told him two days after the March 16, 1968 operation of seeing a large number of bodies at the hamlet, of wild firing by U.S. forces, of former Capt. Ernest Medina shooting a young woman and the apparent murder of a small group of wounded civilians.

Henderson told the jury, however, that Thompson did not specifically mention seeing any more than eight dead civilians and did not report any other instance, besides the Medina incident, of witnessing the shooting of noncombatants.

Tichenor read to the court testimony Henderson gave between December, 1969, and February, 1970, to the Pentagon inquiry, into why news of the massacre had not become public for more than a year.

In one statement to the inquiry, Henderson said Thompson reported seeing troops acting like "wildmen" and "firing into groups of civilians."

In another, Henderson said: "He (Thompson) was very specific when he was talking about the more than 20 civilian casualties Henderson later reported officially were killed accidentally by artillery and helicopter gunships."

ANOTHER statement concerned Henderson's interrogation of Medina about the pilot's allegation that Medina's Charlie Company had indiscriminately killed civilians.

"I told him," Henderson was quoted, "it was a very serious allegation, not the 20 we were talking about but more."

Explaining the statements Wednesday, Henderson said from the witness stand that he feels he and Medina may have been talking about 28 dead civilians, one of the initial body counts.

"At no time," the colonel told the court, "did I intend to express myself that Thompson was talking about more than 20... the order of magnitude was less than 20. Of that I am confident."

Earlier Wednesday the cross-examination of Henderson was interrupted when the military judge, Col. Peter S. Wondolowski chastised opposing lawyers for courtroom bickering and sparring over legalisms and semantics.

Henderson's lawyers, Henry B. Rothblatt and Lt. Col. Frank Dorsey, argued that Tichenor was being unduly repetitive with his questions, was distorting and mistreating previous statements by the defendant, and was not giving the defense exact references to this prior testimony.

AT THAT point, much of Tichenor's examination of Henderson, which began Tuesday afternoon after the colonel denied knowing of any massacre while he was in Vietnam, dealt with the artillery preparation around My Lai during the March 16, 1968 assault.

The 51-year-old colonel is accused of willfully failing to conduct, between March 18 and 20, a proper investigation of atrocity reports he maintains he never received.

Henderson also is charged with failing to report actual or suspected war crimes and with lying to a Pentagon inquiry into why news of the massacre did not become public for more than a year.

Rothblatt and Dorsey had been objecting repeatedly during Tichenor's cross-examination and said only one defense lawyer would be permitted to interrupt the prosecutor with objections.

"I have been very liberal until now, but we've got Col. Dorsey and Mr. Rothblatt jumping up making objections that aren't lawyer-like and that certainly doesn't make for the dignity of this court," the judge said.

Addressing Tichenor, he stated "The court is interested in seeking the truth. But I think the witness should know to what particular point you are addressing your questions. We ought to have a meeting of the minds on what you are talking about. I know you are not trying to trick or trap the witness."

This brought laughter to the courtroom, and Rothblatt stated "I'm sure Col. Henderson would disagree."

Hanoi says peace moves up to U.S.

PARIS (UPI) — North Vietnam's chief negotiator Xuan Thuy said Wednesday Hanoi and the Viet Cong will make no concessions at the Vietnam peace talks and that all moves to break the deadlocks must be made by the United States.

Thuy said in an interview his side stood by its latest negotiating proposals, which were made July 1 by the Viet Cong, and that the only way for U.S. President Nixon to achieve a negotiated peace was to comply with the Communist package.

Throughout the interview Thuy criticized Nixon, charging the president was not only "pursuing, but even expanding the war" in Indochina. Thuy, who appeared recovered from a recent illness, also emphasized several times the "militant solidarity" Hanoi was receiving from Communist China.

The 59-year-old diplomat, who spoke in his high-walled residence in suburban Choisy-le-Roi a few miles south of the capital, said Hanoi and the Viet Cong will not budge from their demand that the United States withdraw totally, rapidly and unconditionally all its own and allied foreign troops from Vietnam.

The complete pullout must include all U.S. bases, advisors and equipment, he said.

With equal emphasis Thuy said his side will continue insisting on the abandonment of the South Vietnamese regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu so as to make way for a new coalition cabinet.

Thuy's remarks held little prospect for an early break in the deadlock.

What Young People Think

Teen-agers divided on importance of having regular medical checkup

By NANCY GILBERT
The Youth Service

Though many deplore the high cost of medical care, half the young people queried in a recent survey report that they continue to have regular medical checkups.

In some cases the college and high school students undergo such examinations because they have medical problems that require a constant check, but in general the advocates of routine medical care believe this is the best way to avoid future trouble.

Boys appear to take better care of their health than girls in this respect, with 53.8 per cent of them undergoing regular checkups, as opposed to only 44.6 per cent of the girls.

"Nothing is ever wrong with me when I do go, so I don't go any more," explains Lisa Delaune, 13, of Metairie, La. Gwen Sparkman, 16, of Dallas, Tex., admits "I hate to go to the doctor." "The rates are too high for me," adds Robert Malito, 18, of Girard, Ohio.

"I haven't got the time; besides I believe I'm basically healthy," says Regina Farinelli, 17, of Youngstown, Ohio. "I spend enough time under doctors' care when I was younger and I prefer to stay away as much as possible," declares Barbara Kanik, 21, of Youngstown, Ohio.

Bill Starr, 22, also of Youngstown, disagrees. "To keep in good physical shape I believe not only exercise but a checkup is necessary to make sure I not only feel well, but am well also."

Some note that they have to have physicals for school, for jobs and in order to participate in sports. Others with allergies or other chronic ailments must also routinely be checked.

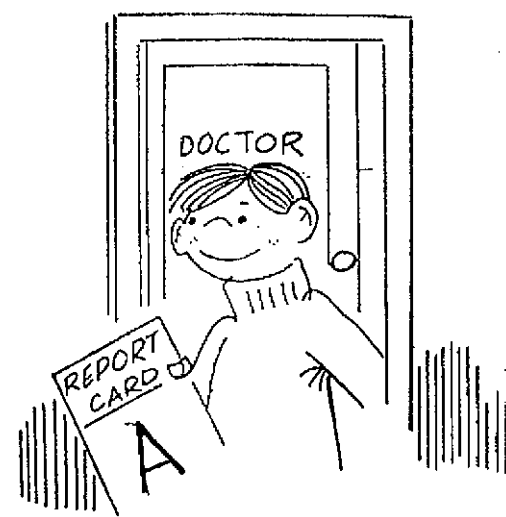

Though many of the kids say they don't see a doctor because they are basically healthy, a surprisingly large number — more than half — report that they have at some time been in a hospital for an illness or operation. Another surprising revelation in these days of doctor shortages and specialization is that four out of five of those questioned say they have a regular family physician.

ASKED if they believe Americans neglect their health because of the cost of medical care, 64.1 per cent of the boys and girls replied in the affirmative. And about the same percentage added that they think plans such as Medicare should be extended to include everyone. The greatest number in favor of this plan are in the Northeast section of the country — 77.5 per cent — while the fewest are in the South — 57.8 per cent.

"The government supports too many people as it is," says one of the dissenters, James A. Lawler, 15, of Highland Heights, Ohio. "It would mean more taxes," agrees Randy Richardson, 17, of Carrollton, Tex. "A plan like that could ruin the economy of America," says Becky Cipric, 14, of Metairie, La.

However, Dave Litvak, 16, of Mayfield Heights, Ohio, believes "It would be a great thing for those very ill people who can't possibly afford hospitalization." "With the costs of medical aid high as they are, there should be a program to help everyone," says Frank Horvath, 18, of Youngstown. Charles Michael James, 24, of Warren, Ohio, thinks "Medical costs are far too high for the average American to afford."

GIs 'losing face' --and lives as sappers attack bunkers

By DONALD A. DAVIS

FREEDOM HILL, Vietnam (UPI) — The nightmare of firebase Mary Ann is repeating itself throughout South Vietnam.

It was at Mary Ann on March 28 that a group of Communist commandos — called "sappers" — penetrated the defenses and hurled dynamite charges into crowded bunkers.

The price was 33 Americans killed and 76 wounded and a loss of face, perhaps Asia's most valued standard, for U.S. forces.

Now the lesson is pounded into American forces to make their defenses sharper against the elusive sappers. Alert guards, more barbed wire, bright lights from flares and watch towers are combined to keep commando activity down.

Recently, however, the sappers have blown up and damaged numerous American helicopters at bases such as Lai Khe and Di An, near Saigon.

This, and more, is brought out and underlined at a series of sapper demonstrations being held throughout South Vietnam to acquaint Americans and South Vietnamese with the methods used by the commandos. One was held recently here at the combat center of the 196th Infantry Brigade to a class of enlisted men in a leadership course.

FIRST came a lecture. A sergeant in his best drill field voice, meshing yells and whispers to emphasize points, told the tactics and background of the sappers.

He said they study a target area for as long as a year to pinpoint every inch of the place and the reactions and assignments.

"By the time they hit, they know their stuff," he said.

Through extensive training periods, the sappers practice individual missions. The first man through the wire will blow up the communications area in the middle of a camp and the second will use his satchel charge to blast a quick escape route in the defensive perimeter.

Then the other sappers will come through and flip their explosives into the bunkers where GIs huddle after the mortar barrage that precedes the sapper attack.

"They firmly believe they will get 60 per cent of the men on that firebase in the first two minutes of an attack," the sergeant said. "Sixty per cent."

NOW comes the high point of the demonstration.

A former North Vietnamese sapper who defected after capture strips to his underwear and crawls, on toes and elbows, to a wall of barbed wire. A number of former sappers are working in such demonstration teams at different installations.

The one-time Communist commando nears three coils of razor-sharp con-cina barbed wire held snug to the ground by a dozen strands of straight barbed wire that run along the length of the concertina.

He feels along the strands to check for booby-traps and then slowly parts a concertina section. He hooks it to another section and crawls into the maze through the hole, which he shuts behind him.

NOW, he proceeds to calmly swim through the sharp coils and tangles and strands. In 13 minutes he is on the other side of the six-foot-wide, tightly-packed demonstration wall, closing the final hole he made with small steel hooks. The sapper is unscratched. Noise was minimal.

In an attack situation he would have brought a satchel charge through ahead of him.

"If he can get a space big enough for his head, he can get his body through," the sergeant said.

The instructor then proceeds to give some methods to foil sappers, keyed to alertness of the guards.

"There's nothing you can build to keep him out," he said. "So you had better be ready."

Mod general hits critics, defends beer in barracks

FT. EUSTIS, Va. (AP) — "It is not country clubbish or permissive for a soldier in the United States Army to live as well as a freshman in a land grant university," contends the man trying to make the new look Army work.

Lt. Gen. George Forsythe, head of the Modern Volunteer Army program, told an audience at the Army Transportation School here Wednesday that the much-publicized changeover in rules is most definitely not making the service too permissive.

Quite the contrary, he said. Beer in the barracks, mod hair styles and lifting of restrictions on weekend travel are simply messages to soldiers that say

"we trust you. Just don't step out of line."

What the Army is trying to do in all this, the general said, is to improve the professionalism in the service and make soldiers free to "stretch" themselves in their jobs.

KP duties, grass cutting and other such chores are being turned over to civilians not to pamper the soldiers, but to assure that 12,000 soldiers a day are not taken away from their military duties.

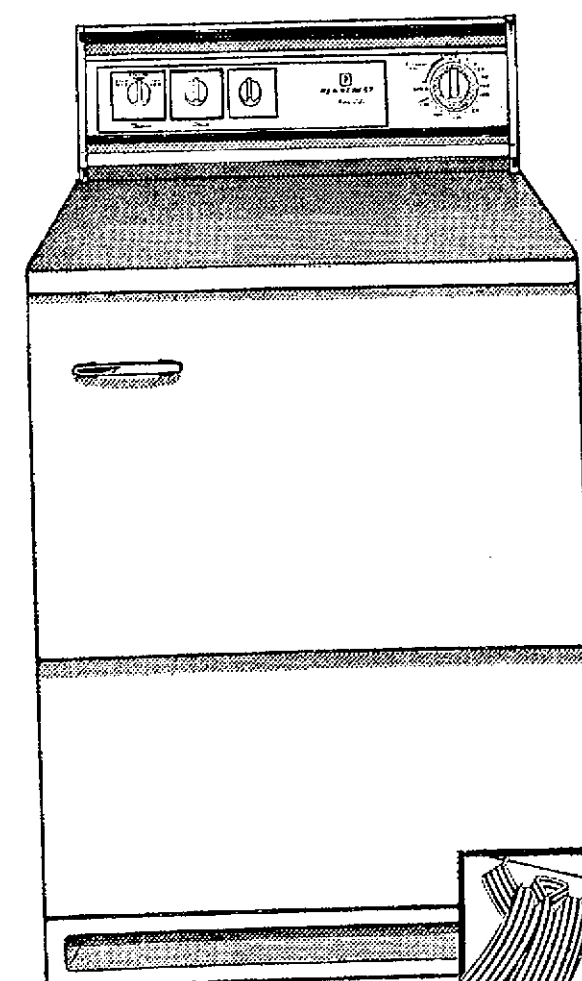

"Soldiers are very expensive dishwashers," Forsythe said, noting that each GI costs the government about $11,000 a year. "You can't go on using soldiers like that and expect them to be proud and feel that they are important.

If the volunteer army is to work, obsolete living quarters and low pay scales for junior men must be improved, he contended. He said 475,000 soldiers are living in ramshackle barracks built in 1941 and about 60,000 are so poor they are eligible for food stamps.

Filipino Moslems retaliate for killing by Christians

MANILA (UPI) — Moslems struck back Wednesday in retaliation for an army massacre of 42 Moslems Monday. They killed three Christians and wounded three others, the army said.

The army reported that a band of more than 100 Moslems, believed to be members of the terrorist group, assaulted an army camp in Salvador Town, on Mindanao 450 miles south of Manila.

They killed a government trooper and two civilians, including a former mayor, and wounded three other soldiers, the army said. Elsewhere in Mindanao's Lanao Del Norte Province, where the Christian-dominated army gunned down the Moslems Monday in an election-day massacre, thousands of local residents — both Christian and Moslem — fled their homes. The Christians, fearing Moslem reprisals, headed for Christian communities in the northern part of the province. Moslems were moving to Moslem-dominated towns further south. Radio Mindanao said more than 6,000 persons had fled their homes in eight communities around Magsaysay, near where the killings occurred. Survivors said the Monday incident came when a convoy of vehicles carrying about 270 Moslems to their homes after voting in Magsaysay in a special election was halted at an army checkpoint. The troops ordered the Moslems to line up along the roadside and opened fire with machine guns and automatic weapons. Twenty-seven Moslems died in the shooting. Fifteen others were finished off by machete-wielding Christian civilians or died in the hospital. More than 40 were wounded, and the rest fled into the hills. Magsaysay was one of six towns in the Southern Philippines which held special elections Monday.

Last unit to leave wasn't

Marines still in Vietnam despite 'official' pullout

HOI AN, Vietnam (UPI) — R. P. Moore, 21, of Goldendale, Wash., stood at rigid attention while his commanding officer and gunnery sergeant hit him on the arms.

The raps made official the promotion of "Rip" Moore to corporal in the U.S. Marine Corps. Rip is one of about 70 members of sub-unit one, 1st Air and Naval Gunfire Company — the largest single outfit of Marines left in Vietnam.

That the "Anglico" unit is still in the country puzzles many people who have read and heard that Marines are no longer in the war zone.

A photo hangs in the Anglico Club showing a Marine walking off a ship in the U.S. He is identified as the last Leatherneck to leave.

"Army guys come up to me all the time and ask me what I'm still doing here," said 1st Lt. Don LeLand of Portland, N.C., the company's executive officer.

Numerous complaints are heard around the sandy base near the coast that Martha Mitchell, wife of the U.S. attorney general, made a publicized statement that all Marines had gone home.

But the Marines — about 500 in all — are still in Vietnam. They mainly are the Anglico unit, guards at U.S. embassies and advisers to South Vietnamese marine forces.

The Anglico men are spread from the Mekong Delta to the demilitarized zone — mainly in observation posts to guide Naval artillery and air strikes. In addition, the unit acts as support to bring in U.S.

Army helicopters assisting Republic of Korea Marines at bases in this area.

Maj. E. J. Dyer of Kansas City, Mo., commands the Anglico team here through its final months. The unit will break up as the Korean Marine Brigade goes home.

"But there still will be Marines in Vietnam," Gunnery Sgt. G. W. Carstensen of Pocatello, Idaho, said.

While the Marines are still here, the stiff code of discipline and conduct remains in effect. Uniforms are clean and enlisted men seem to say "Sir!" twice in every sentence. Scrawled in black on a piece of cardboard in the Anglico Club is the legend: "Only God looks down on Marines."

"Everybody else looks up."

"Semper fidelis"

Dyer and "He Gunny" were the ones who punched Moore after attaching his new corporal chevrons to his collar.

It was a friendly gesture from career Marines for a man who had done a good job guiding U.S. helicopters around a big supply center for the Korean Marines.

Moore is a contrast in the Marine Corps, but much like the other Anglico enlisted men. He is proud of his training but plans to grow his beard and long hair again when his tour is over and he goes back to school.

"I believe in the Marine discipline," he said. "It's tough but it's needed."

The pride is evident at a motion picture at the club as the hero is shooting bad guys out of the saddle at a distance of 1,000 yards.

BUT THEN they also can revert to the feeling of the young back in the U.S. Cpl. Daniel R. Sutherland of Belleville, Ill., and Lance

Cpl. Stephen Wethington of Cincinnati sing at the bar along with the music from Woodstock: "One, two, three — what're we fightin' for..."

There are plenty of veterans in Anglico — including Sgt. F. T. Jennings of Jacksonville, N.C., who runs the last Marine mess hall in Vietnam with a tight rein. On the wall is a huge poster showing a drill instructor and his recruits with the legend "The Marine Corps needs a few good men."

An Army enlisted man eating there looked at it and cracked, "The Marines may need them because the draft put most of them into the Army."

Cambodian invasion builds amid huge clouds of dust

HIGHWAY 22, Vietnam — The tiny truck bearing the Cambodian flag was almost obscured by the dust of endless South Vietnamese supply convoys.

Like the giant South Vietnamese trucks loaded with fuel, ammunition, construction equipment and troops, it was heading for the front.

But unlike the Vietnamese, the Cambodian army band was heading home after a few days of vacation amid the luxuries of Vietnam.

For the South Vietnamese, the trip up the dusty, rutted road was a more serious matter.

Company after company of paratroopers, special forces, rangers and infantrymen were trucked up the highway to Thien Ngan and Kerk—the jumping-off points for the invasion of North Vietnamese base areas in the rubber plantation country of Cambodia.

As the streams of trucks jolted northward, American scout helicopters and Mohawk surveillance planes—their reconnaissance in Cambodia completed—streaked down the highway heading south almost skimming the tops of the trucks.

Field officers admitted they knew little of what was to come or when — only that the operation had hardly begun.

Japanese bubbly irks Frenchmen

EPERNAY, France (UPI) — Charles Talleyrand, Napoleon's urbane foreign minister, once described champagne as a wine "having the flattering quality of a civilizer because it contains in itself the graces and virtues of a Frenchman."

Citing this 17-year-old quotation a spokesman for the Champagne Winegrowers Committee has angrily produced a bottle labeled champagne. Marked in minuscule print at the bottom were the words "Made in Japan."

This and American domestic "champagnes" will hurt French champagne sales, said Joseph Dargent, spokesman for the committee for champagne wine. He said this was despite a prediction that French champagne exports for 1971 would be 18 per cent more than the 102 million bottles exported last year.

"THE only true champagne wine comes from the Champagne region of France. Every year the U.S. produces 50 million bottles of bubbly, white wine which they call champagne. Unfortunately this has resulted in a great loss of prestige for champagne in America," Dargent said.

Dargent said his organization had filed lawsuits to stop foreign growers of bubbly wine from calling their product champagne.

"In the common market we are well protected. But we know that Japan, such an industrious nation, someday would make an imitation of our product, and they did," Dargent said the Japanese product is labeled exactly like French champagne, but the Japanese imitation champagne often consists of a mixture obtained from potato alcohol.

finding a seat can be a problem.

Once in you get a decent meal for less than 50 cents—or for nothing if you haven't got 50 cents. The proprietor, who sports multi-ton chop whiskers and peace-symbol pendants, is 40-year-old Sitki Oruc, known to his customers as "Yener." He says he can't turn away anyone who needs a meal.

"These children are not just tourists, they're searching for the truth," he says.

YOUR GUIDE TO Dining and Entertainment with TEDD THOMEY

ORGAN, PIANO KEYBOARDS ARE DONN CLAYTON'S JOY AT ANDERSON'S TALLY HO

In person

By TEDD THOMEY
Restaurant Editor

DO YOU SUPPOSE THAT SOME DAY OR SOME NIGHT DONN WILL FINALLY SEE A CERTAIN 'GUNSMOKE' SHOW? — Quite often when I hear an entertainer who seems perfectly suited for his role in life, I wonder how it all happened. Was it by accident? Or was some force responsible for guiding him through all the turns and twists of that long path?

Donn Clayton is an amazing fellow who has combined the best of two worlds — and is perfectly suited for each.

He plays the Hammond and sings nightly at Anderson's Tally Ho, Lakewood Boulevard near South Street. And each week he puts in 15 to 20 hours as minister of music at First Christian Church, Bellflower, where he directs five choral groups.

How is such a combination possible? Aren't there major conflicts in Donn's life? How can a good church man be content working night after night in a so-called "den of iniquity"? What do the people at his church think about his double life?

Let's roll the calendar back a few decades and see if we can discover how this unusual fellow developed. Let's go back to the snow and cold of northern Michigan where Donn Duncan Clayton spent his boyhood. We find him at the age of 7 living with his parents in Traverse City beside Lake Michigan.

Donn's father is Rev. Glenn Clayton, a Baptist minister who is missionary to tribes of Indian woodcutters who live in the Michigan forests. He visits them regularly, taking along a small portable pump organ which folds up like a suitcase. Mrs. Clayton plays the organ during services. Rev. Clayton conducts in the Indians' rustic schoolhouses.

QUITE OFTEN YOUNG DONN goes along. He always sits in the front row and is fascinated by the beautiful music his mother is able to create on the little fold-up instrument. Whenever he has the opportunity, Donn sits at the organ, pumps its pedals and experiments with its keyboard, picking out hymns by ear. Soon it is obvious to his parents that the boy is a natural musician. Effortlessly, he teaches himself to play such hymns as "At Calvary" and "Nearer My God to Thee," using both hands, playing bass chords as well as the melody. (That was back in the mid-1930s when real skill was required to play an organ. Some of today's small organs are comparatively simple to play, because they are equipped with mechanical devices which create chords by automation.)

When the Claytons moved to San Diego about four years later, 11-year-old Donn continued to teach himself keyboard techniques by playing the organ for four hours every Saturday morning at White Temple Church. Another year passed. He became so proficient that he was hired as organist at San Diego's Foursquare Church.

The salary was super-low — 50 cents a week. Donn played for choir rehearsal every Thursday and for two services every Sunday, a total of 4½ hours at the keyboard. To get to the church required an hour roundtrip streetcar, but Donn didn't mind. He loved his music so much he wouldn't work for nothing and, if necessary, would've walked those many miles to church.

While at San Diego's Pt. Loma High School, Donn for the first time received formal musical training. The chairman of the school's music department Vera Jane Parrott, decided he was so talented that she gave him special lessons in harmony, theory, conducting and voice control. The lessons went on five days a week for three years. Donn worked so hard and became so accomplished that Miss Parrott gave him a reward. She let him conduct all the concerts of the school's a capella choir.

WHEN HE WAS 18, Donn was a tornado of activity, attending school, playing in church and working as staff organist at Theaie's music store. Then he began getting parttime jobs playing organ in San Diego restaurants.

When he was 21, Donn got his first fulltime night club job, working at the High 15 Club in nearby National City. The decision was not difficult for him. He realized that working in night clubs was the only way he would be able to make a decent salary from his music. He decided there was no reason why he couldn't combine his occupations — and work as a church organist as well as club entertainer.

Rev. and Mrs. Clayton were strongly opposed to their son's entry into tavern work. They felt in their hearts that the conflicts would be too great and that Donn's life would erupt with continual personal crises.

EAT AT YENER'S

ISTANBUL. (AP) — Yener's is a small restaurant by any standards: four tables inside, two outside. The choice of food is limited: two or three simple Turkish dishes. You drink beer if you have the money, tea if you haven't.

Yet Yener's is probably one of the best-known eating spots between New York and Kathmandu, and "Eat at Yener's" is traditional advice for those setting out on the hippy trail to the East.

The tiny room in the hippy quarter of Istanbul-Sultanahmet — is crowded with long-haired devotees from early morning until well after midnight and

THE GREEN FROG

But they did not criticize him openly, because they realized that although he was working nights "in a den of iniquity" he was unchanged otherwise. His fundamental Christian beliefs were the same; his home life and church life were unaffected.

Years passed. Donn worked in fine restaurants in San Diego. He also enjoyed lengthy engagements in restaurants and clubs in Bakersfield, Las Vegas and San Francisco. He became so versatile and so at ease as an entertainer that for six weeks in 1958 he worked as a standup comedian at Bimbo's 365 Club, one of San Francisco's top nightspots.

Only once during those years did Donn have any family conflict in combining his church and club lives. One day his father, who can be stern at times, upbraided him, declaring that Donn's night club career was beginning to have an effect on his home and church activities. But the good reverend — making a mistake that any father could make — didn't have all the facts.

DONN'S MOTHER AND SISTER defended him. Rev. Clayton listened to what they had to say and decided he was wrong. The conflict had a good outcome, after all. As a result of it, Donn and his father discovered that they understood and loved one another even more than previously.

Three years ago, Donn came to Long Beach. He entertained for many months at Lucy's Restaurant and Marmac's, Lynwood, before moving to Anderson's Tally Ho in Lakewood a few weeks ago. His busy career has included his debut on records. He cut two successful discs for Concert Recordings, Lynwood — "Side by Side," with lots of fancy overdubbing, and "Angel Eyes."

But perhaps his greatest accomplishment is how he has been able — in his own way — to unite his two different worlds. He has introduced contemporary music to his church. And at times, when the mood is right, he plays such religious music as "Just a Closer Walk with Thee" and "Amen" during his nightclub performances.

The choral groups he conducts at First Christian Church in Bellflower offer beautiful interpretations of such night club hits as "Bridge Over Troubled Waters," "What the World Needs Now is Love Sweet Love," "Everything Is Beautiful" and "Put Your Hand in the Hand of the Man from Galilee."

Donn doesn't claim to be the world's greatest vocalist, but he knows the art of selling a song. At the Tally Ho, he brings the house down with his funny parodies of such tunes as "Long Tall Texan," "Tennessee Waltz," "It Had to Be You," and "Isle of Capri," which he changes to "Isle of Debris."

HIS KEYBOARD WORK IS SUPERB, because he adds extra color by playing electronic piano as well as the Hammond B organ. He is terrific on show productions, such as medleys from "Sound of Music," "Oklahoma," "Fiddler on the Roof," and "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever." He also offers inspiring interpretations of "Malaguena" and "Granada."

Donn's life is serene these days. He is happily married to a pert blonde, Pam, who works at Ken's Restaurant, and his church and club careers have never been more compatible. He does, however, suffer from one small frustration.

Back in 1969, a friend of Donn's who was a casting director at CBS in Hollywood, got him a bit part on "Gunsmoke." Donn wore a rubber cap which made him look bald, played piano in a saloon and kept saying "nope, nope, nope" whenever the villain asked him a question.

The show went on the air last January. Donn was so busy that night he failed to catch it. His friends all saw it and said he was great.

"I wonder what I looked like," says Donn wistfully. "Maybe some day I'll get to see it."

HOLIDAY FOOD NOTE: Donn won't perform at Anderson's Tally Ho tonight because he'll be spending the holiday with his family. The extremely popular restaurant (which in no way resembles a "den of iniquity") will serve its Thanksgiving feasts from 2 p.m. on. Included will be big relish tray, scrumptious salad, baked potato, hot bread and beverage. The entrees, $3.50 to $6.95, will range from tender ham steak and roast young turkey to duckling, roast spring lamb, prime rib au jus ($4.95), handsome steaks and lobster. Reservations are suggested.

WILDER BROTHERS CREATE ANOTHER FINE

RECORD — The Wilder Brothers — who entertain with great music and comic repartee nightly at the Rossmoor Inn — have created another unusual record album. This time the brothers, who have helped many artists begin their careers, have produced an album featuring 23-year-old Larry Grace, who has a warm rich voice and appealing style.

The Wilders (George, Walt and Warner) heard about Larry in an unusual way. Their nephews discovered him while he was a fellow student at Principia College, a Christian Science school in Elmhurst, Ill. Larry, who plays guitar, had recorded several of Mary Baker Eddy's hymns which sold fabulously in Christian Science reading rooms across the nation.

The Wilders met Larry and were so impressed they cut his new album, "The Wheat Lies Low," in their Dragon Studios in Los Angeles. It's on the Daybreak label and includes several of Larry's best original compositions in addition to "Wheat" — "A Woman Indeed," "Whistling Afternoon," "Wildfire Eyes" and "God and the Body."

Larry's style and talent are creating a stir in the record business. The album is on sale at Long Beach area music stores.

WHERE TO FIND THEM: Fabulous (and that's no exaggeration) Leland Scott returned this week to the Golden Pheasant, 1168 S. State College Blvd., Anaheim. He won't perform tonight because of the holiday, but he'll be there nightly except Sundays with his group through Dec. 4. Leland is an unusually gifted vocalist instrumentalist with terrific appeal. He now has his own fan club in Downey. Its president is Julie Charmaine. If you want to join the club, contact her at P.O. Box 845, Downey.

Organist Harry Liszt will be host for the Orange County Professional Organist Guild's November jambo-ree this Sunday starting at 2 p.m. at the Fisherman, a top-notch restaurant at 317 Pacific Coast Hwy. near the main pier at Huntington Beach. Guest artists will perform at the organ and there will be songs by Dorothy Harpell, who has a big voice and powerful style.

A MAN WHO CONTRIBUTED A GREAT DEAL — Like all his hundreds of fans around town, this dept. was shocked by the sudden death Monday of Bill Clark, I first met him back in the 1950s when he entertained at Huey's. Later we kept in close touch while he performed at most of the better restaurants here, including The Tenderloin, Embers, Lucy's, Alexander's and, most recently, the Ranch House. Bill contributed much to music in Long Beach — not just as a performer and accompanist, but as a teacher and former secretary of the Musicians Assn., Local 353. He will be greatly missed.

Stepping Out

By TEDD THOMEY

DEPT. OF LET'S ALL WISH TOM, ELAINE, DON AND CAROL A HAPPY THANKSGIVING — I have a feeling, somehow, that today isn't Easter. Nevertheless, I want to tell an Easter story. This one would also be appropriate at Christmas-time, because it's about something the world will always need — the spirit of giving.

THOMEY

It began for us about 10 years ago, but I believe there are others throughout the Long Beach area who have been receiving those Easter gifts for an even longer time. Each Easter morning we find a little green nest beside our front door. It contains two or perhaps three colored eggs.

For a long time we didn't know the identity of our mysterious benefactors. Then we learned from our neighbors, Ken and Ruth Schwartz, that our Easter philanthropists with the big, big ears were friends of theirs. Sworn to secrecy, Ken and Ruth declined to reveal who their friends were.

But I kept badgering them. Finally I learned our benefactors' names — Tom and Elaine Marks, who live at 695 Havana Ave., with their two small children, Don and Carol.

One evening a few weeks ago, our family met the Marks family at the Ticked Rib, an excellent barbecue restaurant at 3870 E. Ocean Blvd. near Belmont Pier. We had a long chat. Bit by bit, I managed to draw forth some new facts about their Easter activities.

I have a hunch they won't appreciate seeing the story here, because they know there is a special kind of reward in the art of giving anonymously. But I feel that their generosity deserves to be recognized, because their annual effort has grown to such mammoth size.

I also figure a heckuva lot of people around town are curious about where all those eggs come from every Easter.

When they began back in the 1950s, the Marks distributed a few eggs to the front doors of a few of their friends, depositing their nests during the hours after midnight so they wouldn't be seen. Year after year, their route grew and grew.

Now Tom and Elaine, aided by their children, deliver hundreds of eggs. The task requires many hours of dyeing. Then they load two cars with nests and eggs. Tom drives one, Elaine pilots the other and they go in different directions. They drive around from midnight to dawn delivering their colorful gifts.

Their routes take them all over the Southland. One family on their list, Dick and Laurie Elnen and their children, now receive theirs in Garden Grove. When they lived as far away as Ontario and Corona, their gifts still arrived every Easter. Others on the Marks' list probably live even farther away.

Once while Tom was making deliveries at 3 a.m. in Orange County, he was halted by police who were suspicious about his peculiar habit of stopping here and there and leaving things on people's porches. They were sure he was a pusher who'd developed a new system of making dope deliveries.

When Tom showed the cops the gigantic stack of eggs and nests on the back seat of his car, they were astounded.

"Drive on, Buster!" they told him finally. "Your story's so weird we know you didn't just make it up!"

TOURNEDOES, ROAST TURKEY AND PRIME RIB THAT WILL MAKE YOUR TASTEBUDS SING WITH PLEASURE — Where's a good place to dine today? Well, let me tell you about a beauty that will serve its Thanksgiving feasts from 1 to 10 p.m. It's Alexander's, near Pacific Coast Highway and Anaheim Street.

It's not too late to make a reservation. So I suggest you give them a call, because owner and host Al (Alexander) Hendlin and his staff have prepared some beautiful dishes. My wife, rinkydink daughter and I dropped in the other evening for a preview taste. Everything was really terrific.

Alexander's holiday feast will start with a tangy seafood cocktail. Then will come your choice of chicken princess soup or tossed green salad with croutons. (The Roquefort dressing is particularly good.) The rest of the courses will include entree, warm bread and butter, potato, vegetable de jour, beverage and dessert.

Among the entrees: baked sugar-cured ham with champagne sauce, roast spring lamb with mint jelly or roast young tom turkey, all $3.75; jumbo shrimp, $3.95; tournadoes of beef, $5.50; prime rib au jus, $5.95, hand-some steaks, $5.50 to $5.95, and whole Australian lobster, $6.95.

Alexander's is easy to find. It's located on a side street about 100 feet east of the tall Union Bank and its patrons are offered free parking on the bank's lot. The restaurant is luxuriously appointed with red carpeting, red linen cloths on the tables and crisp red linen napkins. Everything is new, because Alexander's is only about a year old.

Al, who opened the Coral Room back in the 1950s and owned it for many years, is a top-notch professional who knows all the dining arts. His No. 1 chef is one of the best, Bill Leatherwood, an award-winner who's remarkably talented and works hard, minding the small details as well as the large. Al's enlarged entertainment lounge, one of the most beautiful in town, presents blonde vocalist-pianist Charlotte Hamilton Friday and Saturday nights. She's darned good.

During our preview visit, we had fine waitress service by tall, leggy Marty Harding, a blonde who's attractive in her hot pants costume. We tried the tournadoes, $4.95 on the regular menu, and Al's special champagne dinner for two persons. The latter won't be served today, but it will be featured as usual nightly from now on.

The tournadoes were absolutely luscious, consisting of the finest, aged, tender medallions of filet mignon on toast. They were topped with big mushroom caps and accompanied by Bill's gourmet bearnaise sauce.

That steak-champagne special for two, $6.95 (or about $3.50 each) is one of the finest dinner values in town. It includes relish tray, soup or salad, magnificent baked potato with butter, sour cream or excellent cheese sauce, warm bread and a choice little bottle of Louis the Fifth California champagne. You may have steak, (superb, aged beef, handsomely trimmed) or scallops, shrimp or halibut.

Verdict: You'll find Alexander's outstanding, today or any day.

SOME MORE BRIGHT IDEAS FOR HOLIDAY DINING: A great place for Thanksgiving dinner year in and year out is glamorous Hugo's Harbor dining room at the Edgewater Hyatt House, 6400 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., where executive chef Dan O'Connell and his staff always do a splendid job. Their multi-course repast will be served from noon to 10 p.m. and reservations are suggested. Baked sugar-cured ham and roast young turkey will be $3.95; prime rib au jus will be $5.50; N.Y. steak, $6.50, and lobster tail, $7.95. Children's dinners will be $2.50.

Some places don't offer entertainment and dancing on Thanksgiving, but the Edgewater will. Les Cimber's superlative group will be featured in the Sabre lounge which opens into Hugo's Harbor. The group's featured vocalist is pretty Landy Marr, loaded with talent. Also a top feature is drummer Bob Warren, "man with 1,000 voices" who does terrific imitations of celebrities.

Definitely worth a brief trip to Corona del Mar will be the Thanksgiving offerings at Roberta Linn's and Freddie Bell's Inn Place, 2121 E. Coast Hwy. They'll serve their regular holiday menu, from $3.95, starting at 2 p.m. The day's big deal will be a family-style dinner for a minimum of four persons, $18. Included will be a 12-pound roast turkey with all the trimmings from salad to dessert. Reservations closed on Tuesday, but if you're lucky you might grab a late cancellation. At 8 p.m. Roberta — the brunette charmer formerly on the Lawrence Welk Show — Freddie and company will put on a family show. They'll do their second show at 10:45.

Here's another suggestion for scrumptious family dining today. Visit the Villa Rey, 800 E. Ocean Blvd., which will serve its huge feast from 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. It's an attractive buffet restaurant owned by Allan Carlsson, a perfectionist with marvelous cooking skills. He'll offer scads of the freshest, colorful salads and appetizers, succulent roast turkey, baked ham, roast beef, Stroganoff, hot vegetables, fresh bread, beverage and fancy desserts, $3.25 for adults, $1.25 for children up to 10.

ALL OF A SUDDEN THE PLACE WAS JAMMED AND SURROUNDED — The Ticked Rib, which I mentioned in passing up above, is a really great barbecue restaurant. It's closed today, but will be open Friday and the rest of the time from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. It's owned by Harry Bramlett and Dick Collins, who serve big amounts of delectable barbecued meats. Currently featured are beef or pork ribs, $1.69 on the dinner Monday through Saturday. The Sunday treat is barbecued chicken, $1.29. They're with toasted bun, kosher pickles and your choice of two of these: fine coleslaw, potato salad, barbecued beans or French fries. Their $1.10 Texan sandwiches or 99-cent special sandwiches are also delicious and generous.

One night around 9:15, Harry got a phone call from a guy who asked: "What time do you close?" Harry told him 10 o'clock and the man said he'd be right over. He showed up 20 minutes before closing with 36 hungry college friends. Harry and his staff managed to satisfy them all quickly, but it was a big job.

Watching all of Harry's frantic activity, the guy finally said sheepishly: "Gee, I guess I shoulda told you how many, huh?"

Japan approves Okinawa Reversion Treaty

TOKYO (UPI) — The last major stumbling block to the reversion of Okinawa was cleared Wednesday when the Japanese Diet (parliament) approved the controversial Reversion Treaty despite a boycott by two opposition parties and rallies of tens of thousands of persons.

The Diet approval came on a 285-73 vote in the lower house, where the Socialist and Communist parties staged their boycott to oppose both the terms of the return of Okinawa and the parliamentary tactics of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party.

Within hours after the vote was taken, an estimated 100,000 persons attended various rallies to oppose the treaty, specifically the continued presence of U.S. troops on Okinawa after the Western Pacific island is returned to Japan sometime between April and July.

AFTER accepting the treaty, the lower house also approved a resolution calling for the removal of U.S. nuclear weapons from Okinawa and a reduction in the number of American military bases on the island.

Okinawa has been the key to the U.S. Far East strategic forces for nearly 30 years. Although most of the forces will remain after reversion, the U.S. will be obliged to seek Japan's permission before taking any military action with forces based on the island.

THE treaty, was approved earlier this month in the U.S. Senate by an 84-6 vote.

Opposition to the treaty mounted last week when the Liberal Democratic Party, which has 301 members in the 491-member lower house of the Diet, forced the treaty out of a committee.

Violence flared briefly Wednesday night when a small group of radical students broke through the ranks of Socialist and Communist Party-sponsored demonstrators marching past the Diet building and threw three molotov cocktails at the building. One of the cocktails exploded but there were no injuries.

By FREDERICK H. MARKS

TOKYO (UPI) — Now that the U.S. Senate and the Japanese Diet (parliament) have approved the Okinawa Reversion Treaty, it would seem that the reversion of the Western Pacific island from the United States to Japan is going smoothly.

It's not. Prime Minister Eisaku Sato had expected that the reversion of Okinawa back under Japanese control after 26 years of American rule would be the high-water mark in his eight-year administration.

INSTEAD, he's finding the Reversion Treaty his government negotiated with the Americans is providing opposition forces in Japan plenty of ammunition to use against him. Some predict that Sato will be forced to retire before the end of the year.

Sato's critics concede the return of Okinawa will be a good thing, but they harshly criticize the conditions under which the island will be returned.

The critics note with disapproval that any specific reference to the presence of nuclear weapons is lacking in the treaty. And in Japan, where the nuclear issue is a highly emotional subject, failure to get an outright declaration from the U.S. that nuclear weapons will not be allowed on the island is bound to cost the prime minister votes.

SATO'S critics also are against the continued presence of American bases on Okinawa after reversion. There are 134 U.S. bases on Okinawa, and after reversion that figure will drop to 88. The troop level of 50,000 will remain about the same.

The remaining American bases will fall under control of the U.S.-Japan Security Pact, but for all practical purposes, the U.S. military effectiveness on Okinawa will not be immediately affected by the reversion of the island.

Consequently, Sato is bowing before the growing pressure to reduce the number of bases. He told the Diet this week that his government would "do its best" to reduce the scale of the American military presence on Okinawa.

AT THE same time, Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda made a specific request of U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally to bring the subject of American bases on Okinawa to President Nixon's attention. The implication Fukuda was making was that the Japanese government is in trouble over terms of the reversion, and willingness on the part of America to reduce its presence was essential if the government is to avoid serious dissension.

There is yet another sector of the Okinawa issue which has been buried somewhat in all the controversy surrounding the island's reversion — the Okinawan people.

Dramatic evidence of the Okinawan concern over the reversion also came this week, when radical Okinawan students beat a policeman to death during a demonstration opposing the reversion treaty. The demonstration was held during a 24-hour island-wide strike by more than 100,000 Okinawans.

Before World War II, Okinawa was one of the poorest prefectures in Japan. When the war came, the Okinawans had to watch the Japanese fortify the island and make it the first line of defense when the Allied forces began their march toward the Japanese mainland.

Dissension may unseat Sato

'Sayonara' Mr. Lincoln; Hi, Shotoku

TOKYO (UPI)—On Okinawa they'll soon be saying "Sayonara" (farewell) to Abraham Lincoln and "konichi-wa" (hello) to Prince Shotoku.

Lincoln's portrait adorns the U. S. five dollar bill, which will vanish from circulation along with other American money when Okinawa reverts to Japanese rule, probably on July 1, 1972.

The face of Prince Shotoku, an ancient statesman with a wispy beard, decorates Japan's 5,000 yen note. The yen will be the medium of exchange when Okinawa becomes what it was before World War II — a Japanese prefecture (state).

The U. S. captured Okinawa in 1945 in one of the most fearsome battles of World War II. More than 14,000 American servicemen died in the assault. A garrison of 120,000 Japanese defenders was virtually wiped out.

During its 26-year rule, the U. S. made Okinawa its Gibraltar of the Far East. The U. S. Defense Department, which governed the island, created a hive of supply stations, repair shops, training centers and airfields.

Social Security -- how much will I receive?

By BOB WALTON

"I am approaching 65 (or 62) and plan to retire. I have paid the full amount into Social Security since it started. How much will I receive every month?"

That question turns up time and again in one form or another in my reader mail. Taken at face value, with no figures to go on, the answer is $213.10.

But will it be? It all depends on whether you really have paid the full amount. Social Security may have been deducted from your pay check every week or month of the year and you still may not have paid the full amount.

This year Social Security withholding is 5.2 per cent on the first $7,800 earned. Next year it will be the same percentage on the first $9,000 earned. The person who did not earn $7,800 this year or $9,000 next year will not have paid the full amount. And he won't receive $213.10.

ON THE other side of the coin the man who earned $7,800 this year will get just as much as does the one who made $78,000. Only that first $7,800 counts. And on the present basis a worker retiring in about 2006 stands to receive $295.40 a month if he has paid in full every year.

The fact is he will probably get more than $295.40 because Congress is likely to increase benefits as the years go by.

The unpleasant truth is that many people do not earn enough to pay the full amount. When Social Security started back in 1937 the tax was 1 per cent on the first $3,000 earned. On that basis monthly benefits were figured to range from $10 to $85.

YOU SHOULD KNOW:

Q. I am 77 years old and still working a little and receiving $242 a month from Social Security. In the past several years I have paid in several hundred dollars to Social Security and have been told I should get a blanket raise on my benefits. My wife, who is 75, and I need at least $265 a month due to increased living costs. What can I do? — A.F., Coleman, Tex.

A. First, congratulations for being able to work at 77. I really doubt you have earned enough to affect your Social Security benefits, but you should have your local office or a Social Security agent check for you. You say you are receiving $242 a month now. I assume you are including the 50 per cent of your benefit to which your wife is entitled and that you are receiving approximately $160 and she about $80 a month.

Those were the years of the great depression when wages and salaries were low and inflation was not a problem.

The first $3,000 earned for withholding went on through 40s. From there it rose to the first $3,600 and later to $4,200, $4,800, $5,400 and finally to $7,800 in 1968. As the amount increased so did the withholding percentage until it reached the present 5.2 per cent.

ON THE basis of years and quarters worked anyone is fully insured who has met work requirements. A man retiring in 1971 will need five years or 20 quarters. It will increase one quarter a year and will become 10 years by 1990.

For more information on this subject anyone interested should pick up a free copy of SS-147 at any Social Security office. It is a two-sided booklet with one cover in brown titled "Social Security Benefits... how you earn them" and the other side in green, "Social Security Benefits... how to estimate the amount."

Another question this column receives from time to time from women readers is: "I am fully insured under Social Security, but have not worked since I married some years ago. Can I freeze my benefits until I reach the age I can collect?"

The answer is "no" and is not given as an argument against marriage. Benefits are figured on a formula that permits dropping a number of one's lowest earning years after which the remaining years are averaged. Some of the non-working years after marriage probably would have to be counted thereby lowering the average—and the benefits.

A non-working married woman should keep in mind she will be eligible for benefits from her husband, assuming he is under Social Security. Such benefits could be as large if not more than she would get on her own.

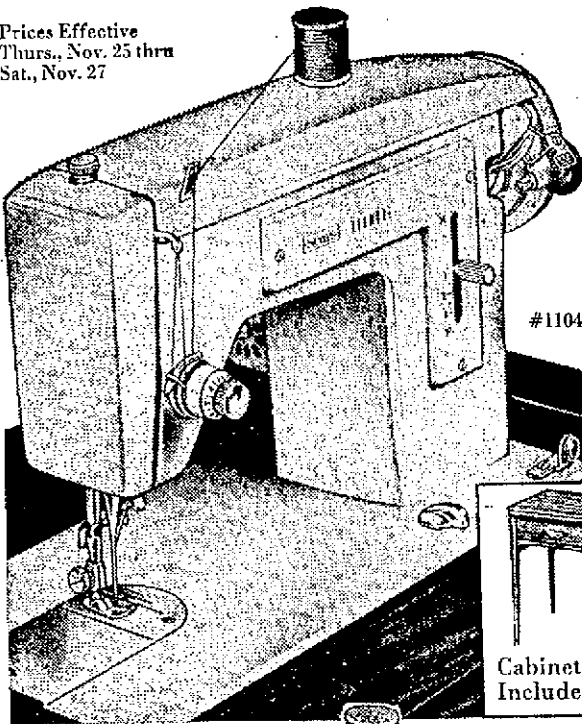

The only time benefits are frozen is when a worker becomes disabled and is judged incapable of continuing his job. If fully insured he receives monthly disability in the amount he would get if he retired at 65.

A married woman who becomes disabled within five years after her marriage could be eligible. In such instances she should report to her Social Security office.

Still strives for international harmony

'Father of Europe' nudged continent toward unity

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP) — Jean Monnet, who has spent two decades nudging Western Europe toward unity, feels that he has helped start an irreversible movement.

"Unless we are fools," he adds.

At 83, he does not gloat over progress or agonize over failures. He feels that one big accomplishment has been to change attitudes of Europeans to one another — "French to German, German to French" — so they can sit down to work out common problems.

He insists that there is no long-range plan for achieving the form of his cherished "United States of Europe." In his view it will have to happen one little step at a time, with necessity dictating each forward move.

Monnet has shied away from official positions since he resigned as president of Europe's coal and steel pool in 1955. Yet, with no official backing, he has become known as the "Father of Europe."

HIS office on Avenue Foch is lined with books and decorated with paintings and photos of his family, an oil portrait of Robert Schuman, an autographed photo of Konrad Adenauer. Schuman, as French premier and foreign minister, and Adenauer, as West German chancellor, shared his dreams and helped push them to reality.

Monnet says he has been in the European unity movement since "the day before it started." But he asserts there was never a blueprint calling for set moves toward a defined goal. Instead it was a process of deciding and doing what was necessary and possible at the moment, while pressing toward the unity objective.

First, it was the Coal and Steel Community, set up by France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. The aim was to eliminate all customs duties on coal and steel products, and permit workers in the industry to pass freely across frontiers.

When this idea succeeded, the Common Market came into being to cover other products. Euratom was established as an atomic energy pool. The same six nations joined all three communities.

NOW the communities are going through their first expansion. Administrative hurdles must be overcome before Britain can join in 1973, but this major objective is in view.

Monnet is now hopeful that the six present members can reach an agreed position so they can speak with one voice to the U.S. about world monetary problems.

Plans for a European economic and monetary union have been stalled by the world monetary unrest. Monnet feels that it would be only a small step from an economic and monetary union to political institutions.

International dealings have been Monnet's life. At 16 he was sent to North America to sell cognac produced by his family's firm. At 31, he was an assistant secretary-general of the League of Nations. In 1938 with war near he went to Washington as a French purchasing agent. Then he became chairman of the joint French-British war supplies committee. After the fall of France, Winston Churchill named him to the British supply mission in Washington.

IN 1943, Monnet was in Algiers to help set up Charles de Gaulle's provisional French government, and was himself named minister for supply armaments and reconstruction.

With victory in 1945 Monnet headed the investment planning commission for restoration of France's productive capacity. He was an instigator of the coal and steel pool and served as first president of its executive authority.

JEAN MONNET
No Time to Gloat

Monnet works through the framework of the Action Committee for a United States of Europe. This includes representatives of most non-Communist political parties and labor unions from the Common Market nations and Britain.

Committee recommendations already have wide parliamentary support in the member nations, but approval from governments tends to lag.

Although Monnet does not mention it, one handicap is that his committee includes no members from the Gaullist Party, which has a majority in the French National Assembly.

French hesitations about compromising on issues involving national independence have been a factor in slowing progress.

Temporary setbacks have not discouraged Monnet. "It's necessary that pushes us," he says.

Charlemagne and Napoleon tried in their own ways, in their own times, to unify Europe, but they did not have the benefit of Monnet's advice. Are there any pitfalls to avoid on the road to unity? Monnet replies without hesitation: "Domination. Domination is the curse of the world."

'Yankees come back,' plead fiscally ill Philippines 51st-state movement gains strength in Philippines

By JOHN NANCE

MANILA (AP) — A plea of "Yankees come back" is wafting through the Philippines. Some Americans in this former U.S. colony are bewildered.

The cause is a Filipino movement that says the cure for the island's ills is to become the 51st state.

"The president of the republic calls the idea unbelievable. A man who demands America get out of military bases here says, "Fantastic, simply crazy."

But the leaders of the movement, called Philippines Statehood, U.S.A., smile and turn such abuse into another chance to voice their case.

"Whoever says we are crazy is crazy himself," proclaims Rufino Antonio, who heads the movement. "You should see the mail we get supporting us. You can almost see the tears in the eyes of some writers. Beautiful letters."

In a two-page newspaper advertisement in October, the organization said its card-carrying membership topped 2½ million. This doubled the membership claimed one month earlier in an ad imploring Filipinos to "save the Philippines from disaster."

"The mail just poured in... simply overwhelming," Antonio says.

PUSHED TOGETHER, the Philippines' 7,000-plus islands would be slightly larger in land area than Arizona. The Spanish were colonial masters from the mid-1500s to 1898 when the U.S. moved in. American authority ended in 1946, but English is still spoken widely and U.S. fads and fashions flourish.

The American presence is declining yet private U.S. investment amounts to about $1 billion. Approximately 47,000 American citizens live here. About 75 per cent of them are servicemen and their families at Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base. The Philippines' population is roughly 38 million.

Antonio and his friends calculate carefully the vote potential in their statehood movement.

"We should hit over three million members by late this year and at least five million by the end of '72," says Charlie Tausas, the secretary-general.

"And all eligible to vote," chimes in Antonio and shows letters of application. Look here. See, 30 names on that one... 60 there... 45... everybody wants to join. We get a couple hundred letters every day."

A visitor suggested that membership dues and card fees alone must be building up a tidy treasury.

"NO, SIR," Tausas countered. "Everything's free. Thanks to the congressman here, nobody pays a thing."

term in the House of Representatives, is in his 50s and owns several business enterprises. He says he has spent about $15,000 on advertising, cards, letters, leaflets, etc.

It sounded impressive, the visitor said, but the idea seemed impossible. How would they make the Philippines a state?

"Alas! Good question," said Antonio, "everybody asks that. Here's what we tell them:

"First, the Philippines has terrific social and economic problems — everybody knows that. And the people have lost all confidence in the government, public officials, politicians — they only talk, talk, talk."

"Everybody knows, too, how successful America is. So by making the Philippines the 51st state — if Puerto Rico doesn't beat us, we've got to get going. So by making the Philippines the 51st state — if Puerto Rico doesn't beat us, we've got to get going — then most big U.S. companies would build factories here to go after Asian business... compete with Japan.

"Military bases would be built up, to fight communism — most important, extremely important. There'd be massive construction... jobs, money."

THE PLAN IS to ask the Philippine Congress next year for a national referendum on statehood proposal. If congress refuses, Antonio said, the statehood group would have to run its own candidates in the 1973 national elections.

Supposing the movement succeeded here, the visitor asked, how would America be convinced?

"Ah yes, that's the second most popular question," Antonio replied.

"Well, first of all it would be very good for America. The U.S. is losing Vietnam, Korea, Thailand, Okinawa. So where does that leave the U.S.? Guam."

"Now I ask you, what is a world power doing with its Asian base of operations in a little place like Guam? Especially with America's deep commitment to stop communism and compete in business."

"But in the Philippines there is everything. Great natural resources, people who want to work. A great partnership. It would form the frontline of the U.S.A. in Asia."

"And above all would be the fact that Filipinos want the United States. We love America."

Filipinos were the No. 1 immigrants to the United States last year. At least 125,000 Filipinos live there as registered aliens. Unofficial estimates of the number there run as high as 500,000.

Spokesman of the embassy asserted: "We have no comment on this movement one way or the other."

Filipino has 'no regret' for attempt to assassinate Pope

By VINCENTE MALIWANAG

MANILA (UPI)—Behind bars, Benjamin Mendoza y Amor shows no remorse for what he did a year ago—the first assassination attempt against a pope in modern history.

Now serving a sentence at the Philippine National Penitentiary for attempted murder, the vagabond 36-year-old Bolivian surrealist painter flashes the same defiant, angry look he had when he attacked Pope Paul VI with a 13-inch-long black dagger at the Manila International Airport on Nov. 27, 1970.

"I have no regret. It's all over. It's finished. I'm not gonna do it no more again. I did it as a favor to the people — to save them from superstition," the hawk-nosed Mendoza said in heavily accented English during an interview.

"WHEN I get out, I'm gonna paint a lot and write poetry. I'm gonna think no more of people who are not really holy," he said.

Mendoza sported a crew-cut, was clean shaven and wore the same crumpled, checkered jacket which he had on most of the time during his three-month court trial, dark green pants, flaming red socks and brown plastic slippers.

MENDOZA Y AMOR
In Manila Prison

He occupied the upper deck of a wooden bunk in one corner of the penitentiary's reception and diagnostic center.

Mendoza said he had no major complaints about prison life although he spoke of recurring pain in his right arm, sprained during a motorcycle accident two years ago, which has prevented him from painting or writing in prison.

MENDOZA said prison officials gave him only one special restriction — not to discuss religion with other inmates.

"He's an exemplary prisoner and we have had no misconduct reports about him," said Arnold Pataasil, penal education supervisor.

Mendoza was sentenced last April to imprisonment ranging from a minimum of two years, four months and one day to a maximum of four years and two months. If he maintains a good behavior rating, he is eligible for parole after he serves his minimum prison term.

He maintains to this day, as he did during his trial, that he did not intend to harm the Pope and merely wanted to kill him "super-realistically."

"When I went to the airport, my knife was wrapped in plastic. I shouted — 'this man did not come on a peace pilgrimage. He came to spread superstition. He arrived wearing a fancy dress. Inside his plane were almanacs and calendars mainly with his portraits. That shows he does not come for a peace pilgrimage. It shows he is a common man. He rented a plane. If he was holy, he would fly by himself without a plane," Mendoza said.

"TO HAVE regret is to be sorry. I have none. When I went to the airport, I went with my right senses. I was not drunk or crazy."

When told that the Pope has forgiven him, Mendoza half-smiled and said: "Then why are they keeping me here? They should let me out so I can paint and write nice poetry."

Mendoza said when he finishes serving his sentence, he plans to go to Mozambique where he has some friends and if permitted by Philippine authorities, later revisit this country. He said he has no intention at the moment of returning home to La Paz, Bolivia, where his widowed mother and two brothers live.

Italian murder mystery gets more confusing

Long Beach, Calif., Thurs., Nov. 15, 1971

By ERNEST SAKLER
ROME (UPI) — Sixteen months ago, a court convicted Dante Valente of murder and sentenced him to 10 years and eight months in jail after a trial in which his wife was the main prosecution witness.

Now, Rita Valente says her testimony is untrue and she wants to clear him of the charges.

To complicate the mystery surrounding one of Italy's most bizarre murder cases, court officials do not know where the Valentines are and if they love or hate one another.

The "Mystery of the Via Eritrea," as Rome newspapers call it after the street where it happened, began just over five years ago on Nov. 12, 1966, when salesgirl Simonetta Aprisio told police a stranger got into her parked car, tied her wrists with a string and pricked her skin with a knife. The man fled, shooting and killing Sergio Mariani, a passerby who was trying to stop him.

MISS Aprisio was unable to provide a description of her attacker. Police arrested her for aiding and abetting on the theory that she knew the man, but then dropped the charge and released her.

Valente was arrested more than a year later when his wife went to tell police he had confided to her that he was the killer. Valente said he made the remark as a joke and accused his wife of trying to get rid of him.

When the case eventually came to court last year with typical Italian slowness, the Valentines quarreled repeatedly in court, accusing each other of sadomasochistic leanings and conjugal infidelity, but then again voiced mutual love.

Miss Aprisio and other witnesses said they could not tell whether Valente was the killer. The court convicted him on the basis of his wife's testimony and some circumstantial evidence about a stolen car.

When the verdict was announced, Mrs. Valente ran out of the courtroom and burst into sobs. Valente looked after her and shook his head.

VALENTE appealed the sentence and was set free pending review of the case. He later disappeared from the village where the court had ordered him to reside and a new arrest warrant was issued for him.

A court of appeals began its review of the case Wednesday with a bombshell — a letter from Mrs. Valente saying her earlier testimony was false.

'Louise' heralds Carol's 'arrival'

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Since her company debut with the New York City Opera, in February, 1969, California soprano Carol Neblett has done a succession of roles impressively. But not until Tuesday night, when the NYCO unveiled its current revival of its 1962 production of "Louise" at The Music Center, has this gifted young singer been given the opportunity to display all her many artistic credentials to the full for her followers on this coast.

With special help from conductor Charles Wilson, from John Alexander (her Juliet), and from three dozen of her NYCO colleagues who also occupy the stage, Neblett on this occasion justified, in every wise, the revival. She makes a beautiful, touching, lustrously-sung Louise. And she acts fluently and convincingly, a bonus considering the somewhat tentative histrionic performances she has given here in the past.

Her heroine grows, from the lovesick girl of Act I to the full-blown voluptuary of the Montmartre scene and the sad-wise young adult of the climax. Her "Depuis le jour" is radiant vocally, but it seems to originate from deep within the character; for once, the command of dynamics and musicality is matched by utter sincerity of expression. Neblett has arrived.

John Alexander's Julien is so deeply musical forthright, and well-sung, one hates to point out that, on this stage, he looks to be more the age of Louise's parents than the young singers playing those roles. But, if you are willing to suspend visual credibility, there is much to admire in Muriel Greenspan's fully-characterized Mother and Michael Devlin's two-dimensional Father.

Except for smallish voices, minimal projection, and occasional mushy diction, the succession of smaller parts are well done. Notable among those singing them are Kenneth Riegel, David Hall, and Sandra Darling.

Anthony Besch contributed the naturalistic staging, Gordon Micunis the somewhat tired sets and costumes, Hans Sondheimer the lighting.

PATRICK JUDE rehearses scene for "Jesus Christ Superstar" to be presented at the Long Beach Arena tonight. Jude portrays Judas in the controversial rock opera.

Plain-looking Gene will stick to movies

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Gene Hackman is a rare fish in today's entertainment picture, swimming against the current by working solely in movies while other newcomers are rolling along with the television tide.

His success is all the more interesting inasmuch as he lacks the explosive qualities of a Steve McQueen, the profile of Warren Beatty and even the forlorn charm of Dustin Hoffman.

In the past six years he has appeared in 16 motion pictures, a startling number compared to what other newcomers — with the possible exception of Elliott Gould — are doing.

He looks as if he has a broken nose, his hair is receding and his face gives the impression of being lumpy.

men are the ones producers and directors think of first for romantic heroes. "Those pictures with that kind of casting will always be made, and I see nothing wrong with it."

"If a studio or a producer has a choice of a fair actor with a handsome face and a good actor without a handsome face, you can almost bet he'll take the good-looking guy every time."

"IT FALLS back on whether the audience would rather see their neighbor up there on the screen or a romantic figure."

With the exception of Mrs. Hackman, few women suffer cardiac palpitations at the sight of Gene Hackman.

He would, in fact, pass unnoticed on the street because he does look so much like the working stiff next door who rakes leaves, shovels snow and drinks more beer than he should.

Hackman avoids television because he believes there still exists a stigma attached to the tube. "My advisors tell me if I want a film career I'd better pass up television," Hackman said. "There's a feeling 'TV and movies are not interchangeable from an actors point of view.'"

With his movie career booming Hackman isn't taking any chances.

KAYE SEEKS CHINA VISIT

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Comedian Danny Kaye, recently returned from his 10th world tour for the United Nations Children's Fund said Wednesday he'd love to visit Communist China on his next tour.

"I have a notion that the Chinese have done very well by their kids," Kaye said during a news conference. "I would love to go to China as a UNICEF observer if I would be allowed."

Peking's recent entry into the world body has made such a trip possible, a UNICEF spokesman said. Kaye said he was last in China in 1931, when a show he had been touring with journeyed to Shanghai and Canton.

That old holiday spirit seems to have escaped us

NEW YORK — There used to be a song that went "Wedding bells are breaking up that old gang of mine."

Well, it appears to this old codger here that jet planes, cruises, excursions and expressways are breaking up these old holidays of mine. The fact that Christmas holly and Santa Claus were on display long before Thanksgiving is just one of the things that annoy me about the way we observe the holidays nowadays.

I don't merely mean the trend that will probably cause the merchants to have their Easter bunnies on display about Dec. 21.

How many people do you know who decided not to have a Thanksgiving turkey at home this Thanksgiving? Quite a lot, I'll bet.

WHY? Well, there were places that looked more interesting to go than home — a terrible admission I feel.

"San Juan would be nice," says brother Bill, the swinger, brandishing a travel folder of a bikini mermaid. While Sister Sue, the husband huntress, opines that she can get on a chartered plane going to Miami or Acapulco where the Adonises are tanned, muscular and, hopefully, unmarried.

Leaving us old fogies without our youngsters so we decide that since we can't devour a turkey ourselves, we'll go to some restaurant — but to what restaurant?

So many restaurants don't expect business that day that they close, and many of those that remain open don't know from turkeys, sweet potatoes, cole slaw, pumpkin pie and all that. So you might as well stay home and open a couple of cans of M&M's for all the fine eating you get out of it.

THE holidays once were centers of a reuniting of the family. Where little family jokes were retold and embellished and the parents and children got to know each other a little better. Years later those happy days at the family table were remembered with laughter. What are we going to remember now? What Bill and Sue said as they flung themselves out the door with their bags while a cab was waiting to rush them off to the airport?

They probably won't even have turkey on turkey day where they're going. Probably stone crabs or arroz con pollo or tacos or chili or something. Little they will ever know about Thanksgiving and the meaning of it. The only enjoyment of turkey day anymore is by the turkeys since so many people are going away that turkeys are being spared.

So that's the way it's going to be, so maybe I won't be home for any more holidays. I always wondered what Paris and Rome would be like at Christmas time. Maybe I'll just take off for some foreign clime and let 'em trim their own tree and open their own packages the night of Dec. 24.

Happy holidays!

ASEAN ministers meet in bid to decide own fate

By MAX VANZI

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI)—The Communist Chinese are in the United Nations. The British are no longer a major power in Asia. The Americans are pulling troops out of Vietnam.

Great changes are at hand for Southeast Asia, and at stake is who will do the changing.

In Kuala Lumpur this week, ministers from five nations will meet to see if — for once in the history of the region — the governments of the area can have a say in the direction the changes take.

Foreign ministers and officials from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — Malaysia, Thailand, the Philippines, Singapore and Indonesia — are meeting here today through Saturday to tackle the task.

In a first tentative step toward molding their own future, the ASEAN ministers are due to proclaim a "declaration of peace and neutrality" for all of Southeast Asia.

There is no indication of what exactly is meant by neutrality, nor whether the five nations are in agreement on a definition. The declaration is unlikely to go much beyond calling on the big outside powers to refrain from interfering in the affairs of the countries concerned.

BUT even that much would be regarded as a victory, even if the plea were ignored. For it would mark a new milestone along the road to the regional cooperation embodied in the ASEAN concept.

Staff officials of the ASEAN nations are on the meeting. The foreign ducting today's session of ministers take over on Friday and Saturday.

Indonesia's Adam Malik is coming from U.N. headquarters in New York where he is General Assembly president. Foreign Secretary Carlos Romulo will represent the Philippines, Foreign Minister S. Rajaratnam will come from Singapore and Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak, also Malaysia's foreign minister, will be the host. In a late development, Thailand will be represented by Thanat Khoman, despite the government shakeup in Bangkok in which Thanat lost his job as foreign minister. He will attend the ASEAN meeting as a special envoy.

A marked disparity in foreign policies exists among the five nations, especially on China. The meeting here thus is publicized as an attempt to reach a common stand on "recent developments."

and on President Nixon's forthcoming visits to Peking and Moscow.

Fears have been voiced by diplomats that Nixon's summitry could produce a three-power understanding concerning the future of the 200 million people of Southeast Asia, and the region again could be at the mercy of outside interests.

To prevent that, the ASEAN ministers are expected to declare the region a "zone of peace" and later seek guarantees from the three major powers that neutrality will be respected. A U.N. declaration to this effect is reportedly the ultimate ASEAN objective.

A neutrality plan, originally put forward by Razak, envisaged a joint declaration among all Southeast Asian countries, including all Indochina. But the main goal of the ASEAN meeting is seen as an attempt on a smaller scale to achieve the same thing.

Razak, who proposed neutralization a year ago, said last week the ASEAN meeting will make "an important milestone" toward achieving neutralization.

IT MAY not be that much of a foregone conclusion, however. Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos said last Saturday after a foreign policy council meeting that Romulo has been told to "support in principle" the neutralization move "but to inquire further into the nature of the proposal."

Indonesia has given its full backing to the move but has also expressed concern on its implications for the security of not only Indonesia but also of her neighbors.

Thailand, initially cool, swung around to supporting the idea after China was admitted to the U.N. But the coup in Bangkok Nov. 17 has cast renewed doubts on Thai support.

Singapore relatively quiet about the ASEAN meeting, is regarded by diplomats here to be in no position to take a separate stand and thus is believed to support neutralization.

Becoming a part of any neutralization scheme, however, presents problems for most ASEAN countries.

Thailand and the Philippines have military and economic ties with the U.S. Singapore and Malaysia are part of a new five-nation defense arrangement in which Britain, Australia and New Zealand are partners.

Another question mark is the support required — for the Razak version of neutrality, at any rate — from the major powers.

Can the Soviet Union, the U.S. and mainland China be persuaded jointly to promise holding indefinitely to a hands-off policy in an area where all three have or had intense interests?

Indonesia training Cambodians

JAKARTA (AP)—An Indonesian military spokesman confirmed Wednesday long-standing reports in this capital that Cambodian troops are receiving guerrilla warfare training in Indonesia.

Brig. Gen. Agus Marpaung told newsmen that "Cambodian military personnel have been training in Indonesia for some time and it is a normal thing between friendly nations." He declined to say how many Cambodian troops are in Indonesia.

His statement followed a report from the North Vietnam News Agency charging that Indonesians were training Cambodian troops.

Congress gets Nixon coal-mine safety report

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon has sent Congress the first annual report on health programs established by the 1969 Coal Mine Safety Act, and said the government is "moving rapidly to further refine health and safety standards" for coal miners.

Nixon said "it is encouraging" that the Welfare Department has approved 398 plans providing confidential, free medical examinations for nearly 76,000 underground miners. The Public Health Service also is contracting with medical organizations for chest X rays of coal miners in seven states where mine operators have not submitted health plans, Nixon said.

Marcos's big election setback clouds future

By JOHN NANCE

MANILA (AP) — Filipino voters have dealt President Ferdinand Marcos the first serious setback in the dazzling career that has established him as the most powerful leader in the republic's history.

The question now is: Are his winning days ended or are new victories on the way? Betting is going both ways here.

Marcos himself was not a candidate in the recent midterm elections. But both he and his Liberal Party opponents had urged voters to mark ballots as a yes or no to the president's six years in office.

Marcos had hand-picked his Nacionalista Party's eight candidates for the Senate. Six lost by embarrassingly large margins.

The Nacionalistas still maintain a numerical majority in the 24-seat Senate and dominate the House of Representatives. But the fact stands out that Marcos the political lion has been wounded.

The setback came exactly two years after he scored his greatest triumph by becoming the first Philippine president to win a second four-year term. He won by a margin so awesome that whispers began almost immediately that Marcos had become too powerful.

CRITICS muttered that he had used massive amounts of money, government machinery and chicanery. They whispered that he was a man of ruthless and fearsome ambition.

True or not, the accusations spread, entwined in other criticism over economic troubles, labor strife and unprecedented student demands for reform in a society marked by a tiny rich elite and poor masses.

Marcos devalued the peso and set the national economy on a fresh course and outlined his own programs for social reform.

But nevertheless the outcry against him grew. He took on some newspapers and broadcast stations in bitter public feuds and split openly with some powerful members of his own party.

The president charged he was being persecuted because he wouldn't grant favors. In turn, he was accused of being blatantly corrupt, arrogant and power-mad.

The Liberals, led by outspoken Sen. Benigno Aquino Jr., heaped on criticism. They fanned suspicions that Marcos and his glamorous wife were plotting to keep the presidency in the family after 1973 despite a clause in the constitution forbidding a third term.

CHARGES of sinister machinations peaked in August after a Liberal party rally in Manila was bombed by terrorists. The explosion killed nine bystanders and wounded 96 persons, including all eight Liberal senatorial aspirants. As a result, some of them went through the campaign wearing bandages and riding wheelchairs.

Marcos declared the bombing was the work of Communists. The Liberals hinted that Marcos himself was responsible. Even if he wasn't, they said the blame should go to a climate of violence that had flourished under his lack of leadership.

Marcos denounced this as backhanded propaganda and worked for his Senate candidates — four of whom had served in his cabinet. But despite his help, the first six senate seats went to Liberals. The closest Marcos man finished at least 200,000 votes behind.

Marcos has declined to admit defeat, says city and provincial offices were largely won by Nacionalis-tas and acknowledges only that the Senate contests were "unfavorable."

HE HAS declined to analyze the results except to say that the bombing brought the liberals a massive sympathy vote. His enemies say it was an overwhelming protest vote against all that Marcos stands for.

Some social scientists suggest that in the Philippines' situation, no president could accomplish what the country needs. According to this view, the setback given Marcos was a culmination of disappointment that the most powerful man to rise in the republic simply wasn't up to the job. Others say it was a reversion to the tradition of voting against the establishment.

Marcos has appealed for national unity, an end to all feuds and the binding of wounds opened in the campaign. He has invited Liberals to join his government's decision-making councils and said he was humbled before the will of the Filipino people. Many poor Filipinos cheered these overtures and the Liberals welcomed them guardedly. The president's diehard enemies insist, however, that it is a trick — that Marcos is searching for a new way to keep the family in the presidential palace after 1973.

Filipino's citizenship case gains

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge has signed an order that could make a quarter of a million Filipinos eligible for naturalization as U.S. citizens.

U.S. District Judge Lloyd Burke signed the order in the case of Marciano Hibi, who became eligible for citizenship by serving with Gen. Douglas MacArthur during World War II.

Hibi joined the Philippine Scouts in February, 1941, was in the battles of Bataan and Corregidor, and spent several months as a Japanese prisoner. When MacArthur returned to the Philippines, Hibi, by now out of prison camp, rejoined his unit and served until Dec. 5, 1945.

Hibi, 54, is a cook working in San Francisco. His court proceeding was begun when the government tried to deport him because his visa had expired.

HE was denied citizenship because he had not been naturalized while still in the service.

CSLB student may have key Smog-control breakthrough?

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

History books may someday list a senior chemistry student at California State College, Long Beach, as the scientist who discovered the way to end smog.

However, Jay Anthony Mark, 21, son of a Newport Beach dentist and a resident of CSLB's on-campus dorms, and his cautious faculty adviser, chemistry professor Robert Loesch, stress repeatedly that the student's research on the smog problem may lead to nothing at all.

It's too early to tell, they said Wednesday as they watched a clear chemical bubbling into a heated beaker in their laboratory.

But, both admitted, their own readings and the record-searching of a patent attorney have turned up no evidence that Mark has not found the key to a surprisingly simple, inexpensive answer to ending the smog produced by automobile.

Mark's patent-pending discovery is a chemical reaction process in which the most dangerous ingredient of smog, oxides of nitrogen, is broken down into its harmless, natural elements.

IF SUCH A reaction can be incorporated in an auto muffler unit, said Mark, cars would cruise around expelling only gases that have always been present in earth's atmosphere. It would apparently work with leaded gasoline, too, he said.

While it is surprising to Loesch and CSLB's director of research, Dr. Darwin Mayfield, that an undergraduate may have discovered the key to the smog problem, the nature of his discovery has surprised them even more.

The process utilizes urea, one of the cheapest and most plentiful chemicals marketed, said the professors. The reaction between urea and oxides of nitrogen has long been known, even among chemists with only basic knowledge, they said.

Both professors said it just appears that nobody ever applied the reaction to the smog problem. A further search of patent office records must be made before they are sure the process has not previously been discovered as an effective or unfeasible smog combatant, they added.

Mark himself will make no predictions about the success of the process, which he has spent 18 months researching.

"The project moves as fast as time will allow me to work," said Mark, who's carrying a full load of college classes.

"My work here is from 10 at night until six in the morning. This is my date for Friday night, right here," he said, pointing to the bubbling chemicals.

Mark, who hopes to study medicine, said he plans to discuss his discovery with representatives of industries which may want to purchase development rights and attack the problems of engineering the muffler device.

As ironic as the simple nature of Mark's discovery, is the advice he once received from a high school chemistry teacher.

"I got a D in chemistry in high school. The teacher told me never to go into science," said Mark. "I've seen him since. He apologized and said he was entitled to one mistake."

10-year-olds are thankful for much—freedom, family, 'brother to beat up'

By JAMES LEAVY
Staff Writer

When a little fellow bows his head to give thanks today there's many a parent who would like to know exactly what he appreciates most.

Mrs. George Jones gained some insights into the 10-year-old mind when she asked youngsters in her fifth-grade class at Mark Twain Elementary School to write down the one thing for which they were most thankful.

Here is a partial list:

"... being an American," — David Tost.

"... having freedom," — Jeff Boyer.

"... good family and relatives," — Karen Ohlinder.

"... I live where there isn't a war or anything like that going on," — Linda Walton.

"... Dr. James Nasmith. He invented basketball," — Mark Seizman.

"... being born in the U.S." — Clay Pinkerton.

"... didn't have to take square dancing lessons," — James McClintock.

"... for people," — Nancy Dean.

"... for having God," — John Lum.

"... for young men who fight in wars to save our country," — Barbara Hall.

"... for being myself," — Matthew Black.

"... for being alive," — Steven Reges.

"... for excelling in sports. They are neat," — Steve Bailey.

"... for people," — Mrs. Jones said many of the comments were oriented toward freedom and America because her pupils are studying U.S. history and the founding of the nation.

There was, however, one anonymous entry.

One careful lad said he was thankful "I have a brother to beat up on." He signed it "The Green Phantom."

Vice Adm. Walker in L.B. Navy air boss defends F14 as any enemy's match

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

The commander of the Naval Air Force in the Pacific Fleet defended the controversial F14 fighter-bomber before a Long Beach audience Wednesday and said it will match anything a potential enemy might put up against it in the years ahead.

"Believe me when I tell you this plane meets all our expectations," Vice Adm. Thomas J. Walker told more than 250 persons at a luncheon meeting of the Long Beach Rotary Club in the Lafayette.

Walker's unqualified praise of the craft, while not new, apparently was designed to help offset some of the stinging criticism that has been leveled at the plane and its maker from congressional quarters.

THE PLANE, which crashed on its maiden test flight but has since flown successfully, has been called "a lemon, pure and simple," by its foremost congressional critic, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisconsin.

But the Navy, despite some early misgivings of its own, has stuck by the plane and says it intends to hold the Grumman Corp. to its present contract for 301 F14s even though the company said it fears it will lose money on the pact.

Efforts to cut funds for the F14 have been blocked in the Senate.

The F14, known as the Tomcat, was designed as a successor to the F4 Phantom, the McDonnell Douglas fighter that is now the mainstay of the Navy's air fleet.

PROXMIRE has said U.S. firms "could turn out an austere new fighter with better performance than the F14 at only a fraction of its price." According to the Navy, the new fighter-bombers will cost $15.6 million apiece—almost $4 million more than announced by the Pentagon last August.

Walker, in his talk to the Rotarians, said the F14 "is in every way equal to any fighter it may be put up against for many years to come."

Comparing the craft to the F4, the admiral said "the F14, with its first generation engines, has an 80 per cent better combat radius, a 40 per cent better turn radius and a 21 per cent better acceleration than the F4. It (also) has a 20 per cent better rate of climb and a radar range that is 100 per cent greater than the F4." Furthermore, he added, it will be even better when it gets its second-generation engine.

DEPARTING from his prepared text, Walker threw in a line that reminded him, he said, of something he'd heard elsewhere about Proxmire. "If the Lord wanted man to fly, he wouldn't have invented Sen. Proxmire," he said to a chorus of chuckles.

Proxmire has been a constant thorn in the side of aviation interests.

Earlier, the admiral praised the vast majority of personnel under his command as dedicated men. "They are far from being the dissident band of malcontents you might believe after reading and listening to some news reports."

A BIG LIFT

The 350-ton floating crane at Long Beach Naval Station was pressed into service Wednesday for the heaviest lift ever attempted in Long Beach Harbor—a $5 million nuclear reactor that weighed 407 tons. The big piece of gear was hoisted onto a barge for transit to the Bay Area and up the Sacramento River to Clay, Calif., the site of a nuclear power plant. The reactor was shipped to Long Beach harbor from Mt. Vernon, Ind. where it was manufactured and transferred to the barge.

For L.B. subsidence work

Thomas to press state on debt

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas of San Pedro Wednesday assured Long Beach he will push for a prompt settlement of the reimbursement due the city from the State of California as its share of the costs of subsidence remedial work on the tidelands.

City Manager John R. Mansell told Long Beach councilmen Tuesday that the city estimated the state owes more than $3 million for such work, some of it dating back to 1956.

Mansell said Wednesday he has received a letter from Assemblyman Thomas, chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, saying he has directed the auditor general to examine the problem "as soon as possible" and report his findings and recommendations to the Joint Audit Committee.

"We will follow up on this matter until it is brought to a satisfactory conclusion," Thomas promised.

In his report to the City Council, Mansell said 90 capital projects have been completed but the state has not determined how much it will pay the city as its share of the subsidence remedial work.

I'm not too fond either of the ones who think you can turn right against a red light or stop sign without pausing. If you glare at them they finally signal, but the signals should not be reported in a family newspaper.

Some of these drivers are bound for Forest Lawn. So far as I am concerned they can have the right-of-way if they simply can't wait to get there.

THE FORTY-NINERS are debating what to call their new College Union. The students will vote next month. Four names have been suggested: CSCLB College Union, La Casa de Francisco, The House of Peace (La Casa de Paz) and Puuvunga (pronounced Poovunga).

Puvunga? Keith A. Dixon of the Anthropology Department says it is the traditional name associated with the hill on which the campus centers. "Like Cahuenga and Topanga" he writes "it is a name in the local Gabriellino Indian language. Puvunga was a famous village, next door to the college, which was the center of pilgrimages and gatherings that attracted Indians from great distances for ceremonies connected with their prophet and God Chinichnich, because this was their God's birthplace."

JUST DON'T CHANGE the name of the school to Chinichnich Tech. I've had enough trouble with California State College at Long Beach. Cal State Hyphen Long Beach and California State Cemma Long Beach.

Now that it's assured of university status I'm in favor of calling it Long Beach University or just plan State. If a suspect is hauled to the pokey it doesn't do much for him to report he's being detained in the Public Safety Building Hyphen Long Beach.

MY TOWN AND YOURS

LONG AGO, there was a comic strip in which two fussy fellows never got anywhere. One was forever saying to the other, "After you, my dear Alphonse." The other insisted, "No, after you, my dear Gaston."

Reader M. N. A. thinks there can be too much courtesy in traffic, even for pedestrians. The letter said: "For example, when I was not yet to center of 1st and Alamitos crosswalk a car reached the corner and last half of my crosswalk ahead of me. I waved him the go-ahead and he waved 'You first, my dear Alphonse' and I waved, 'No, you first, my dear Gaston.' And I had to cross and delay him and miss the adjoining crosswalk (until after) the next two blocks of cars arrived. Either Alphonse or Gaston said: 'You damn fool.'"

I AGREE that the Alphonse-Gaston act can be irritating and sometimes downright dangerous in a case where a pedestrian and a car in conflict both move ahead at the same time. However, I'm sure M. N. A. doesn't want drivers to lose their basic respect for and courtesy to the citizens on foot.

In my experience, California motorists and in particular Southern Californians are the best in the world for basic courtesy. For example, last Sunday a string of cars southbound on Downey Avenue in the center lane was held up by an auto at the Del Amo intersection. After the traffic light turned from red to green twice with no forward progress, the delayed drivers patiently backed up and pulled into the right lane to pass the stalled vehicle. There was not one honk for the nervous lady who was frantically trying to start her car.

When this happens in Detroit, New York, Paris, Rome or Tokyo the resulting symphony of horns can be heard by the Martians.

THERE IS, HOWEVER, a dangerous discourtesy in one area of driving. A lot of motorists have forgotten there is a turn indicator. They can't be bothered to let you know whether — or if — they are going to turn right or left. If you are in the center lane ready to turn left it is nice to know what the guy opposite you is planning to do. If you think he's going to turn, he doesn't and verse vica.

Also I am uptight about the motorist who roars up to a stop sign and runs over the crosswalk and you don't know whether he is going to stop. He seems to think everything is OK so long as HE knows.

The spirit that sustains us

There was no crime in the woods that first Thanksgiving, and the big problem was that there weren't enough people for the land.

That, at least, was the way Richard Winslow told it in a letter from Plymouth Plantation to George Morton in England in 1621.

"Our harvest being gotten in," Winslow wrote, "our Governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might, after a special manner, rejoice together, after we had gathered in the fruits of our labors. They four in one day killed as many fowl as with a little help besides, served the Company for almost a week, at which time, amongst other recreations, we exercised our arms, many of the Indians coming amongst us, and amongst the rest their great King, Massasoit, with some ninety men, whom for three days we entertained and feasted.

"THEY WENT OUT and killed five deer, which they brought in to the Plantation, and bestowed on our Governor, and upon the Captain and others . . . We found the Indians very faithful in their Covenant of Peace with us; very loving and ready to pleasure us.

"There is now a great peace amongst the Indians . . . and we, for our parts, walk as peaceably and safely in the woods here as in the highways of England . . .

"The country wanteth only industrious men to employ, for it would grieve your hearts to see so many miles together by goodly rivers uninhabited, and withal to consider those parts of the world wherein you live to be even greatly burdened with abundance of people. You might, on our behalf, give God thanks, who hath dealt so favorably with us."

The remarkable thing about Winslow's report, written on Dec. 21, was what it didn't mention: that sickness had cut the number of colonists to half and that starvation threatened the Pilgrims, whose settlement had been augmented a few days after Thanksgiving by the arrival from England of 35 more colonists who came poorly clothed, without food and containing among their number, as William Bradford wrote, "lusty young men, many of them wild enough, who little considered whether or about what they want."

What Winslow's letter was really a tribute to was not abundance of material things but the spirit of the colonists.

That spirit led them, without precedent in the laws of any other land, to make all men equal before the law.

In England the jury system was only for the nobility. They extended it to all men.

IN ENGLAND there were 149 capital crimes. They established only five.

In England there were hereditary privileges and titles. They had none.

America still has its "lusty young men, many of them wild enough." Many of the woods have given way to cities. The "goodly rivers" are polluted. Now this part of the world is "greatly burdened with abundance of people." There is no great peace in a world in which any danger is our danger.

But the spirit of the Colonists lives in our land and permeates our institutions, and for that we can "give God thanks, who hath dealt so favorably with us."

The law is for everyone

In Santa Barbara, Sheriff's Captain Joel N. Honey, the man who was in command at the scene of student riots at Isla Vista last year, has been fired.

The list of charges against the captain is long. It alleges that he:

- Wore an "irregular" uniform. That is to say that in addition to normal attire and weaponry he carried a spiked metal ball on a long chain and wore a Spanish sword.
  - Slapped handcuffed prisoners across the face without provocation.
  - Fired tear gas canisters from a shotgun grenade launcher at a man in a tree and then walked off as the man lay bleeding on the ground.
  - Instructed a sergeant to plant evidence on a narcotics suspect "if we can't get him legally."
  - Fired his revolver at the home of another officer in the department.

What others say

20th century, limited

(From Newsday)

Perhaps there will be no more compelling controversy in this century than the debate over population control. The issue has built into it a catalog of man's most elemental concerns — life, death and the control a society can exercise over its members.

And, at least for now, the issue of abortion appears to be the most vigorously contested of all the population questions. Although advocates and opponents have been equally ardent in their arguments, a federal survey released last week contends that the concept of abortion has made remarkable inroads into the American ethic.

As recently as 1968, survey data showed that 85 per cent of the public opposed liberalized abortion laws. But now, according to a study released by the Commission on Population Growth and the American Future, a recent poll suggests that half the American people favor more flexible regulations.

In addition, the survey reports that 60 per cent of the 1,700 persons questioned favor voluntary sterilization, half of the group thinks people should limit the size of their families regardless of how many youngsters they could support and more than half said they would consider adoption if they wanted more than two children.

But, most important, this survey indicates a tremendous upsurge in awareness about matters of population, a concern we think morally imperative in a nation so strong and rich as this one. America must be willing to exert leadership in the campaign to limit the world's population. If we fail, can we expect more of others?

How Thanksgiving really began

The first Thanksgiving observance in America, as every schoolchild knows, was conducted by the Pilgrims who settled in what is now Massachusetts in 1621.

But contrary to what most schoolchildren and ex-schoolchildren think, the idea didn't just catch on and become a national custom.

Quite the opposite. Thanksgiving as a holiday disappeared from American life shortly after the Pilgrims had that legendary turkey feed, and may never have reappeared had it not been for a little-known New Jersey congressman named Elias Boudinot.

If anyone deserves to be remembered as originator of the national holiday Americans are observing today, it's not the Pilgrim Fathers, but Rep. Boudinot.

BOUDINOT was a deeply religious man who was a founder and first president of the American Bible Society. In 1789, at the age of 49, he was elected to sit in the first Congress of the United States.

On Sept. 25, 1789, the annals of the House disclose, Rep. Boudinot delivered a speech saying he "could not think of letting the session pass over without offering an opportunity to all the citizens of the United States of joining, with one voice, in returning to Almighty God their sincere thanks for the many blessings He has poured down upon them."

He introduced a resolution requesting the president to set aside "a day of public thanksgiving and prayer."

There was, inevitably, a certain amount of opposition. In the U.S. Congress, you can't introduce a resolution hoping the sun will rise tomorrow without some colleague finding fault with it. The annals show that Rep. Thomas T. Tucker of South Carolina "thought the House had no business to interfere in a matter which did not concern them."

"Why should the president direct the people to do what, perhaps, they have no mind to do?" asked Tucker, who either was an early exponent of church-state separation or was just feeling grumpy that day.

REP. ROGER SHERMAN of Connecticut leaped to Boudinot's support with copious biblical quotations showing that the proposal was "warranted by a number of precedents in Holy Writ: for example, the solemn thanksgivings and rejoicings which took place in the time of Solomon after the building of the temple."

The worthy members of Congress were no more eager then than now to take a position which might be criticized back home as contrary to Holy Writ, and Rep. Sherman's sermon had the effect of silencing any further opposition.

"The question was now put on the resolution, and it was carried," the annals record.

Reps. Boudinot, Sherman, and Peter Sylvester of New York were appointed a committee to relay the request to President George Washington.

WASHINGTON welcomed the idea — not because he was the deeply religious man that pious legend has depicted him, for that he certainly was not. Rather, he saw it as an opportunity to cite as a particular reason for thankfulness the adoption of the new U.S. Constitution, which was still regarded by many citizens as a dubious blessing at best.

So President Washington issued a proclamation setting aside the last Thursday in November as a national day of Thanksgiving for "the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording (the people of America) an opportunity peaceably to establish a constitution of government for their safety and happiness."

And that's how the whole thing started.

Single day of giving thanks is not enough

SCRABBLE, Va. — These are contentious times, mean and angry times. The car radio, tuned to an all-news station, feeds the listener on sandwiches of dyspepsia — three pieces of bad news between two slices of commercial.

Up at the United Nations, the Red Chinese are hitting the United States; Ambassador Bush is hitting back. The Congress is arguing over campaign spending. A "poisonous" atmosphere — Ted Kennedy's word — beclouds the Rehnquist nomination. Down in Miami, George Meany is again denouncing the perfidious administration. The announcer speaks of smog in Alabama and arson in Oklahoma. Vice President Agnew, ordinarily a man of good taste, has tossed a tasteless slur at Pete McCloskey. Now this message . . .

It is too much. With a click of release, sweet silence fills the car. The highway that leads me home has nothing much to offer for the first 50 miles; but just west of Amisville, where the new four-lane section begins, an engineer with the soul of an artist laid out a great climbing curve. At its crest the whole world opens. In one glorious burst of trumpets, the Blue Ridge Mountains fill the sky. And the bruised heart gives grateful thanks.

AUTUMN has come to us late this year. October was dank and damp and filled with sullen days. Now, belatedly, the old tapestry reappears, a little faded, not so brilliant as before; the reds are the reds of embers, not of fire. We have more of rusted iron, and less of gold. But here on this crest, the spirit always lifts. One draws the long breath.

Do we, as Americans, ever truly reflect upon our blessings? Do we understand — really understand — how fortunate we are? Are we so obsessed with the news of badness that we forget about the goodness in our land?

A single Thanksgiving Day is not enough.

Time after time, in his campaign of 1968, Richard Nixon wound up his speech with the same peroration. We reporters used to put away our pencils when he came to the line. Now, driving home, it comes back with striking force. "If I could have chosen a time and place to be born," Nixon would say, "I would have chosen the 20th century in the United States of America."

HE WAS not speaking especially of our material wealth. The apologetic custom is to minimize this aspect of American society, to dwell upon the deprivations of our poor, to voice shame for the slums of Harlem and guilt for the shacks of Appalachia. Yet the fact is that our people are immensely better off, in the quality of their lives, than most of the people a reporter sees around the world. For these tangible benefits, produced by the energy and inventiveness and ambition of our land, Americans can be honestly grateful.

The things of the spirit count for more. Behind the quarrel over Rehnquist's confirmation lies the abiding concept of equal justice under law. Behind the political bickering is our system of free elections. A labor spokesman denounces a president; it is an exercise in free speech. I am headed home, where I am secure against a midnight pounding on my door. Off to the right, the white steeple of my small-town church catches the westerling sun: I am free to worship as I please.

The roads that have led around the world lead now to a gravelled lane, a bridge across White Walnut Run, a lamp in the window, a fire in the kitchen hearth. Wherever you are on this Thanksgiving Day, American, give thanks.

Chiropractors defended

EDITOR:

No doubt the misconception conveyed by Dr. Gerald A. Heidbreder, chief health officer, through the article by Mary Neiswender Nov. 13 was due to a lack of knowledge and insufficient time to investigate.

Doctors of chiropractic of the accredited colleges have had two years of preprofessional college education and four years of professional education. The chiropractic student studies anatomy in depth, including human dissection, a similar number of hours in diagnosis, more hours in X-ray technique and interpretation, nutrition and physiotherapy than an allopathic student.

Could it possibly be that Dr. Heidbreder and the American Medical Association are fearful of the comparison of the efficacy of the methods of these two professions?

If mud-slinging is to be the method of convincing the public, the chiropractic profession has a mass of authoritative surveys of the incompetence, abuse of dangerous drugs, inept diagnoses, ghost surgery, etc., that would make hair-raising reading and reveals the true state of affairs in allopathic medicine.

Will Long Beach

repay hospitality?

EDITOR:

With the teaching profession so filled with capable applicants, this teacher found employment in the San Joaquin Valley. This meant a move from my home in Long Beach, and it meant leaving my family and the friends I had made when I taught at St. Joseph High School.

I expected to find much loneliness and many adjustments. To my surprise I have been accepted and absorbed into the Manteca community without ever being aware of it. The people here have made me feel like this is a second Long Beach.

I would like the people here to feel the way they made me feel with their hospitality and warmth. One way this would be possible would be to give their band, from East Union High School where I now teach, a very special Long Beach welcome. The East Union Lancer band will be coming to Long Beach for the Western Schools Band Review during the Thanksgiving holidays. Their director is Joe Baron.

Please help them to know and appreciate the Long Beach that I grew to know and appreciate while I lived there. I tell my students about how great home is and what a fantastic place Long Beach is, so I'd like you to bring my opinions to fact for these very special kids.

Fewer gadgets

I'm old enough so that I can remember when we didn't have so many electrical gadgets. It is my opinion that it would be better to have fewer of these really unnecessary luxuries and therefore less demand for power and therefore, maybe, cleaner air.

Unsung heroics

EDITOR:

Since we were at the pier in San Pedro when the fishing boat Frankio Boy pulled out Sunday (Nov. 15), we were excited to see by Monday's paper that her crew had saved some people from a sinking houseboat.

When I presented the skipper with the item I'd cut out of the paper the next morning, he seemed terribly pleased that someone had noticed. He said it happens often in the summertime.

Hope is a gift to share with mankind

The morning paper brought its quota of murders and injustices and wars and rumors of war.

At the corner, my neighbor—a kind woman—paused to talk of the fears she felt these days. Then she shrugged, as people do these days, and said frowningly, as people do these days: "But what can we do?"

I shrugged and frowned and nodded, the way people do these days, and we went our separate ways. It was only later that I realized how easily I had fallen into the trap of hopelessness, how easily I had succumbed to the spreading virus of despair.

When my neighbor said frowningly, "But what can we do?", I should have had the generosity to reply with a single word: "Hope."

I know it has a Pollyanna ring. But, by God, there is hope! I have never felt it more than in these past months. There is not only a joy in it, but, I think, a tremendous importance. Let me share mine with you if I can:

FOR MORE THAN a quarter of a century now we have teetered on the brink of nuclear annihilation, waging an insane Cold War that has distorted our vision and shriveled our minds. Yet, somehow, we have survived. There is hope in that.

Not only have we survived, but now Communist China enters the U.N. Our President, who built his career on anti-Communism, flies off to Peking and Moscow. In Geneva, we talk of nuclear disarmament. In Congress, we balk at military aid for dictators. The long, dark years of the Cold War are, hopefully, coming to an end.

And as the Cold War ends so too does the agony of Vietnam, of which cleaning up our environment and reforming our prisons and treating homosexuals fairly and . . . There's hope for a thousand causes.

But my hope comes primarily from the young. I have long thought this new generation would be mankind's best. They long ago recognized the in-justices of the Cold War, the atrocities of Vietnam, the injustices at home.

BUT THE VERY enormity of these problems, I think, gave many a feeling of hopelessness, a feeling of "What can we do?" And in their hopelessness, many of them turned to mindless violence, to drugs, or to a navel-contemplating withdrawal from life.

In their hopelessness, many of them understandably gave up the struggle.

But now, the campuses are quiet. Drugs, I'm told, are on the wane. And the young man who last year talked of hopeless, bloody revolution, now speaks glowingly of joining VISTA.

I think the young felt the hope long before I did. But they have given it to me. And I would, hopefully, pass it on to you. In these times, it is, I think, a precious gift.

Instead of blasting life from the face of this planet, I would offer you the hope of a golden age in which limitless nuclear energy provides for all in plenty and no human harm is a member of his own species.

I know that hope alone won't transform the world. But I know that the lack of it can, quite literally, destroy us all.

GEORGE ROBESON

Just a sandwich, with rights, please

THANKSGIVING is a handy holiday in that it gives most people one day off and many people a four-day weekend. It's the unimpeachable excuse to bust a diet that had been maintained tentatively for weeks or months.

It's not important as a "turkey day" anymore, because Turkey is no longer something special. It was special when I was a child, but recently it has been one of the best buys you can get in a supermarket. The only special thing about turkey is that it is a pain to the housewife, who could cook a roast with less trouble.

Like most of our holidays, Thanksgiving is a day of self-indulgence and a special game on TV, and nobody quite manages to recall what it was all about in the first place. You can tell it's Thanksgiving because the downtown Christmas decorations have been up for a few days, and it feels like Sunday when you still have a Friday and a Saturday to go.

For many people, it's a family reunion day. We patch up our quarrels and we're nice to our parents or grandparents or children or grandchildren that day. It's a good dress-rehearsal for Christmas, and that's very necessary, because the Christmas spirit takes some training-time to get used to.

It's great for the kids because they get a long weekend. It's tough on the mothers, for the same reason. The little children have a ball with it, because they are told the romanticized story of the first Thanksgiving, and some of them do Pilgrim plays in school. Often, they are told that this is a day to reflect on the marvelous luck they had being born in the United States.

to me on the streetcorner, waiting for the light to change, cancels out my vote on election day, and neither one of us is disturbed about it because at least we don't have to go through the tragicomic farce of a Saigon-style election.

If I get a parking-ticket, the metermaid provides me with a postage-paid envelope to send in my "ball," which is the most civilized way of fining a wrongdoer.

I look at the school system, the welfare system, and the freeway system, and I find that they are full of faults and still the best systems you can find for their purposes anywhere in the world. Today, I can love even a freeway, so Thanksgiving must have some impact on me.

WE DIDN'T destroy ourselves in a nuclear holocaust since the last day a year ago when we remembered to be thankful. President Nixon and George Meany can come to blows in an alley, and I know it won't collapse the country.

And if I want to thank God for all this, I can do it my way, in my own place, in my own time . . . or not at all, as I choose.

Frankly, I'm not terribly fond of turkey. But I'm terribly fond of the things we should be thankful for today, and tomorrow, and Saturday and on and on.

You can be just as thankful over a peanut-butter sandwich on Monday. The turkey may be gone, but the blessings aren't.

WE DIDN'T destroy ourselves in a nuclear holocaust since the last day a year ago when we remembered to be thankful. President Nixon and George Meany can come to blows in an alley, and I know it won't collapse the country.

And if I want to thank God for all this, I can do it my way, in my own place, in my own time . . . or not at all, as I choose.

So much for which to be thankful

As we observe this Thanksgiving Day many people are disturbed by the economic crises we are facing. We have the sordid treatment of our President by the head of the AFL-CIO. We have millions of workers waiting to see if they are to receive pay increases due them under negotiated contracts. Store owners are faced with increased costs but not yet permitted to raise prices. It is a trying time when great sacrifices are called for to overcome the danger to the economy caused by inflation.

If we consider only these factors we may say there is not much for which to give thanks. But, if we accept the fact that these controls are a temporary sacrifice essential to protection of what we have, we should be thankful that we have the courage and foresight to protect the economic system that has given us so much. We should be thankful that we have a President with the courage to use such controls which only the labor leaders and partisan opponents are attempting to stop.

TO COMPARE what we have and what we had 25 years ago charts in U.S. News magazine is a story of our great progress during those years. At end of World War II we had 55 million people employed. Today there are 79.5 million. While we have about 4 million unemployed this number is much less than we have had in several periods during that 25 years.

The workers of today have greater buying power than at any time in our history. In 1946 the average family income in 1971 dollars was equal to $5,800 a year compared with $10,300 today. That is an increased buying power of 77 per cent. While our population has increased 48 per cent the number of families owning their homes has increased 100 per cent.

In 1946 there were only 23 million families owning automobiles compared with 53 million today. Saving accounts in 1946 totaled $56 billion whereas today the total is $448 billion, an increase of almost 800 per cent. Even with inflation and lowered value of the dollar these savings are more than double what they were 25 years ago.

We have come a long way in providing civil rights for all our people. We have a long way to go but we have progressed more than any period since the blacks were freed from slavery. We are now suffering from violence and other trouble on our streets and campuses. But we can be thankful it has decreased in the past two years.

IN 1946 ONLY 42 million persons were covered by hospital insurance. Today it is estimated over 183 million of our 207 million population have such insurance. Medicare and Medi-Cal pays most of the doctor and other medical bills for the elderly and poor people whereas there was little or no such coverage in 1946.

Today we have 8.4 million young people attending college compared with 2 million in 1946. Vacation weeks taken in 1946 totaled 34.4 million compared with 95 million today. The number of people traveling to foreign countries has increased by many millions each year.

There are many worries today. But if we compare our living standard and securities with any time in the past we have much to be thankful for on this 1971 Thanksgiving Day.

Electronic roll-up garage doors can cause serious injuries to children, a Chicago doctor warns in Clinical Pediatrics.

Dr. Harvey Kravitz cites cases reported by the National Safety Council.

In one instance, a group of children were playing a game which required that each run out of the garage before the electronically operated door closed. A 5-year-old boy failed to make it and was struck on the neck and killed.

In another case, a rope attached to a garage door became entangled around a child's neck, raised her off the ground and causing her to strangle.

Homeowners should be encouraged to install newer and safer electronic doors which stop and reverse if they strike something, the doctor says. Such doors should be kept closed, and children should be forbidden to play with them.

A report on the hazard also appears in Modern Medicine.

SOME PATIENTS with phobias can be greatly benefited by a treatment that calls for prolonged, continuous exposure to the feared object or situation.

London psychiatrists say results come quickly and only a few treatment sessions are necessary.

Patients average two or three sessions totaling four to five hours of treatment.

Among those treated have been adults with long-standing specific phobias such as fear of balloons, cats, feathers, water, spiders, thunder and birds.

Both fantasy and reality are used in the concept of phobia exposure. The patient is encouraged to approach the feared object as closely and as quickly as possible and to remain in contact with it until anxiety diminishes.

The report on the procedure appears in British Medical Journal.

WHAT MANY parents still don't understand is that negative rules tend to stimulate the very behavior they prohibit; flatly forbidding an action is one of the most effective ways of generating a motive for it.

WE CAN NEVER understand someone until we are able to hear what he is not saying.

Leaves hospital in traction

Injured man trucked home

Story and Picture
By BOB ANDREW

"Home for Thanksgiving, jiggetty-jig."
"Home for turkey in a traction rig."

William Cobabe, 41, could have sung that little ditty to his nine children Wednesday as his wife, Mary, drove a rented truck from Torrance Memorial Hospital to their home in Manhattan Beach.

Cobabe has been in the hospital with his left leg in traction since a bone-shattering auto accident nine weeks ago at Sepulveda and Crenshaw Boulevards in Torrance.

"THIS was pretty much our own idea," Cobabe commented. "but the doctor agreed to go along with it as long as Mary got a closed van so I wouldn't catch pneumonia on the way home."

Hospital attendants rolled Cobabe's orthopedic bed down the fifth-floor corridor lined with family members on one side and nurses who have become cheerful friends during his long recuperation on the other.

The two most excited members of the family — Sarah, 3, and Ruthie, 1 — were still waiting down in the lobby, however. Health regulations had prevented them from visiting their father during the more than two months he has been hospitalized. In that time, Ruthie has learned to walk and has cut four more teeth.

As soon as the elevator doors opened to let the bed into the lobby, the two girls climbed alongside their dad for a happy hug.

gave him a rousing welcome when he appeared in the hospital corridor.

THE two oldest Cobabe children, Bill, 21 and Mary, 20, were still away at college Wednesday afternoon and were unable to greet their father until after he had been settled — bed and all — in the den of the family home at 123 S. Meadow Ave., Manhattan Beach.

All of the others — Jim, 18; Kathy, 16; Tom, 13; Cindy, 11; and Beth, 9 — were at the hospital, however. The girls scurried about carrying small items — hairbrush, clock, flowers — accumulated during the recuperation period.

Jim joined with the red-faced, green-jacketed attendants who helped lift the bed into the waiting rental van, and Tom kept a careful eye on the knots in the ropes steadying the bed inside the truck.

Cobabe hopes to be out of that bed in three to five weeks — preferably in time for Christmas.

"I'LL STILL be in a cast even then," he said, "but I'd like to spend at least part of the holidays sitting up."

He has already missed one chance for that, on Nov. 19, the Cobabes' 23rd wedding anniversary. However, the hospital staff cooperated then also by turning the bed to the fifth-floor patio for a private candlelight dinner served by son Tom.

Cobabe could have used some of that candlelight Wednesday to brighten the van's interior.

"I hate to close the door," Mrs. Cobabe blushed, "I was so excited about bringing him home I forgot to bring a flashlight."

Orange Co. housing for needy

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The Orange County Board of Supervisors decided Wednesday to form a housing authority, after finding "a shortage of safe and sanitary dwelling accommodations for persons of low income."

The vote on the controversial issue of a public housing agency came after lengthy testimony by scores of witnesses at a board hearing, and then debate by the supervisors themselves.

They split 3-2 on a motion offered by Chairman R. W. Batlin of Santa Ana, backed by Supervisors W. J. Phillips of Fullerton and Ralph B. Clark of Anaheim.

SUPERVISOR David L. Baker of Garden Grove agreed "Orange County needs a housing authority" and said there is "a serious shortage of low-cost houses," but he said there has been no preparation for the housing authority, no official survey of needs and no money available.

He said he would have to oppose the proposal on these grounds, warning his listeners that "you may be misled into believing there will be a vast program of public housing."

"What you expect won't come to pass," he cautioned.

Baker, a director of the Orange County Fair Housing Council and for two years a member of President Nixon's National Commission on Urban Problems, qualified himself as knowledgeable about housing needs. But he said the hopes and aspirations of proponents should be put in perspective. He insisted on "time to plan" for such an authority and goals.

SUPERVISOR R. W. Caspers Jr. of Newport Beach "opposed it 180 degrees," holding that private builders could solve the low-cost housing problem.

He held that "the record for public housing is lousy," and he agreed that even on the local level, "public agencies are not doing the job."

Several speakers among the host of those who advocated public housing stressed that low-income families are "forced" to accept inadequate housing and often pay too much rent.

Fr. Juan Romero insisted that "rent stamps are unacceptable," saying "this assures only that the landlord will be paid." James Miranda, a realty broker, said minority groups "expect adequate housing" for any housing authority.

REV. Galat Gaugh of the Santa Ana Housing Authority warned that some public housing "displaces people."

Knowlton Fernald of UCI-Project 21 said a housing study will be reported out soon, but will warn that "the needs cannot be met without federal subsidies."

Opponents were equally brief:

Albert J. H. Edwards of Garden Grove noted "many federally subsidized housing projects are below FHA standards."

Cliff Fraizer, who heads the Orange County Taxpayers' Association, called for submitting the housing authority issue to vote of the people.

ROBERT Fair of the Apartment House Owners' Association said there is "A high vacancy factor" in many apartment buildings and that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development now has an "experimental" rent subsidy program "which should be tried."

The three county supervisors who carried the day agreed to solicit cooperation from the county's 25 cities "because no housing authority can be successful without them."

Of an authority of five members, three would be supervisors and two named by the cities, they agreed.

Operating guidelines for the authority will be sketched for supervisors Dec. 15, it was learned.

Chamber and council still in a wrangle

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

When the city of Norwalk incorporated and elected its first city council in 1957, William English, at the time president of the Chamber of Commerce, told the council, "Through the years, the chamber has taken the brunt of minor complaints and gripes. Gentlemen, it's your turn now."

The words were spoken too soon, however, for the chamber is still under attack, this time from a small band of citizens — and it has had its city funds cut off.

For the second time in four years the Norwalk Chamber of Commerce is undergoing reorganization and Howard Dauer, immediate past president, is asserting "We ain't down yet."

THE most recent trouble started early this year when the chamber and the council found themselves with different ideas on how to promote the city.

The council asked chamber officials to present a definite program designed to increase visitors to the city and increasing sales tax revenue.

"This is the first time the council has attempted to give direction to the chamber," Dauer said.

Because such a program was not presented to the council the city's allotment of $20,000 to the chamber was suspended in September.

Dauer said a meeting between the council and the chamber board, billed as a session to exchange ideas, turned into a question and answer period with the chamber officials defending their operating procedures.

To add to chamber troubles, a local organization, known as the Concerned Citizens of Norwalk, which has about 30 active members, has attacked the chamber at several council meetings protesting the city's grant of $20,000 a year to the organization.

"It's surprising what a small vocal group can do to influence thinking," Dauer said, noting that as far as he knows, none of the group is active in the chamber.

The chamber has more than 400 members, but none of the three major shopping centers in the city are active.

"ONE of our major problems in conducting a citywide shopping promotion is getting the cooperation of shopping centers," Dauer noted.

Dauer said the attack on the chamber for using city funds is unwarranted.

Dauer said the current reorganization of the chamber will include a plan of promotion to be presented to the city council. However, plans for this promotion are being designed without the assistance of a professional chamber manager. The last manager resigned earlier this month.

"It was simply a matter of money," Dauer said. "When the city cut out their share of our $46,000 annual budget, we had no way to pay a manager."

L.B. allocates $5,500 for sickle-cell program

Allocation of $5,500 to the Long Beach Health Department to start a sickle cell anemia screening program for local residents was authorized Tuesday by the City Council.

Council acted on recommendations of Dr. I. D. Litwack, city health officer, who said sickle cell anemia is "a significant public health problem" in Long Beach.

Dr. Litwack said about one of every 10 black Americans is a carrier of sickle cell anemia. The screening program initially will determine carriers of the sickle cell anemia trait, and followups will find those who have the disease, he said.

City Manager John R. Mansell said the city will establish special clinics for the program which will be sufficiently mobile to get to all areas of the city where affected persons reside.

GENE BOUDREAU, left, foreman of the George Armstrong Poultry Ranch, pulls the last of 96,000 chickens from their coops as the ranch is dismantled to make way for an apartment complex. At right, workmen take the poultry to trucks that will haul them to ranches near San Diego and Ventura. The Armstrong Poultry Ranch is the last, major agricultural operation in Bellflower.

Bellflower ranch goes; apartment units rising

By RALPH McCLURG
Staff Writer

In the past 18 months Bellflower's last two dairies have given ground to other uses. Before the end of the week the 96,000 chickens on the community's last major poultry ranch will be gone.

The ranch, located on six acres of land north of 10457-59, Artesia Blvd., boasted nearly 150,000 chickens 15 years ago.

IT WAS owned by Bellflower's former mayor, George Armstrong, who is still in the poultry and egg business at other locations, but who sold the Bellflower ranch recently to make way for a 238 unit full security apartment complex.

State-Wide Investors and Builders of Long Beach have purchased the land and plan to start construction of the $3.5-million project immediately after the first of the year. Zone changes and precise plans for the development have already been approved by the city council.

Roy Hearrean, president of State-Wide Investors, said the two story complex will contain three swimming pools, four recreational areas and social buildings, outdoor patios, many of which will be private, and 375 off-street vehicle parking spaces.

Hawaiian Gardens hearing clinic due

A screening clinic to detect possible hearing defects will be held Dec. 1-2 at Hawaiian Gardens Community Center, 12123 E.

219th St., Hawaiian Gardens, a spokesman said. Sponsored by the Long Beach John Tracy Clinic, the screenings will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

El Toro base plans to shut sewage plant incites probe

Facing an order to upgrade its sewage treatment plant, El Toro Marine Corps Air Station east of Santa Ana will shut it down, it was learned Wednesday.

The Santa Ana Region Water Quality Control Board, in session at Colton, got word that the military base is about to conclude a deal with the Irvine Ranch Water District whereby its sewage flow will be handled by that agency.

Meanwhile, the board decided to order an investigation into El Toro's sewage treatment plant operation and the pact for treatment by the Irvine district, and named three members to do the report.

Ronald Linsky of Santa Ana, Mrs. Elsie Kroesche of Corona del Mar and Roy Willis of Laguna Beach will make the study. They said they will report to the board at its next meeting, Dec. 22 in San Bernardino.

El Toro's plans call for phase-out of the treatment plant by next June, it was learned.

It was also revealed that the Irvine Ranch Water District, which at one time had planned an ocean outfall at Crystal Cove only to run into heavy opposition, has abandoned those plans. It will dispose of its effluent through the Orange County Sanitation district facilities—and handle El Toro Marine Corps Air Station wastes the same way.

UCI roadway across marsh delayed for ecology study

Because an "environmental impact" report was not complete, Orange County supervisors held up plans to extend Campus Drive across UCI's San Joaquin Marsh.

The $700,000 project would link the university with its service facilities at opposite end of the campus.

Planned eventually as a four-lane roadway, there would be a bridge across part of the marsh which UCI recently bought from the Irvine Co. as a preserve for wildlife and small animals.

THE ROADWAY would doom a stand of willow trees, and this drew fire from environmentalists and many university professors.

However, not all of the faculty oppose the project, according to L.E. Cox, UCI vice chancellor for finance. He claimed the roadway planned by the county road department would have "minimal" disturbance of wildlife and "hopefully little interruption of natural flows" if it bisects the marsh.

Anthony Summers of San Diego attorney general's office, representing the San Diego County-Orange County Environmental Task Force, cautioned that the plans did not reveal "alternate routes" or deal in detail with environmental problems.

HE HINTED that an injunction might be sought to stop the project if undertaken without adequate studies.

Summers agreed the road was "needed" but said the marsh must be protected.

The project would link Jamulreec Road with Campus Drive and University Drive on the UCI main campus, which is now divided by the marsh and by San Diego Creek, of which the marsh is an offshoot.

SET FOR THANKSGIVING

Ocean Jenkins received one of 53 food baskets given families Wednesday by the Salvation Army. Mrs. Mable John, coordinator of the project, made the presentation. Another 50 families received other forms of assistance in connection with the holiday. Christmas projects with Salvation Army include aid to 1,500 families, visits to 5,000 sick, and parties for children and the elderly.

Forecast for Friday

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Any choice now is apt to sacrifice something, in what cases special conventions or a passing moment of luxury.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Plans diverging from intended directions may yet be rescued. Stir yourself early and make a thorough effort.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cut-and-dried matters turn out to be as potentially alive and difficult as any speculation going on.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Optimism is appropriate, gives you a good takeoff point for success in personal plans. Stay busy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The secret you share is no longer a secret, but you needn't assume all confidential matters are equally visible.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Helpful cooperation arises on all sides according to what you do that deserves aid and encouragement. Share a cheerful evening with old friends.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Career, yes, all goes as well as your plans deserve. Home life, personal concerns strike snags or long moments of dilemma.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Traditional methods tend to produce sounder, perhaps slower and less dramatic results. A long-term pressure now eases somewhat.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Haste and windy promises would let escape the main benefits of much recent labor. Keep on going as if the urgency were still there.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Youthful escapades, speculative adventures claim the attention for the moment. Your own reaction may be quite mixed. Do very little until you've thought it over thoroughly.

A Thanksgiving Day menu--parade, football, TV dinner

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

For those of you for whom TV is a way of life, you can start at 8 a.m. today and live fully.

At 8 a.m. the day of thanksgiving starts with a Thanksgiving parade on Ch. 2. The parade jubilee will originate from New York, Detroit, Philadelphia and Toronto and among those scheduled to be on camera are Gail Fisher, Bob Barker, Greg Morris, Jane Lockhart, Bob Crane, Beverly Garland, Herschel Bernardi, Marilyn Van Derbur and the Bill Baird Mariouette Co. that goes on until 11 a.m.

At noon, and going on until 3 p.m., Ch. 4 there's another parade in New York with Lorne Greene, Betty White, Bobby Vinton, the Rock Flowers singing group, Tania Solnik, the Radio City Hall Rockettes, singer Tod Jones, Doc Severson, the Temptations, Sonny James and Tommy Tune participating.

CHANNELS 5, 11 and 13 will have taped replays of the Hollywood parade: Ch. 5 at 11 a.m.; Ch. 11 at 2 p.m.; Ch. 13 at 4 p.m. And among repeat seasonal shows: there will be "Thanksgiving with the King Family," at 1 p.m. on Ch. 11; "The Cricket on the Hearth," 3 p.m., Ch. 4; "The Mouse on the Mayflower," 4 p.m., Ch. 4; Mitch Miller's Thanksgiving special, 6 p.m., Ch. 9.

Spanish station, Ch. 34, has scheduled "a family Thanksgiving special" for 7:30 p.m., "El Huesped del Sevillano," an operetta set in 17th Century Spain.

ALL OF THAT, of course, has little to do with the major preoccupation of television when the nation takes a day off — televising of sports events.

Here again, starting at 9 a.m. you can spend most of the day rooting before the set.

At 9 on Ch. 4, you'll find the Detroit Lions lining up against the Kansas City Chiefs; at 11:45 a.m., Ch. 7, the Oklahoma Sooners play the Nebraska Cornhuskers (and the Heisman trophy winner will be named during half-time); at 12:30 p.m., Ch. 2, the Dallas Cowboys vs. the Rams.

Football over, there's basketball with the Lakers vs. the Seattle SuperSonics, at 8 p.m., Ch. 5.

JUST TO keep you aware of normality, however, TV does offer a couple of other items during the day.

CBS's "60 Minutes," at 9 p.m. will remind us of the San Andreas Fault and earthquake danger, with advance notices making it sound like a replay of the BBC film on the subject aired on local Ch. 2 a couple of times.

Then at 10 p.m. there will be a "CBS Report" on Ch. 2 on a family's quest for fulfillment called, "... But What if the Dream Comes True," with Charles Kuralt, who notes "prosperity turns out to be different from well being." (How did something like that get in here?).

The competition for "60 Minutes" will be the second outing this week for "Ironside" which moves to its new time, 9 p.m., Thursday, replacing "Nichols," which goes to Tuesdays.

What about the family Thanksgiving dinner? What are you, some kind of a nut? Stick a TV dinner in the stove, stupid.

Spokane gets 'Expo-74' title for centennial fair

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Two years ago, the Spokane Historical Society reminded the Chamber of Commerce that the city's centennial was coming up in 1974 and it would be a nice idea to commemorate it somehow.

Wednesday, the 32-national Bureau of International Expositions in Paris approved what turned out to be an eminently nice idea — an international exposition for Spokane, believed to be the smallest city ever to hold one.

The world organization, which sanctions and schedules world's fairs and expositions, approved Spokane's "Expo-74" to start around the first of May 1974 by a unanimous vote.

The approval means that no other city in the world can hold an international exposition in 1974 or use the Expo-74 theme — "Man and His Environment" — until after Spokane's fair is over.

JOLLY ROGER

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach will show his scrambling methods to Rams today in National Football League battle in Texas Stadium.

Who's No.1? Huskers, Sooners will settle the argument today

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Husker defense big difference

This morning the "game of the decade" will be on the tube, and it goes without saying that a bundle of cold turkeys will be left in its wake.

How would you rate the game?

Nebraska's defense is breathtaking. The Cornhuskers have shut out three opponents, while Oklahoma blanked only one foe.

But the Sooner offense is brilliant. Oklahoma has averaged 45 points per game.

Nebraska wasn't standing by idly, either. The Huskers have averaged 35 points per game, but perhaps more important, the Nebraskans have given up only six points per contest. A number of touchdowns have been lallied against third team members.

On the other hand, Oklahoma has permitted an average 16 points to each of its opponents.

By the record, today's titanic is a Mexican standoff. Oklahoma has scored 10 points more per game than Nebraska, but the Huskers have allowed 10 points less per encounter.

IN A GAME such as this, you don't pick a winner, you merely stab for a selection.

The opinion here is that the Nebraska defense should contain the Sooner offense. The theory that a good defense is the best offense and should prevail.

Surprisingly, passing might be a factor in today's war. Nebraska's Jerry Tagge throws like a pro and can run like a halfback. Oklahoma's Jack Mildren is excellent at running the options and is the fine ball handler needed to operate the wishbone formation.

Mildren doesn't have much opportunity to pass, but the Sooner quarterback can throw the ball.

Earlier this week he made a statement, in bitterness, that the Huskers might heed: "Just because I don't pass much doesn't mean I can't pass. Wishbone teams don't pass often because they're geared to run. If the occasion arises, I believe we can throw about as well as anybody."

Oklahoma has an edge in the running department, considered by many coaches to be the key of today's offense. Yet, Nebraska would seem to have the more balanced offense with a pro-type passer in Tagge and an assortment of pro-style plays.

It will be interesting to see if the Sooner triple option can upset Nebraska's great defense. It should be remembered that against three top opponents — Texas, Colorado and USC — the Sooners had little trouble notching 48, 45 and 33 points, respectively.

Nebraska is the complete team, while Oklahoma is all offense. It's this corner's thought that Nebraska's versatility is the difference between the two clubs.

One thing is certain, however. If the Sooners make mincemeat of Nebraska's defense, you'll see a heckuva lot more college wishbone teams around next season.

THE LAST HURRAH is being sounded. The HHH System completes its rounds today after a magnificent 11-for-13 record with the professionals last weekend.

It might be mentioned that the Oregon State and Miami Dolphin wins were tabbed precisely, while the Washington, TCU, Vanderbilt and Falcon triumphs were a mere point away. Hak-kaff, har-rumph and onward.

The Thanksgiving turkeys:

Nebr. 5 over Okla. — A risky stab.
Rams 3 over Dallas — Prothro's red hot.
Geo. 7 over Geo. Tech — Southern sizzler.
Ole Miss 15 over Miss. St. — Spread only 8.
Texas 13 over Texas A&M — Horns seal bowl bid.
Lions 2 over Chiefs — K.C. is favored.

SATURDAY'S FUN AND FROLIC:

CSLB 21 over Texas El Paso — Bowl clincher.
Auburn 3 over 'Bama — The shaky upset pick.
Army 7 over Navy — Anyone care?
TCU 3 over SMU — Hunch upset stab.
Rice 12 over Baylor — Terrible teams.
Miami 3 over Fla. — Home field edge.
LSU 25 over Tulane — Bayou bloodbath.
Tenn. 19 over Vandy — Another slaughter.
San Jose 11 over S. Barbara — But Spartans weary.
Iowa St. 15 over San Diego — Pig 8 romp.

THE LAST ROUNDUP:

Ariz. St. 27 over Arizona (Sun Devils on fire); Houston 24 over Utah; N. Mexico 28 over Hawaii (Rainbows get discolored); Fla. St. 17 over Pitt; Boston Col. 17 over Holy Cross; Rutgers 1 over Morgan St.; Louisville 3 over Cincy (Kentuckians should be in Pasadena Bowl).
S. Carolina 11 over Clemson (beware Tigers, a wierd team); Va. Tech 17 over VMI; Tulsa 19 over Wichita

Rams want turkey Texas-style

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

DALLAS — The first time the Rams played in Dallas, serious discussion was given to introducing the crowd instead of the teams, thus saving time.

That was 1960 and the CHANNEL 2, 12:30 P.M.

Rams won, 38-13, as 16,000 watched.

When Big D. and the Rams play today in the Cowboys' new Texas Stadium in suburbia Irving, beginning at 12:30 p.m. (PST), things will be considerably different. The entire NFL will be watching and so will a packed house of 65,000, some of whom plunked down $50,000 for a bare 18x16 private box.

Cowboy management is hoping for two things: (1) a win which would insure coach Tom Landry's gladiator's first place for another week and (2) sufficient water pressure to avoid a few embarrassing problems in the restrooms.

This is only the third contest in the $25 million "open-air domed" emporium.

The Rams also have more than a passing interest in their second Turkey Day venture (they beat Detroit the only other time they were scheduled on Thanksgiving Day, in 1967, 31-7). An upset today — the Cowboys are favored by four points — would keep the Rams in first place in the NFC West as they head down the stretch.

"If we beat the Rams we're in the driver's seat because I think the Rams are the best team we have left on our schedule," said Landry. "If we lose, it'll be a toss-up again."

"Well, we could lose to Los Angeles and not be out of it," continued Landry, "but a win would be a big step."

Landry would love to see his team regain its scoring punch and rush better. Take away Roger Staubach's scrambling against the Redskins last week and Dallas rushed for only 41 yards, and Duane Thomas averaged just 2.7 on 20 carries.

"When Thomas averages less than three yards a carry," said Landry, "el-ther we're not doing a good job or somebody's doing a heckuva job against us."

Calvin Hill re-entered the 1971 picture briefly, carrying the ball twice for six yards while Thomas rested because he had the wind knocked out of him.

"We'll use Calvin more Thursday," Landry said. "If Hill starts to run as well as he was, we'll probably be using Thomas some at fullback with Walt Garrison."

Garrison isn't running for his usual average but he's already caught 38 passes. Dan Reeves, who snared 41 in 1966, is the all-time leader as far as receiving among Cowboy backs.

As Washington is finding out, depth is a big factor in the stretch of the long season. Dallas is fortunate. After losing left offensive tackles Bob Asher, Ralph Neely, Don Talbert and Forrest Gregg, the Cowboys re-discovered Tony Liscio who came out of retirement to play an outstanding game last week. Liscio was selling real estate when Landry sent out an S.O.S. Liscio will be matched against Coy Bacon, which should prove an interesting duel in the pits.

Staubach, who was a submariner after he got out of Annapolis and a sub quarterback after that, is expected to start today. After suffering a slight bruise in his right shoulder against the 'Skins, Staubach didn't throw Monday or Tuesday. But the former Navy star was in the groove during Wednesday's workout. "I don't see any reason why I can't play," he said.

Heisman winner on TV today

NEW YORK — Will it be one of the big three — quarterback Pat Sullivan of Auburn, tailback Ed Marinaro of Cornell or halfback Greg Pruitt of Oklahoma — or will it be a surprise candidate?

The winner of the 1971 Heisman Trophy will be announced at halftime of the nationally televised (Channel 7) Georgia-Georgia Tech college football game. The game starts at 5 p.m. and the announcement is expected at approximately 6:15 p.m. PST.

Sullivan, third in the nation in passing with 148 completions in 254 attempts, has led Auburn to a 9-0 record and a No. 5 national ranking.

Marinaro, the leading rusher in the nation with a record 209.0 yards per game average, set a total of nine major NCAA rushing records and led Cornell to an 8-1 season and a tie with Dartmouth for the Ivy League title.

Pruitt, a fleet halfback, ranks second in the nation in running going into today's game against Nebraska and has been a key weapon in the second-ranked Sooners' wishbone-T.

Jack Mildren (11, upper left) and Greg Pruitt taking handoff. Cornhuskers are led by quarterback Jerry Tagge (14, lower right). Battle will settle No. 1 argument.

Horse went thataway

MIAMI — A 2-year-old thoroughbred bolted during an early Wednesday workout at Tropical Park and raced down a busy expressway during the morning rush hour.

It passed a Greyhound bus at 40 miles an hour.

A radio station's eye-in-the-sky helicopter reported: "That's right, folks, there's a horse running alongside the cars on the Palmetto Expressway."

The jockeyless animal galloped south, avoiding the heavy inbound traffic flow, but passed up the first exit a half mile away at Miller Road.

Cub Power, adorned in green blinkers, sailed another mile before speeding down the off-ramp at Sunset Drive. The horse turned east and went four blocks before being cornered by the Florida Highway Patrol.

"When is that (censored) horse running?" said Sgt. Ned Dolan of the FHP. "I want to be sure to bet on him. I've never seen anything run so fast."

Reporters at the race track scanned records and couldn't find that the young colt had ever run a real race. Trainer Eddie Cole said Cub Power was uninjured in the romp, but lost one shoe.

An exercise boy was walking the horse when Cub Power broke loose and went to play in the traffic. Cars began swerving and slamming on brakes to avoid colliding with the horse.

Police radios blared at 8:18 that a "horse was causing quite a traffic disturbance on the Palmetto Expressway." It was no morning to be coming home with a hangover.

SHARON BEERY, secretary in the OU Athletic office, displays OU wishbone pin with one hand, keeps fingers crossed on other.

up with the big play at the right time all season.

For the statistical record, Nebraska is 10-0, Oklahoma 9-0. Both teams have one game remaining after today's confrontation — Nebraska at Hawaii on Dec. 4 and Oklahoma at Oklahoma State the same day.

The Sooners do not appear among the national leaders in any defensive category — except losses. That is, where zero is a nice round number — while Nebraska has allowed only 171.7 yards a game over-all and only 70.5 yards on the ground.

On the other hand, Oklahoma is rolling along at a record pace of 563.2 yards a game in total offense and 481.4 over land. The Sooners rarely put the ball in the air except when they fly out of town.

Nebraska, though, is not without an attack of its own. The Cornhuskers run from either an I-formation or a spread set, featuring the passing of Jerry Tagge to Johnny Rodgers and the

Anteaters face tough encore

By ROBERT BOULE
Staff Writer

Last year's UC Irvine 7-6 sudden-death overtime win against UCLA in the NCAA water polo championship game is going to be a tough act for the Anteaters to follow.

Gone from that team are five seniors, including Mison Philpot, who scored four of the Anteater goals in that title contest, and Percy Massimino, the most valuable player and a Sullivan Award nominee.

Massimino lobbed the winning shot over UCLA goalie Kevin Craig's head to unseat the Bruins, who had won the first-ever NCAA water polo competition the year before.

This year the Bruins, Pacific-8 champions, have a solid chance to earn a return spot in the title game, but the Anteaters will probably have to watch the game from the stands.

"We have a much younger team this year," coach Ed Newland explained. "Losing five seniors really hurts us. UCLA is in good shape in the bracketing."

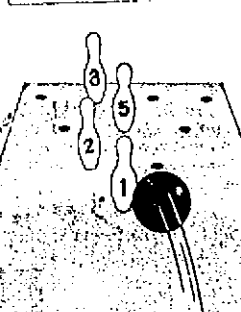

The Bruins open this competition Friday morning against Washington in a 9:45 game. The Anteaters open the defense of their title at 1 p.m. against California Collegiate Athletic Assn. (CCAA) champion, Cal State Fullerton.

Like the Bruins, UC Irvine boats an outstanding goaltender in Terry Klein, a 6-1, 175-pound senior from Fullerton Junior College where he earned All-America honors. Klein was goalie on this year's U.S. team that competed in the Pan-American Games.

He will have to stop a lot of shots for the Anteaters to get another chance at the Bruins. If they win the morning game against CSF, they must come back in the afternoon to face the winner of the Stanford vs. San Jose State game, two teams which have a chance to stop the strong Bruin bid for a second NCAA title.

BOWLING TIPS

'STRIKE' WILL GET 1-2-5-8
To convert the 1-2-5-8 into a square, throw your strike ball. The 5-pin usually is the most troublesome in this set-up and a fairly good "two pin hit" is needed to bring it down along with the others.

More spare and conversion tips are yours in the booklet, "Strike and Spare Angles." Send your request for it, together with 35¢ and a stamped return envelope to: Don Carter, National Newspaper Syndicate, 20 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill.

Southland bowling capital

Arcadia hosts Classic

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

If anyone had any doubts that Southern California would become the bowling mecca of the world next year, they can erase them now.

Long Beach and a sister city only 35 miles away, Arcadia, host two of the world's premier events within a month of each other.

Long Beach will be the scene of the 59th American Bowling Congress tournament Feb. 26-April 30 with more than 25,000 competitors representing every state in the union and several foreign nations.

For the third year in a row, Bowling Square Lanes in Arcadia hosts the $60,000 Don Carter Classic, third stop in the Professional Bowler's Assn. Winter tour. The announcement was made this week by PBA official Bud Fisher.

Many of the top touring professionals, including sensational Johnny Petraglia, Earl Anthony, Don Johnson, Dave Soutar and Dave Davis, are expected to compete for the $8,000 first prize between Jan. 26 and 28.

Petraglia, who has amassed $80,480 through 33 tournaments this year, won the Don Carter Classic when it was held in New Orleans. The event at Bowling Square was known as the Los Angeles Open the last two years.

The five-man elimination finals will be nationally televised by KABC (Channel 7) on Jan. 29. Interest in the tournament won't be confined to the professionals, however. One of the richest Pro-Am tournaments ever held, offering a purse of $20,000, will precede the Don Carter Classic on Tuesday, Jan. 25.

"We had a field of 400 amateurs last year and it wasn't enough," reports Bowling Square general manager George Snow. "We've expanded that to 500 this year and already we have almost 400 advance paid entries. They're going fast."

In addition to rubbing elbows with the pros and getting a shot at cashing $1,000 for first place, each entrant will have a choice of a new ball or bag, a

Don Carter glove and other souvenirs of the tournament.

Entry fee is $50, which breaks down to $5 for the bowling and $45 in merchandise.

The Pro-Am is open to men and women amateurs with an established handicap. For further details, write or call Bowling Square, 1020 S. Baldwin Ave., Arcadia, Calif., 91006. Phone is (213) 445-3160.

RED FOX LANES—Dave Albus all but stunned the Las Vegas League by scoring a big 252 game. You see, Dave maintains a 130 book average! He'll get a century patch from the ABC for bowling 100 pins over his average. Red Fox is featuring a special Holiday Doubles tournament — (two men, two women or mixed — for an entry fee of $10 per team. The tournament runs through Jan. 3 any time lanes are available.

CALBOWL — George Fyfe bombed a 671 series on games of 210-225-236 in the Monday 875 Scratch. The Naples Mixed was paced by Ed Enlow's 233-668. Dick Gavigan rolled a

A 1,000 stamp guarantee has been posted for bowlers who compete in the Saturday-Sunday Blue Chip Stamp saved bowl. Blue Chip start at 6:30 each day and entry fee is $3.

MAY CO INTRODUCES THE DETROITER SUPER

Introducing May Co's Detrioter Super

It's a tire name you'll hear again and again. It's the name of our exclusive greater-margin-of-safety, more-trouble-free-mileage tires. Here are some of the reasons they perform better. Four full plies of Du Pont nylon cord help eliminate more punctures, provide more bruise and blowout protection than ordinary tires. Give more load carrying capacity, too. 5-rib wrap-around tread provides better traction, better steering, longer wear. The low price speaks for itself. And now Detrioter Super is sale priced.

Good's philosophy: Just take it easy

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Unlike Avis, Fred Good does not believe in trying harder. That adds undue pressure and makes him far less effective, he says.

This theory of not get-

Par-ticulars

ting keyed up paid dividends for the 22-year-old last weekend as he won the Meadowlark Country Club golf title by outlasting defending champion Bob Abbey, 32, in a 36-hole match.

The victory qualified Good for the Long Beach Masters for the first time. Like so many already in the field, it has been a life-long ambition for the Wilson grad.

Good almost didn't make it, however. He led Abbey 3 up after the first day, shooting an even-par 70, but he bogied the first and fourth holes on the second round Sunday to fall back to 1 up.

This is where the new relaxed attitude appeared to pay off. Good didn't panic — he strung together birdies on the 5th, 9th, 11th and 13th holes.

"It was shaky for awhile," said Good, "but I never doubted I would win. After the way I played at Recreation Park, I figured I just had to win at Meadowlark."

Good was never a contender at Recreation Park, finishing fifth. He thought he could win at the course where he grew up.

FRED GOOD
What, me worry?

who is finishing his schooling at San Diego State has enjoyed his finest year ever, and it has earned him the spotlight over more heralded Steve Cook, his Wilson teammate in 1966.

Good won the Ventura County Amateur, California State Public and Torrey Pines club title prior to Meadowlark. But perhaps his best showing was a fourth-place finish in the SoCal Amateur, where he shot 63 at Virginia in the third round.

When Good heard that the final round of the Masters was being played at Virginia, he let out a holler.

"Maybe I can shoot 62 this time," he said. "I love that course. I always seem to shoot well there."

Good attributes much of his recent success to a new teaching pro, Ben King, who was formerly at Heartwell but has since moved to Monterey Park.

"He's made a lot of changes in my game," said Good. "The biggest change was eliminating my scapwing at the ball. To be effective, you must lead with the lower body."

THE ONLY club championship undecided is at Virginia CC, and the field is down to eight — Jack Mitchell, Sol Deebie, Bob Ward, Foster James, Jim Craig, Chuck Cassaday, Ralph Irwin and John Connolly.

Sinda looking for win No. 17 against Torres

Cesar Sinda, known as the Congo Clouter, will be shooting for win No. 11 in a row as he tangles with Felipe Torres of East Los Angeles in the 10-round lightweight main event Saturday night at the Long Beach Auditorium.

Sinda, who was a former Olympic Games Champion, sports a 16-2 record with 9 knockouts. In his last local appearance, Cesar won a unanimous decision over Marton Ligera at Devonshire Downs in Northridge.

Promoter Don Fraser has announced the signing of two fights upcoming at Long Beach Auditorium — On Saturday, December 4, Mike Nixon fights Polo Corona and on Saturday, December 11, Rodolfo Gonzales meets Nick Aghai.

Cabrillo YC schedules Thanksgiving Regatta

Long Beach Harbor and the ocean beyond the breakwater will look fairly calm on this Thanksgiving day, but the weekend will bring some sailing action and possibly plenty of family-boat cruising.

Cabrillo Beach Yacht Club has the only scheduled local event — the Thanksgiving Regatta for all classes.

The Newport Harbor YC is having its Barney Lehman Trophy Race for Lehman 125 on Saturday.

At San Diego, there will be a bit of action, with the Coronado YC sponsoring the Muhl Thanksgiving Trophy and the Mission Bay YC putting on a Coronado-15 Invitational.

In Santa Monica Bay, Del Rey YC will have its Sunday Skippers' Regatta for ODK, OR, PHRF and MORF classes.

Ski season commences

By M. R. SNOW

Tradition kicks off the 1971-72 ski season on this Thanksgiving Day as good to fair conditions are available at Snow Summit and Holiday Hill in the Southern California mountains and at least six areas in the high Sierras.

Holiday Hill has 4 to 12 inches of man-made snow on its platter to run, while Snow Summit has 8 to 12 inches on its 800-foot rope tow, with the lower area reported good and the upper fair.

In the Sierras, June Mountain and Mammoth Mountain, closest area for

For SoCal skiers, the big deal is the re-organization of the Far West Ski Assn., which in the Southland no longer is controlled by the Southern Council. Today, the SoCal area is composed of three separate councils: Southern, Orange and Inland.

Long Beach ski clubs are in two councils, Southern and Orange. Auslich, Far World and Long Beach City College are in the Southern Council, while the 48ers of Cal State Long Beach, Long Beach SC and McDonnell Douglas Snowflakes are in the Orange Council. Even under the new setup, the Southern Council has a total of 46 individual clubs to Orange's 20 and Inland's 11.

SNOW TRACKS: Custom made snow will be offered this season by the three Wrightwood areas, Blue Ridge, Gold Dore and Hot Springs Hills, while Big Bear's Rebel Ridge, Snow Summit, Snow Forest and Table Mountain also will have the man-made stuff. — SIA. Second, the program that serves skiers hundreds of dollars in many ways, is at its best, operating out of Burbank. — The U.S. Nordic Council is competing in the Fairbanks International this weekend at Fairbanks, Alaska.

Snow Drifts

Southern California skiers, have good conditions, while Bear Valley, Heavenly Valley, Dodge Ridge and Squaw Valley all offer the sport.

Depth at June is 14 to 30 inches on all but the face, while Mammoth has 24 inches and very good conditions. Lift chairs Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8 and 10, tow bars Nos. 1 and 2, and both gondolas are in operation. The California side at Heavenly Valley, particularly the upper level, has snow. Lifts are in operation at Bear Valley, Dodge Ridge and Squaw Valley.

Skiing for the new season figures to be one of the biggest in the ever expanding sport. Climax will be the Winter Olympic Games at Sapporo, Japan, Feb. 3-13. Cross-country skiing will be accelerated with a number of programs in the immediate areas and the Sierras.

The Graduated Length Method (GLM) of ski instruction is being offered by many ski schools. This should breed thousands of new skiers, and of all ages, experts freely predict. New and better traveling and over-night accommodations are being made available, including air, rail and motor transportation.

HERRINGBONE CONTROL

The most strenuous of all skiing activities is climbing uphill. It takes strength, and it takes coordination, as anyone knows who has tried the herringbone. That is what I am demonstrating in today's lesson. Let's face it — boots weigh about 10 lbs. per pair, skis about 10 lbs., and bindings about 5 lbs. With all that weight, plus the cumbersome of long skis, it's no wonder beginners need time to develop the skills of climbing. It's also no wonder that ski instructors are urging newcomers to the sport to use short (3-, 4-, or 5-foot) skis.

Whether you use long or short skis, the herringbone movements are similar — you go up the hill walking splay-footed, in a sort of exaggerated duck walk. On gentle slopes, the tips of the skis need not be spread far apart. As the slope gets steeper, you must splay the tips farther and farther apart to prevent the skis from sliding backward. Note how the arms and ski poles give extra push and support.

Havasu race pot totals $62,750

LAKE HAVASU CITY — Picking a winner in this year's Outboard World Championships is like trying to determine the Democratic nominee for President. So far, the Democrats haven't as many candidates as there are boat entries here, but give them time; they'll probably have two potentials from every state, which would make 100, two more than the Havasu entries.

There are without doubt some of the most famous names in boat racing gathered here for a racing pot of $62,750 ($2,750 was added Wednesday by the Lake Havasu City Herald for single-engine drivers).

If a single-engine boat wins this race, the driver, or drivers stand a chance of going home with first-place prize of $18,000, plus $6,000, now plus The Herald's $2,750, which isn't but for eight hours of driving. A winning multi-engine boat gets only the basic $18,000.

There are 38 categories in which a driver may win money, and I won't attempt to go into those at this writing. Hopefully, I'll have the complete rundown on this race in next Monday's editions.

Factory-trained drivers and teams naturally are favored, but things can go wrong with the hottest of boats; no matter whether they come from Kiekhafer Mercury, Chrysler Marine or Outboard Marine Corporation (Johnson and Evinrude). There are some sparkling drivers, and excellent boats running strictly on their own, but with the products as mentioned above in this same paragraph.

THE WORLD'S RICHEST BOAT race is timed so that Southern California racing fans and enthusiasts from other parts of the West can have their turkey and then travel here in time for the start at 11 a.m. Saturday of the first four hours. As a matter of fact, some of the camper and trailer people are asking for second helpings of food — perhaps not turkey — right here along the shores of Lake Havasu.

I know one family that traveled here early this week to remain through the race and then stay for a few more days, hoping to catch a few bass that might venture out of their holes after the noise subsides.

Noise in this great desert, however, seems to go up in the sky and soon disappear, but when 98 boats with 30,975 horsepower, give or take a pony or two, let loose at one time, you can well imagine what it will be like.

This lake is the source of much water for Southern California. With all that amount of horsepower, one could imagine that the whole lake could be moved to the Southland without too much difficulty.

The engines range from 115 horsepower to 300 and, believe me, there are few 115s. Most are 135, 150, 155s, 180 and 200. The average boater can't afford those big 200s, which Mercury makes strictly for the racing trade.

Mercury and OMC don't even list such engines as the Johnson 180 and the Merc 200 in the advertising pamphlets that they issue to prospective customers.

THE START OF EACH FOUR-HOUR race Saturday and Sunday is called the modified LeMans, with drivers in boats, engines dead, some crews up to their hips in water, all waiting for the countdown to zero, then the starting gun.

At that point, every boat is expected to move out, full bore, but some are left behind and, even though expertly tuned for the start, some adjustments have to be made to get the craft on their way around the four-mile course.

In the eight hours that follow, some boats will be doing upwards of 100 miles an hour on the straightaways and averaging more than 80 mph. At the end of the race, they will have covered more than 600 miles.

Looking over the starting list, I find two or three boats that are only 16 feet long. Most are 17, others 21 and one is 24. That 24-footer is a Horizon hull and belongs to Denny Gilbert of Hayward, Calif., and he is content to use two 155-hp. Mercs.

Lou Brunette, Ojai, has a 23-foot Ron Jones hull, equipped with three 115-hp. Evinrudes. Boh Nordskog, Tarzana, who races in any water and under all conditions and who probably is the dean of drivers in this race, will have as co-driver Carl Assmus, Van Nuys. They have a double entry, a 17-foot Shulze and an 18-foot Molinari.

THERE IS ONLY ONE DRIVER who calls Long Beach home, although there are some Long Beach men on the reserve list who might see action before the eight hours end. He is Ron Larsen, who will team with Rudy Ramos and Bill Muncy in a 21-foot Ron Jones hull, equipped with two 200-hp. Merc Twister engines.

It might be well to watch that team. Ramos is a real veteran of the waterways. Ron is a "hot" driver and Bill Muncy, famous in the Unlimited Hydroplane Class as the winner of four Gold Cups and five President's Cup titles, admits that he is just a "rookie" in this type of racing. Yet, he hasn't looked exactly like a rookie in some of the trial runs.

Muncy is accustomed to racing against a half-dozen giant hydros. He admits that when nearly 100 boats are whirling around a four-mile course at nearly 100 miles per hour, it's a rare marine phenomena.

Muncy lived for years in Seattle, but then moved to San Diego. He now is a director of corporate relations for Atlas Van Lines. He didn't win the Gold Cup this year, but is aiming for his fifth in 1972.

Ted May, Fountain Valley, lived in Long Beach for a long time before going to Orange County. Don't rule him out; he's racing a 17-foot Molinari for Johnson Motors and is using one of the 180s. In racing terms, he is one of the "wild ones," and has a good chance.

CESARE SCOTTI, THE DIMINUTIVE Italian driver who won two years ago with a single Evinrude and caused Ralph Evinrude to toss $25,000 into the future championship races here, is sticking with Evinrude, but using one of his own boats, the Scotticraft.

Another Italian, Renato Molinari, Como, Italy, naturally is driving a boat of his own design, but using the Merc 200 Twister. Molinari and Scotti changed the entire complexion of outboard racing with Molinari's tunnel-hull design. Almost every boat in the weekend classic is either a Molinari or an American or British adaptation of such a boat.

There are two father-son teams in the race, Jimmy Clinkbeard, 19, and dad, Jim, of Anaheim, driving a 21-foot Molinari-Glastron equipped with two Merc 200 twisters, and Bob George Sr. and Jr., Colorado Springs, driving a 20-foot PFG, with three Merc 200 Twisters.

The defending champion is back with his Molinari, with twin Mercs. He is Bill Sirois, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who established new records of 640 miles covered and 79.62 mph. in 1970.

Joe Fielder, 29, the driver who narrowly escaped death on the first lap of the 1970 race when his boat took a header and disintegrated, was the first man to register for this year's race. Weeks of recuperation in a cast didn't stop him. "I'll do better this year," he says.

Sunlight racing at Hollypark

Flower Child, Trevor Hanover and Top Freight, a trio of trotters rated just a cut below the best, will head a field of nine in Hollypark's Park's Thanksgiving Day headliner, an $18,000 invitational mile.

Today's card will be the only western harness program of the season to be presented during the day, with first post scheduled for 12 noon.

In addition to the three-some named above, today's main event also will bring together C. B.'s Jimmy, Bold Hanover, Keystone Mile, Flying Trip, Cambev and Carl Eden.

Trevor Hanover was a 3-2 choice over Flower Child and Top Freight in a similar spot three weeks ago, but his late rally fell short, as Flower Child won by 1 1/4 lengths in 2:01 1/5. However, Trevor Hanover, who has been meeting the elite among trotters most of the season, has a pair of sub-two minute scores to his credit.

Flower Child probably will go favored today as he came back after defeating Trevor Hanover to finish a strong second back of Armbro Jet when the latter tallied in 2:00 flat. He had three-year-old stars Speedy Crown and Keystone Hilliard behind him that night.

Pincay finds his Derby mount

It's a long way to the first Saturday in May but Laffit Pincay already may have tested his Kentucky Derby colt over the often unpredictable Churchill Downs strip.

Last Saturday Pincay, the nation's leading rider, flew to the land of the bluegrass to win the historic Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes with Cragwood Stable's Windjammer. It was the fourth win in five career starts for the bay colt who was the talk of the town during the late summer meeting at Saratoga.

Windjammer is owned by the Cragwood Stable and was a $90,000 yearling purchase at Saratoga.

The colt is a full brother to Racing Room, co-holder of the Hollywood Park five and one-half furlong record of 1:02 2/5 and second a nose to Princesses in the Hollywood Gold Cup. His dam, Crowding In, is by Mister Gus, a Gold Cup runner-up to Swaps, and she also produced the good stakes winner Joe Namath.

OLD GLORY FLIES AGAIN
The U.S. scored another victory in South Africa's annual Jockey International Race last week.

TOUGHER SLEDDING FOR PINKIE
Although he has maintained his national leadership in races and money won in recent weeks, Laffit Pincay hasn't found the stakes pickings as easy in the East as he did in California through the first six months of the year.

JOHN LOOKS AND HOPE
Johnny Longden was a Kentucky visitor last week, inspecting the Pin Oak Farm yearlings he hopes to have under his wing next season.

Through July, Pincay had ridden 23 stakes winners and he hasn't far off Bill Shoemaker's record pace. But he's managed only six added money scores since the first of August and only two of these came in New York. He traveled to Chicago to win a pair, and he's picked up two in Kentucky.

Johnny also grabbed a peek at a youngster by Majestic Prince-Royal Rhyme. The dam is by Royal Serenade, whom John rode to a Hollywood Gold Cup win, out of Sirenity II, dam of former champ Four and Twenty.

The hills of Arcadia should look mighty good to Pinkie when he returns home for the opening of Santa Anita.

LAKERS EYE REVENGE

SEATTLE—The Lakers will have an early turkey dinner, watch football on television and then try to make the Seattle SuperSonics their 12th consecutive victim in a TV game tonight at 8.

Because they were away from home on Thanksgiving, the Lakers were asked by management if they wanted a special dinner today. All declined in favor of room service so they could watch Oklahoma-Nebraska and/or Rams-Dallas on the tube.

The Lakers own a 9-1 road record, the only setback here Oct. 30. Jerry West missed the game, however. The Lakers are unbeaten (15-0) with him in the lineup.

No NBA team has gone a full month without losing. The Lakers are 11-0 in November with games Friday and Sunday at the Forum against Detroit and Seattle after tonight.

Ellis Island mural put on display

By DONALD SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A large WPA-era mural, which for 17 years greeted immigrants at Ellis Island in New York harbor, has been salvaged and put on display at the National Archives building.

It was formally unveiled this week by the artist, Edward Laning, and will remain on view in the building rotunda until Sunday. Eventually it will be hung in the Brooklyn Federal Court House, a center for naturalization of immigrants.

The work, some 95 feet long, depicts the immigrant's role in the development of the nation. It was painted originally on the walls of Ellis Island's alien dining room in 1937 under the Works Projects Administration's art program.

When the island was abandoned as an immigration center in 1954, the building was abandoned. It stood vacant and windows were broken, the roof began to leak and the mural started to show damage.

A U.S. Park Service employee salvaged two 7½-foot panels and stored them at the base of the Statue of Liberty. Officials of the General Services Administration visited the building last year with flashlights and found about 80 additional feet that remained salvageable.

With a boatload of electric generators, drinking water and scaffolding, a crew of experts sailed for Ellis Island last September to remove the mural, which was painted on canvas. It was removed in eight working days and restored in a New York studio.

The Laning mural is an example of the art works that were forgotten, misplaced or destroyed after the federal projects supporting artists ended after a 10-year period in 1943.

To remedy this situation, GSA — the government's house-keeping agency — has set up a National Fine Arts Inventory. Its purpose is to locate and salvage the works, many of them now priceless.

There were four Depression-era programs designed to support artists and to bring original works to the people. The most extensive was the WPA's which took artists off relief rolls and put them to work for about $25 a week.

Many of the works were done in federal buildings ranging down to post offices in tiny towns across the country.

$80-million libel suit by police in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) said Wednesday it will file an $80-million libel suit against the Philadelphia Inquirer, which has been publishing articles charging "widespread corruption" in the Philadelphia Police Department.

John J. Harrington, president of the FOP, said a class-action suit will seek $10,000 for each man on the 8,000-man force. The suit will be filed as soon as a law firm is hired to represent the FOP in the libel action, Harrington said.

Harrington said the FOP is charging the newspaper with "malicious, unscrupulous news reporting" in a series which started Nov. 16. Since then, both Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter have ordered investigations into the charges of payoffs from gambling and underworld figures.

Parker auto looted

Bucket seats valued at $300 were stolen from a car owned by Raymond Hlawbaker, 295 E. 57th St., while the vehicle was parked in City College parking lot, Long Beach police said Wednesday.

Dental schools hurting

CHICAGO (AP) — Two private dental schools have closed their doors and others have become state-operated institutions in recent years, pointing up the plight of private dental education in the United States.

Many other private dental institutions are being aided by state funds provided for the education of dental students in private schools from within the states, a spokesman for the American Dental Association said in an interview.

Over-all, there has been a net gain in the number of dental schools, because of an increase in the number of state-operated facilities. And the size of classes in existing schools has grown, with aid from federal and state funds.

In its most recent annual report, the ADA's council on dental education called attention to "the very serious financial problems which exist in many of the dental schools in the United States."

One of the primary causes of increased costs of dental education programs is the rising cost of faculty salaries, which have been below what a dentist could earn in private practice, the council said.

THE TWO DENTAL schools which closed were at St. Louis University in 1970, and Loyola University, New Orleans, in 1971. Both institutions are operated by the Roman Catholic Jesuit order.

Seton Hall University's dental school has become a New Jersey state school; the dental school of the University of Kansas City has become part of the University of Missouri; and Baylor University's dental school is now a Texas state school.

The University of Pittsburgh and Temple University in Philadelphia, both formerly private institutions, are now state affiliated and receive tax support, which means their dental schools receive public support.

Dr. John Coady, secretary of the council on dental education, said that of the 10 new dental schools developed since 1963, only one — Boston University's — is private.

The development of dental schools was given impetus in 1963 with passage by Congress of the Health Professions Assistance Act.

But Coady said dental schools "haven't begun to break through the foundations for support" the way medical schools have.

Dentistry has been associated with filling teeth, he said, even though much dental education is now devoted to diagnosis and treatment of more serious ailments of the mouth and jaw.

Fugitive sea lion is sent home

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — "Samantha," the friendly fugitive sea lion, is on her way back to Florida.

Samantha escaped from the Seemann Marine Institute at Key Colony Beach in the Florida Keys about six weeks ago.

She turned up on the Pamlico River near Bath, N.C., on Oct. 11, when she jumped into the boat of Billy Bosman and has been in this area since then.

The institute learned of the 6-year-old, 165-pound sea lion's whereabouts when a Tampa, Fla., resident saw an item in the newspaper about Samantha and telephoned the institute.

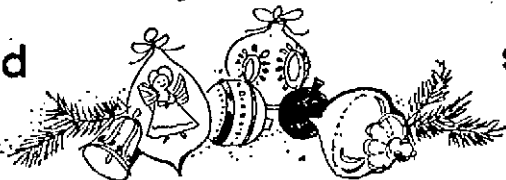

Samantha's trainer coaxed her into a cage with some fish after she performed a series of tricks at a marina Sunday.

All this and more awaits your pleasure for Los Cerritos Center is truly "an experience in the unpredictable." A series of inner courts are designed to act as focal points throughout the mall. Santa is located in his charming ginger-bread house near the central court. He interviews the kiddies daily from 11-1, 3-5 and 7-9. Tall garlanded trees are placed in areas of interest throughout the mall and huge velvet bows decorate the central court. The element of surprise is ever present, and each visit to Los Cerritos Center is a new and pleasing experience.

For years, said Mrs. Kaltman, she experimented with every washday detergent in the supermarket. Her results never matched those of the TV commercials' cleaning women.

Old time cleaners suffice

WASHINGTON — Mary Kaltman, who kept the White House spic 'n span for President Johnson, is waging a quiet "women's liberation" battle against highly touted household cleaners.

She ignores them. For years, said Mrs. Kaltman, she experimented with every washday detergent in the supermarket. Her results never matched those of the TV commercials' cleaning women.

man told the Women's National Democratic Club. Her supplies include a 25-cent bottle of old-fashioned red oil furniture polish, and household ammonia for the windows.

She said advertisers degrade a woman when they portray her ambition in life as getting a "whiter than white" wash — with insult added to injury when the housewife can't duplicate the TV results.

Before becoming Johnson's food coordinator and housekeeper in 1965, Mrs. Kaltman was food director at the Driskill Hotel in Austin, Tex.

"It is no longer important and no longer possible for houses to be kept with old-fashioned perfection," Mrs. Kaltman said.

"Our priority today may be scrubbing the wall behind the refrigerator but if we decide to give a party it may be buying a dozen daisies or lighting candles," she said.

Nile tamed; once it swallowed 'brides'

By ALY MAHMOUD

CAIRO (U) — No more does the River Nile enjoy its annual marriages. Nor does it angrily flood and destroy thousands of villages.

In the past, the mighty river was so feared by Egyptians that every year, in August, they hurled a live girl into it. And the river reacted with floods, enriching the land and watering thirsty plantations.

The ancients called the doomed girl "the bride of the Nile" and the flood reaction "the faithfulness of the Nile."

The practice was observed for thousands of years, with colorful regattas, decorations on the river banks and day-long merriment.

THIS PAGAN practice was interrupted 14 centuries ago when the Moslem conqueror Amr Ibn El-aass declined to throw girls into the river. Instead, El-aass hurled a piece of clay on which he wrote: "O Nile, if you flood with God's will, then I bid you to flood this year. But if you flood with your own will, then may you never flood again."

The words went into the waters and the river erupted a flood all the same.

Nearly three centuries ago the live brides were substituted with effigy brides, and the river floods continued.

THE ANCIENTS called the river "Father Happy" and worshipped it because it overfed them. But the contemporaries dubbed it "a tamed beast," partly because it underfed them and because they managed to control the devastating floods with a giant dam at Aswan.

"Egypt is the gift of the Nile," said the Greek historian Herodotus 24 centuries ago. The saying was unquestionably true at the time, but it has become vulnerable and contestable today.

Egypt has changed since it was called "the granary for Rome" and its wheat fed peoples between Alexandria and the South Sudan.

Today, Egypt imports wheat from the United States, France, Canada and the Soviet Union.

EGYPT'S population grew to 34 million this year and is expected to top the 80 million mark by the close of the century. The Nile provides waters to irrigate nearly 8 million acres. Experts say that the river may not be able to flood Egypt a century from now.

Before the High Dam was built at Aswan streams were dug to contain the devastating floods, but to no avail. In the 1930's the British built a small dam, also at Aswan, to tame the river and to conserve the waters, but the floods continued to destroy thousands of villages along the Nile Valley.

In 1964 Egypt began the massive Aswan High Dam, built with Soviet help. A 315-mile long artificial lake, reportedly the largest in the world, held up Nile waters behind the dam and the quenchless river was, at last, under control. Floods ceased and brides, live as well as effigy, were hurled no more.

EGYPT'S LIFE is the life of the Nile Valley, where more than 85 per cent of the population lives. Away from the river it is hot, dry, lifeless desert.

Except for the High Dam, and the distractions of modern Cairo and Alexandria, the scenes along the Nile are much like those seen by river travelers more than 2,000 years ago.

Peasants still till the fields with simple tools.

Feluccas, the ancient river craft with collapsible masts and three corner sails, creep toward Alexandria with cotton and clay, passing gently nodding palm trees which shade the river banks.

One-year-old Mark Bonnico, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bonnico of Allentown, Pa., learns something new—that his head fits easily between the cars of a porch railing but

1st Christmas card started trend in 1843

NEW YORK (U) — John Calcott Horsley, 19th century British artist, really started something in 1843 when he designed the first Christmas card for Sir Henry Cole, founder of the Victoria and Albert Museum.

Before the year is out Americans will have bought more than seven billion greeting cards, says Irving Cohen, president of a card shop chain.

$6.3 million college project

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (U) — Plans have been approved for three major construction projects at Stephen F. Austin State University at a cost of approximately $6.3 million. Projects include a four-story library estimated to cost $4.6 million, a football stadium to cost $1.5 million, and renovations to the Austin administration building for $180,000.

CAIRO (AP) — Females of different ages, veiled and otherwise, pause briefly to eye, perhaps begrudgingly, the eight-century-old mosque of Al-hakim Bismillah.

Al-Hakim is known in history as an eccentric, despotic ruler. He ordered Egyptian women to quit the streets of Cairo. He also banned, under death penalty, the making of shoes for women and forced men never to work before nightfall. One of his peculiar whims was a strict order barring Egyptians from eating Molokhiya, a native dish of sticky green soup. AL-HAKIM LIVED boisterously and died in mysterious circumstances. He disappeared one night on the street where his mosque and fortress stand. Only his cloak, donkey and dagger were found.

Cairo's oldest street is called open air museum

The mosque is but one of many exquisite buildings on the winding "Saga" street, labeled by archaeologists as the oldest in Cairo. It is called the street of Saga — no relation to the dictionary meaning of a similar English word. Most of Cairo was rebuilt during the past two centuries, but the Saga is said to have remained untouched for more than a thousand years.

ARCHAEOLOGISTS who specialize in Islamic antiquities describe it as "an open-air museum" and recommend that it be restored rather than demolished. By modern standards, the Saga is merely an alley, hardly a street. Arabesquely decorated mosques, complete with domes and minarets, line both sides. Several shops, lines of donkey-drawn carts and sidewalk cafe houses spur an incessant racket along the alley. Mohamed Hafez, a seller of water-pipes, voiced disapproval of a recent government project to demolish several parts of the Saga to build popular housing units in their place. "This street is misunderstood, undervalued," said Hafez, "the khedive ruler Abbas Pasha used to pass through the Saga 50 years ago. Notables used to come here to see the mosques and to see us. But no more do worthwhile people come here now." The Antiquities Department recently announced the Saga would be restored.

THE SAGA WAS built 1,023 years ago, archaeologists say. It was first named after Al-moez Ladin Allah, founder of the Fatimid Dynasty in Egypt. It was part of the old city of Cairo, built by General Jawhar Al-sikili who conquered Egypt on behalf of Al-moez.

DO SOMETHING BEAUTIFUL "Do something beautiful," suggests Slavick's Jewelers in its 1971 Christmas catalog and take a parking lot and turn it into a garden spot named in your wife's honor. The store will fill it with trees, grass, shrubs, playground equipment and everything else that should be in a park, including a life-size statue of your wife. Cost, except for the land: $220,000.

Bears invade Idaho town

MULLAN, Idaho (AP) — Some places are going to the dogs but this small northern Idaho community is going to the bears.

Black bears have been reported all over town as they swipe from garbage cans, sniff around yards and rummage in trucks for scraps of food. "The bears aren't mean but are very bold and are not to be trusted," says Hugh Walbridge, a deputy sheriff.

He told of a man who thought someone was in the back of his truck but found a bear, and of a woman awakened by barking dogs then spotting a bear face peering in the window at her.

It's tough times on the 'gut'

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — Millie and Lily, Tessie and Stella sit around Laddy's Bar, the Happy Return and Chicko's — waiting for their ship to come in.

"I sometimes do a striptease to make the girls laugh," said Millie. "But mostly we read, knit and watch television."

These are the girls of Strait Street, Malta's red light district. Known to sailors as the Gut, it is a downhill cobbled alley of glaring clipjoints near Valletta's main shopping street.

Sailors from Britain, the United States, and most countries of Europe have for generations headed for the Gut the moment they left ship in this crossroads of the Mediterranean.

BUT NO MORE. As a negotiating maneuver with the West, Prime Minister Dom Mintoff has banned the U.S. 6th Fleet from the island and kept the British navy out.

These days the area is a melancholy road of aimlessly wandering girls and scuttling urchins, its bars largely monuments to the past. Strait Street is in dire straits.

"We used to take 100 pounds a night when the 6th Fleet was in," recalled Tessie at one bar. That's $240.

"We just stay open now in the hope someone, anyone, will drop in." She perked up momentarily: "Last week a Canadian gentleman called and spent 37 pounds."

"I've got 10 children, and we've got too eat. So I borrow money from the owner and hope the ships will come soon."

SAID MILLIE, a buxom woman of about 45: "I've been here almost 30 years and I've never known it so bad."

Young girls mingle in the bars with older colleagues who remember the boom years of World War II and its aftermath.

"We were kind to the boys, you know," said Gigi, a matronly looking woman of about 50 as she knitted for her grandchildren. "The boys spent all their money — many times they left to go back to ship with only their trousers on."

"There are no prostitutes here, mind," she looks up sharply. "We are hostesses."

Susan, who says she's 18, displays a purse encrusted with U.S. forces insignia — submarines and Marines' badges, a sharpshooter pin.

"The boys will be back — I feel it," she said. "I love Americans, they are so generous and nice."

THE GIRLS' and bar owners harbor little resentment against Mintoff for banning their sources of sustenance by seeking more money for Malta's facilities. They have faith he will get around to solving their problems soon.

"To me whatever he does is 100 per cent for Malta. He is all Maltese," said Emanuel, who owns the Cotton Club.

"I'm controlling my budget. That's the kind of help I'm giving my prime minister."

Fluoride sealed into teeth

BOSTON (AP) — A sealant that prolongs concentration of fluoride and deters cavities in teeth has been announced at the annual meeting of the New England Dental Society.

Drs. Israel L. Dogon and Myron van Leeuwen, staff associates at the Forsyth Dental Center, said they applied fluoride and sealed it into tooth enamel with a new adhesive resin.

The said that fluoride was sealed into the teeth on one side of the mouths of 50 patients but not on the other side.

The doctors reported the study showed consistently higher fluoride concentration in the sealed teeth and a marked reduction in dental decay, compared with the unsealed teeth at the end of one year.

Dogon said the new sealant will be available to dentists next year.

Prison habits still linger, Cardinal Mindszenty finds

By GERD KRIWANEK

VIENNA (UPI) — Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty is a free man now. But the habits he formed in confinement are hard to break.

Early mass ... quiet meals ... slow strolls around the garden ... long hours of reading and writing. This routine, which sustained Mindszenty through 15 years of asylum in the U.S. embassy in Budapest, still forms the basis of his life in his new home in Vienna.

He was driven to the Pazmaneum, a home for Hungarian theology students located, ironically, next door to the American Embassy in Vienna's Ninth District. Since the Pazmaneum's oak doors closed behind him at 10 that night, he has not been seen outside.

Mindszenty has let it be known that he intends to spend the rest of his life in the Pazmaneum — because it is as close to his beloved Hungary as he can get.

For his freedom is only relative. Under the terms of the Vatican-Hungarian agreement, he cannot return to Hungary and cannot speak out on public affairs. This is fine by the Austrian government and the Roman Catholic Church here. Both fear that the controversial cardinal's presence in Vienna — barely 50 miles from the Hungarian border — could damage relations with Hungary and upset the church's limited freedom there.

MINDSZENTY is 79, and the years have not been kind. He is a short man and looks his age. He walks slowly on his twice-daily strolls beneath the fruit trees in the Pazmaneum garden.

Church sources said the cardinal lives a secluded life in the three-room apartment which the Pazmaneum gave him on the third floor of the five-story grey stone building. He has received only a few church visitors and refuses to see journalists.

"The cardinal is an early riser," one source said. "He reads a silent mass at 7 every morning in the Pazmaneum's plain chapel. There is no sermon."

Only other residents — theology students and other Hungarian priests and nuns — attend the man.

Most of the day, Mindszenty stays in his apartment reading, praying and writing. He learned English during his 15 years at the embassy in Budapest and keeps up with newspapers in English, German and Hungarian.

Mindszenty usually eats with the students. The food, according to the sources, is closer to the heavy Viennese cooking than to the spicier, paprika-laced Hungarian cuisine.

A communist court sentenced Mindszenty to life imprisonment in 1949 for espionage and treason. He was freed during the Hungarian uprising in 1956, but took refuge in the U.S. embassy when Soviet tanks crushed the revolt.

AFTER MINDSZENTY left Budapest in September, rumors were heard in the Vatican that he wanted to come here.

The Hungarian government protested quietly and was told by the Austrians that, if the cardinal promised to live privately here, there was nothing that could be done. The Austrians also reminded the Hungarians that if they didn't want Mindszenty so close they should have specified a definite residence — the Vatican — before they let him leave Budapest.

Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky has said that Mindszenty may live here "so long as he does not start political activities." The chancellor added that the cardinal has promised to stay out of politics here.

As far is known, Mindszenty's only visitors so far have been church officials — directors of the

On the average, each American uses between 560 and 575 pounds of paper a year.

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — A bank here didn't hear from one of its borrowers at the appointed time in June 1970 and mentioned it to him. He vowed he'd mailed the $40 payment.

Recently mail exonerated him. The bank got a letter dated June 21, 1970, and enclosed was a $40 check dated the same day. It apparently had been mailed a year and four months earlier — by the man who lived 12 blocks from the bank.

BOTH COUNTRY AND RIVER CONGO CHANGE INTO ZAIRE

WASHINGTON — Geography students now must cope with yet another name for the Congo River: The Zaire.

When the Democratic Republic of the Congo recently announced that henceforth it would be known as the Republic of Zaire and its major waterway would become the Zaire River, officials at the capital of Kinshasa pointed out that this was the river's previous name.

Tribes living beside equatorial Africa's greatest river originally called it Nzadi, or "big water." To some Europeans it was known at one time as the Rio del Padrao, or Pillar River.

The name arose from the action of Portuguese navigator Diego Cao, who explored the river's mouth in 1482 and placed a marble pillar on its south bank, the National Geographic Society says.

Later, the newcomers adopted the tribesmen's name for the river. But they misspelled it as "Zaire," and the name stuck.

For 334 years the outside world knew little of the 2,700-mile river beyond its mouth. In 1816 a British expedition pushed 125 miles up the Congo as far as Isangila, past the lowest series of rapids. But 17 men died of fever, and for 60 years no foreigner ventured that far.

Missionary-explorer David Livingstone mapped part of the vast region drained by the Congo, reaching Nyangwe on the Lualaba River before his death in 1873.

DR. LIVINGSTONE'S friend, newspaperman Henry Morton Stanley, began a journey on the Lualaba the following year that ended in 1877 at the mouth of the Congo. He had proved the Lualaba and the Congo were one river — the Zaire of the Portuguese.

On future National Geographic maps the river will continue to be marked "Lualaba (Congo)" where it rises on the Katanga Plateau near Zaire's border with Zambia. After crossing the Equator, it will be designated "Zaire (Congo)" where it reaches Kisangani, formerly Stanleyville.

From Stanley Falls the river sweeps in a wide loop to the west, curving back across the Equator just before forming the border between the Republic of Zaire and the People's Republic of the Congo.

For some 400 miles along this border the river will be shown as the Zaire on one bank and the Congo on the other. And at the point where it empties into the Atlantic it will retain the name by which it is known internationally, the Congo River.

The former Democratic Republic of the Congo, which until it achieved independence in 1960 had been the Belgian Congo, hopes that restoring the river's name and extending it to the nation may avoid confusing the 905,563-square-mile country with its neighbor on the opposite bank of the river.

Since the Bakongo are but one of approximately 200 tribes in Zaire's 21,500,000 population, Kinshasa officials also feel that the name better reflects the national unity they are working to build.

Medical students train in rural areas

By MARTHA MALAN

HUTCHINSON, Minn. — The University of Minnesota is sending a group of third-year medical students into rural areas to give them a first-hand view of local physicians in action and, hopefully, to interest young doctors in rural practice.

Under the Rural Physicians Associate Program, 21 students are spending the year in 19 communities with populations of less than 15,000. The program is new this year.

"To our knowledge," said Dr. John West of Minneapolis, coordinator of the program, "nothing has ever been done before that involves a student actually going out and becoming involved for an entire calendar year in an educational-service commitment with a rural physician."

THE STUDENT is paid a $10,000 salary — $5,000 from a legislative grant and $5,000 from the doctor with whom he works. He receives training from the local doctor and, after a time, is expected to treat patients with supervision.

One of the students, George R. Gordon, 24, is spending the year in Hutchinson, a town of 8,031 residents in south central Minnesota. "Out here, you're seeing the real gut of medicine," he said.

Although Gordon works with all five doctors at the Hutchinson Medical Center, his preceptor is Dr. George R. Smith, 51. Smith, who has practiced in the community 22 years, is optimistic that the program will bring more young doctors into rural areas.

"I think experience is the big reason why so many young people hesitate to go into rural areas like Hutchinson," he said. "They honestly feel by the time they've finished their internship that they really aren't qualified to take care of patients."

"Hopefully, after spending a year in a rural area he will have acquired both the practical knowledge and the confidence to know whether he can handle it on his own."

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — Sisters Mrs. Pat Dunn, Mrs. Linda Harwood and Miss Judith Savile, all in their teens, decided they wanted to look their best for a family christening.

So they independently went into three different department stores in three different cities scores of miles apart to make their choice.

Result: the same coat in each case.

"We shall look like a singing trio round the font — but we are going to keep the coats," said Mrs. Dunn.

5 generations

WASHINGTON — Lacking written histories, New Guinea tribes conceive the world to be no more than world to be no more than five generations old, the National Geographic Society says. As new generations grow, memories of older ones fade, so this time span remains constant.

Electronic safety aids eyed for mine traps

ROLLA, Mo. — Electronic beepers and underground survival chambers are being tested in an effort to save trapped coal miners.

One of the safety devices discussed at an underground environment conference Thursday is a communications system using electromagnetic waves. Trapped men could send beeper signals to guide rescuers.

The device also would enable men trapped as far as 2,500 feet underground to hear voices from the surface.

The conference was sponsored by the U.S. Bureau of Mines and the mining department of the University of Missouri at Rolla.

R. E. Taber, manager of the Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s rescue and survival systems program, said a prototype communication system had been developed.

HE SAID the portable communication system was feasible but that researchers were finding problems in providing life-saving chambers underground and in boring rescue shafts from the surface.

"There is some question that the chambers would save lives in all mines," Taber said, explaining that in such disasters as explosions, miners would be killed outright.

He said shelters that could be moved along with mine crews would be expensive and their practicality was debatable.

Taber said drilling from the surface to reach trapped men "was only one way ... though the mine workings might be best."

He said most coal mines are only a few hundred feet deep and it is in this tougher top strata that drilling is slowest. Sinking shafts "is clearly designed for deep hole rescue," Taber said.

Westinghouse is working under a $3.4 million contract with the Bureau of Mines.

A similar electromagnetic communications project, financed by the Bureau of Mines, was assigned to the Colorado School of Mines. Prof. George V. Keller said his research indicated a portable transmitter-receiver might be developed to weigh less than two pounds and send voices both ways.

IN AN INTERVIEW, Keller said it would be better to use the devices regularly instead of relying on them just for emergencies. "You're never sure it will work unless you make use of it," he said.

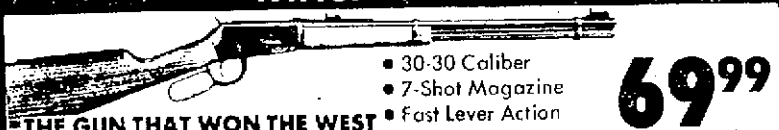

Charles F. Johnson of the Bureau of Mines Denver research center reported that roof and ground cave-ins account for more than 100 deaths per year in coal mines. He said tests were being made on an ultrasonic technique to detect dangerous conditions in mine roofs.

Overdue shrine is in works

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government, seeking to fulfill a promise 142 years old, is taking the first step toward construction of a Shrine to the Savior.

When Greece triumphed over the Ottoman Empire the elders of the newly born state envisaged the shrine as a token of thanksgiving for the emergence of a Christian Greece out of 400 years of Moslem rule.

After Premier Georges Papadopoulos' government swept into power in 1967 it vowed to fulfill the neglected pledge.

The barren Tourkovounia or Turk's Hill was chosen as the site, on the outskirts of Athens.

The government estimates it will cost 400 million drachma, equivalent to $13.3 million, to build the church and turn Turk's Hill into a fine national park.

Officials said the project "will survive the ages and constitute an eloquent testimony to the cultivated estheticism and the high artistic level of the modern Greeks who should, inspired by the project's sanctity and national symbolism, willingly take up the challenge so that the result will bear the stamp of esthetic perfection and Greek form."

PLANS TO build the church have not met with everyone's approval. But it appears that Premier Papadopoulos has won out over those who say the money should go for more schools and hospitals instead of churches. One benefit emanating from the entire project will be obvious — the hill will be transformed from an ugly barren mass to a picknicker's and stroller's delight.

A year ago, the government announced a design competition for the Church of the Savior. Architects were instructed to express the "high ideals which constitute the pervasive passion of the Greek nation." But none of the plans submitted, the state examining board said, had much trace of the ideals they were seeking.

A Look at the New Books

TRADITION AND CRISIS: Jewish Society at the End of the Middle Ages. By Jacob Katz. Schocken, $2.95 paperback.

Jacob Katz, Professor of Jewish History at Jerusalem's Hebrew University, in a lucid and highly intelligent book, shows how the Jews in the early part of the modern era emerged from cultural and social segregation to become an important part of the world from which they had been excluded, and while he is at it, studies the chief historical, sociological, economic, religious and cultural issues of the three centuries from 1500 to 1800.

FRENCH UTOPIAS: An Anthology of Ideal Societies. Edited by Frank E. Manuel and Fritz P. Manuel. Schocken, $3.95 paperback.

Utopia has been much on the mind of French intellectual leaders, even as far back as the Middle Ages. The Mannels' comprehensive anthology (the first such in English) brings us French Utopian writings from the middle of the 14th century to our own day. Here is Sir John Mandeville, of the 14th century, reputed to have been an English traveler but whose narrative of travels first appeared in Norman French and who drew on the travels of a number of Frenchmen; he writes of the "blessed isles of Prester John." Here is Rabelais, not commonly thought of as a Utopian; Cyrano de Bergerac (who was a real person and not just the large-nosed fictional character of Rostand's famous play); the Abbe de St. Pierre; Rousseau; Diderot; Restif de la Bretonne; the Marquis de Sade; Bebeuf; Saint-Simon; Fourier and his phalanx system of society; Comte; Proudhon; Renan; Anatole France and Teilhard de Chardin.

VOTE FOR THE TOFF. By John Creasey. Walker, $1.95.

The British writing machine, John Creasey (author of over 500 mysteries) has produced another Toff adventure. In this one a Member of Parliament is killed by a mysterious poison as he is walking toward the House of Commons. The Toff is asked to stand as the Conservative Party candidate in a by-election to fill the slain Member's chair.

He decides instead to run as an independent candidate and solve the mystery of the Member's death at the same time. Since the book is slanted to the American market, Creasey uses the device of an American girl friend and explains the intricacies of English elections.

The loyal friends of the Toff rally around to help with the election and Creasey even slyly inserts himself, in the person of Jack Withers, into the excitement. There are the usual assortment of shoot-outs and corpses and near-corporse culminating in the election and the discovery of a drug ring.

"Vote for the Toff" is good, fast-paced escape fiction, but a little too machine-like for this reader's taste.—Ruth Warner

THE MASTER OF MIRACLE. By Sulamith Ish-Kishor. Harper & Row, $3.95.

To save the Jews from destruction, the High Rabbi is permitted by God to create Golem, a man-like being, to find a lost gentle girl. Based on a legend, the novel is told through the eyes of an orphan boy, Gideon ben Israel, who is entrusted with the care of Golem. Illustrations by Arnold Lobel. Ages 11 to 13.

GETTING SOMETHING ON MAGGIE MARMELSTEIN. By Marjorie W. Sharmat. Harper & Row, $3.95.

Maggie Marmelstein and Thad Smith clashed on the playground and in the classroom. In fact, each one's goal was "to get something" on the other. Then Thad discovers Maggie's special box with some secret letters. Pictures by Ben Shecter. Ages 9 to 11.—E.R.

JUDO AND SELF-DEFENSE. By Gene LeBell. Charles E. Tuttle Co., $2.25.

This book is designed to self-teach the reader in self-defense. The author outlines 30 probable circumstances in which a man or woman could be confronted with an attack by an assailant and shows how to survive such attacks. More than 130 line drawings illustrate the clear directions. All ages.—E.R.

EDSEL. By Karl Shapiro. Bernard Geis, $6.95.

It has been said that it is best to write about that in which one excels. Karl Shapiro, poet and teacher, wisely elected to write a novel about Edsel Lazerow, poet and teacher. In the book, Lazerow is well on his way to becoming the chaff in the cornbelt college through his aging, adolescent behavior.

The anti-hero represents as much success as he wishes to absorb, but prefers to flaunt his rollicking rebelliousness for all to note.

He seems to find no peace in his sick sexual relationship with the local hairdresser, weird Wanda, but cannot make a change or cannot find a reason to change.

Edsel probably depicts life on most campuses, and each type is well and colorfully represented.

One would hope the sexual aberrations on campus are at least in proportion to academic intake.

In his honest appraisal of life, Shapiro uses the campus to reflect the illness of the times. Sex in the spotlight is reflected only by the antipathy of the middle years toward action.

Lazerow watches while his Rome burns as his students in anger light the fire which destroys his office and the major portion of his life's work.

In the background is love, the cleansing agent for all the poet's ills. A woman, his equal (and who resembles the U.S. Cavalry in her nick-of-time arrival), charges in to save this worthwhile human from his downhill road to nothingness.

—Ellen Kree

THE VAMPIRES. By John Rechy. Grove Press, $6.95.

For the readers who are entranced by the licentious adventures of those who employ the forces of evil, invoking Satan to confuse the good, here is a skillful novel of the occult.

The bizarre cast of characters presents a kaleidoscope of vampires, voodoo priests, satanic handmaidens, Christian clergymen, paragons of purity, drug priestesses, call boys, transvestite and homosexuals, midwife, beauties and musclemen.

Richard, the millionaire epitome of male beauty, assembles on his lush island these strange people, who include his former wives and mistress, sons and daughter and others, for the purpose of a demonic game and sensual drama that reach a climax in bloody exorcism. It's lip-lickin' dark and violent.

—Lew Allison

THE SHIRLEY LETTERS FROM THE CALIFORNIA MINES, 1851-1852. Introduction and Notes by Carl I. Wheat. Ballantine Constock Editions, $1.25 paperback.

A happy reissue of the witty letters from a little New England lady who signed herself "Shirley," who came to live in a canyon in California's Feather River country and loved the rough life of the gold mining towns. No more vivid account of the Gold Rush era has ever been written; Bret Harte used for his stories entire incidents told by Dame Shirley.

Privacy at home for the governor

By WALT ZEBOSKI
Associated Press Photographer

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan of California is one of the nation's most visible political figures, but his private life remains just that — mostly private.

If Nancy Reagan has had any single goal as California's first lady, it has been to try to maintain some sort of normal home and family life for her governor-husband.

"She makes every effort to keep some sort of private life for the family, and especially for the governor and children," said a Reagan aide, Nancy Clark Reynolds. "It doesn't always work."

Occasionally a newsman or photographer gets an inside look at Reagan home life on tree-lined 45th Street in the fashionable east section of Sacramento.

Recently, The Associated Press was given permission to photograph California's 60-year-old chief executive as he relaxed at home with his wife and their 13-year-old son, Skipper.

There is a guardhouse maintained by the state police at the side driveway of the $150,000 Tudor house on which the state pays a $15,000 annual lease fee. There is an officer on duty 24 hours a day to check all visitors.

The interior of the house is decorated with bright bouquets of flowers. Reagan memorabilia are collected in a downstairs recreation room.

Reagan relaxes as much as possible on Sacramento weekends, playing tag football with Skipper in the backyard, checking progress of the "Skipper Hilton," a treehouse, watching football on television or playing pool in the recreation room.

Frequently, however, he brings home work from his Capitol office and at other times, executive or political appointments take him out of town. The Reagans divide their weekends between Sacramento and their Pacific Palisades home in Los Angeles. That gives them a chance to see daughter Patti, a student at the University of Southern California.

"She won't schedule anything for the weekend herself," Mrs. Reynolds says of Mrs. Reagan. "They try very hard to limit the weekend things to occasional evening speeches rather than daytime things."

"Skipper is very involved in sports at school. The governor always sees him play. He went to a lot of swimming meets this summer to watch Skipper."

"They go to the movies occasionally and take Skipper with them," Mrs. Reynolds said.

Recent ones include "Patton," "Gone With the Wind," "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" and "Airport."

The Reagans entertain occasionally in their Sacramento home, including dinners for friends such as conservative columnist William F. Buckley and visiting dignitaries such as former South Vietnam Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky.

"It's really a modest house," Mrs. Reynolds said.

The living area is furnished and decorated with antiques given or donated to the state as part of a drive by Mrs. Reagan to develop furnishings for a future state-owned executive residence. They moved out of the old mansion, declared a firetrap, in 1967. Efforts to build a new home have been stalemated for years in the legislature.

"They can't entertain more than 40 people for dinner and that's buffet style, because there's not enough room to sit," Mrs. Reynolds said.

WHAT IS A FASHION BOUTIQUE?

a fashion boutique is bonnie and paul's in bellflower

HISTORY

Bonnie and Paul's started out as just a Wig Shop in a smaller store down the block. The wigs went good and they were always busy with styling. Then when boutiques started springing up, Bonnie and Paul thought, "Let's throw some really groovy clothes in and see what happens." Well, it happened! From one rack of clothes to a fantastic selection of all kinds of clothes. Bonnie and Paul's has super funky clothes to go out and blow your mind and nice working dresses and pantsuits. From super low-cut necklines to very conservative turtle necks; from the bra-less halter knockaround to the super sexy Mini or the foxy looking Maxie with hot pants.

At Bonnie & Paul's you do YOUR thing, but Bonnie and Paul are there to help. If you don't see what you want ask and they'll try and get it.

Bonnie and Paul's still carry a wide selection of hair. All the latest Wigs, Human Hair and Synthetics and all the hairpieces like Cascades and Falls. They stock ONLY the best quality and guarantee ALL their human hair to last for years — and it is ALL 100% human hair. The prices are very reasonable. Synthetic never-set Brentlon wigs start out at $18.95. 100% Human Hair wigs at $20.50. Long Beautiful Showgirl Wigs at $69.00.

In short, Bonnie and Paul's have it all. Groovy, feminine clothes, coats, sleepwear, accessories, special bras, beautiful wigs and hairpieces for men and women, and excellent styling.

They also have a "Discount Club" which is just for shopping there and is a way for Bonnie and Paul to say "thank you" to their many happy customers.

BONNIE

Bonnie and Paul's has a big selection of clothes in a big selection of prices. Dresses from $16.00-$50.00. To fit the young and not-so-young — the small and not-so-small. They stock a fantastic selection of size 3's and go to 13/14 and are going to start carrying 15/16 through popular demand. The dress Bonnie and her mother have on is only $22.00. Shirley is wearing a Human Hair, hand-tied wig styled by Bonnie, styled not to look like a wig. This wig retails at $59.00.

FASHIONS OF TODAY

Here we see what Jeanne and Arlene are always doing on their lunch time — trying on the new clothes as they arrive in the store.

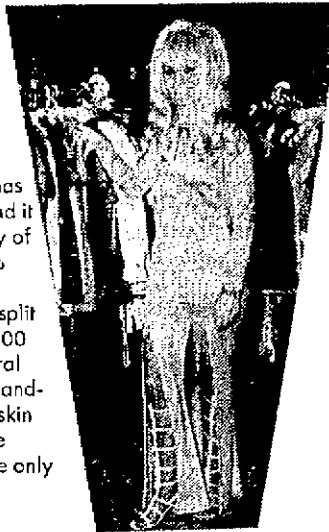

Jeanne (on the right) has on a Maxie that retails for $32.00, a necklace for $10.00, and has on our Cascade which is $16.00.

FUNKY OUTFITS

Here's a very good customer, Jinny. She has on a "Funky" outfit and it can be ordered in any of 36 colors, sizes 3/4 to 15/16. Jinny has on a pantsuit with the legs split up the front for $52.00 and a beautiful, natural looking human hair hand-tied long Wig with a skin part for $100.00. The buckle up sandals are only $19.95.

NOW DRESSES

Jeanne loves to help the customers with shopping for new clothes. Here Jeanne (on the left) has on a pair of low hip pants that are $12.00, and her turtle-neck sweater is only $12.00.

Jinny is trying on a new dress that is $42.00, and is being shown a Maxie that retails for $32.00.

STYLING

Bonnie and Paul's specialize in styling wigs and all hairpieces professionally. When you bring in ANY hairpiece, it will have that finished look. When it's done — it will be done the way YOU WANTED it, or it will be changed to make you happy and it will last longer than ever!

All the styling is done by Bonnie, the owner, who is a licensed Beautician and has many years' experience, and Arlene, who also has many years experience and does expert styling. The important thing is that both Arlene and Bonnie want to please you and make you — the customer — happy and want to see you come back again and again. All that we want is a chance to please you. If you have a wig that's too big, uncomfortable, looks like a wig — before you throw it out, bring it in and let's see what we can do. Maybe a little cutting, altering and "know-how" will do the trick. If not — we'll tell you to throw it out.

WIGS

This is Arlene and one of her very good customers. Dottie has about 5 wigs that Arlene does for her wig wardrobe. She had gone to several different shops and was never pleased, and very unhappy until she walked into Bonnie and Paul's. Bonnie had Arlene take care of her and ever since then, Arlene has been making Dottie very happy. The wig Dottie has on is a Human Hair machine wig — frosted — which retails at Bonnie and Paul's for $24.50. Arlene's Maxie with Hot Pants outfit retails for $30.00.

U.S.-made boomerangs the best, says world's champ

By GORDON TAIT

SYDNEY — There's a good old Aussie argument going on about boomerangs—those come-back-to-me missiles perfected by the original Aussies, the Aborigines.

The main point at issue is: Are the "Made in U.S.A." models imported into Australia for sale to American tourists superior to those made by Aborigines in Australia?

The world champion boomerang thrower says, "Yes, the Yank models are better." An Aboriginal leader says nonsense. After that it probably will be no surprise to read that the world champion is not an Aborigine, not even Australian born, not even American born, but Steve Silady, born in Yugoslavia.

THE ARGUMENT was sparked by Sen. Neville Bonner, the first and only Aboriginal member of the Australian Federal Parliament.

Bonner, in a speech to Parliament, asked for tariff protection for boomer-angs "so that cheap imitations from overseas will not undercut the authentic Aboriginal article." He suggested legislation to restrict the manufacture of boomerangs in Australia "to those who own it as their special heritage."

Then came the follow-ups. Silady, who won his title with a throw of 125 yards in Sydney in 1967, was sought out.

"American boomerangs generally are better than Aboriginal-made," he said. "American manufacturers, like Australian manufacturers, are concerned that their boomerangs come back. The Aborigine couldn't care less whether his comes back or not, as long as it looks pretty and sells."
